RUSH TO SEE WILSON ON WASHINGTON VISIT

Democrats, Many from the House, Keep Governor Busy on His Return from Tour.

HE PRAISES THE WOOL BILL

Says the People Will Almost Obliterate Party Lines Next Year and Vote for Men and Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Homeward bound from his 9,000-mile tour of the West, Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey in the course of his day in Washington expressed his full approval of the action of the Democratic caucus in refusing to put wool on the free list. He thus lines up against William J. Bryan, who has indorsed him in many letters, and sides with Champ Clark, who will be a formidable rival for the Presidential nomination in 1912.

"Men everywhere," he said, "seem to be of the same mind. The next campaign is going to mark the partial obliteration of old-time political lines. It is going to be a campaign of men and measures rather than a campaign of parties. The people are going to vote for a man who they believe will carry out the things for which they stand rather than a man who professes to represent the principles of one of the parties. There is a wide distinction, you know, between principles and measures.

"I approve of the manner in which the Democratic House is conducting itself. Its performances have been creditable, fulfilling the pledges made. I think the attitude of the Democratic caucus with reference to the revision of the wool schedule is justifiable. The resolution adopted by the caucus is satisfying. It recites that a revenue tax on wool is the practical and possible thing at this time. It does not mean the abandonment of the principle of free raw wool. The Democrats are not revising the entire tariff; the revision is schedule by schedule, and the question of revenue must enter, hence the necessity for the present of a revenue tax on wool. If a wholesale revision had been in progress the situation might have been different."

Whatever its object, Washington chose to put a political construction on Gov. Wilson's visit. He reached Washington last night, and his first visitor was announced a few minutes after the Governor's Secretary, F. P. Stockbridge, had registered. There was no sleep till after midnight and to-day's first caller was knocking at the door before the Governor had arisen. Many Democratic Senators and Representatives paid their respects and there were many callers who had no official position. All were admitted on the same standing. The room was full all the time. There was not a single private conference. Whatever was said was said for all to hear. Senator Martine, of New Jersey, did the honor of introductions.

Representative Baker, of California, who believes in the initiative, referendum and recall as thoroughly as he does in the scenic grandeur of the far West, got in a question edgewise now and then as to the Governor's tour of California—his first one. Representative Dickinson of Missouri shook hands and said little, inasmuch as Mr. Dickinson is from Champ Clark's State and Mr. Clark has a presidential boomlet of his own. Representative Sims of Tennessee also swapped political opinions with the Governor, as did Representative Hughes of New Jersey and other public men who began to drop in shortly before noon.

"I suppose my political views are pretty well known by this time," said the Governor during a brief respite from handshaking. "I may say, however, that one thing struck me particularly during my journey through the West. That is, the political trend everywhere now seems to be an abandonment of the old party lines."

An incident that happened just after he left Kansas City furnished him with an argument for many of his subsequent speeches. When the train stopped at Wymore, Neb., a man in overalls approached, wiping his hands on a bunch of waste, and announced that he was Mayor of the town. In the course of the conversation that followed the Mayor said he was elected as a Socialist.

"Are there that many Socialists in your town?" asked Dr. Wilson in surprise.

"Oh, no," was the answer. "My vote was 20 per cent. Socialist and 80 per cent. protest."

Discussing the initiative and referendum and recall Gov. Wilson said:

"The thing I'm after is to give the people control of their own Government. If this cannot be accomplished without the aid of the initiative, the referendum and the recall, then I am ready to adopt these weapons. I do not regard these devices as tools for everyday use, but, like the gun behind the door, for use only in emergencies. My observation and information as to the operation of the initiative and referendum in the Northwest satisfies me that the people can be relied upon to use the weapons judiciously and with discrimination."

Gov. Wilson does not believe in the recall of judges.

"The progressive movement is just as pronounced in the Far West as it is in Kansas or in New Jersey," he said. "It is not confined to any one party any more than it is to any one section."

He was asked what the progressive movement was as he looked at it. His reply was:

"I am fond of summing up and explaining what is meant by the progressive movement by saying that the progressive idea is to recover for the people of the country control of both the economic and political forces of the Nation. I do not see any difference between the Democrats and what we call progressive Republicans, except possibly on the tariff."

He reiterated his approval of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

"Will it help the Republicans or the Democrats in 1912?" he was asked.

"Which party it will help is entirely a matter of indifference," was the response. "The party that thinks of itself and not of the country is going down to defeat."

To the members of the House he expressed repeated congratulations. He said that the vigor with which the House had taken hold of its work had inspired the country with renewed confidence in the Democratic Party.

The Governor left for home to-night.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 4.—William J. Bryan returned to Lincoln yesterday, to remain until after the marriage of his daughter, Grace, and Richard Lewis Hargreaves next Wednesday evening. A prenuptial dinner was held at the Bryan home last night.

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss Presidential possibilities further than to say some pleasant things about Gov. Wilson and others mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination. On the action of the Democratic House caucus on wool he said:

"The bill is better than any Republican bill we have ever had. The only objec-

BUYS A HOUSE FOR HIS BABY.

Roof Playground and Zoo for John Randolph Hopkins, Now 2 Months Old.

Russell Hopkins, Consul General of Panama, has purchased the house at 1,045 Fifth Avenue for his baby son, John Randolph Hopkins, who was born two months ago in the St. Regis and who is now at his father's country home, in Irvington-on-Hudson. The baby's grandmother, Mrs. Lawrence, widow of Dr. J. J. Lawrence, who lives in the Hotel Plaza, said yesterday she would spend $25,000 in furnishing a suite of five rooms in the new house for her grandson.

Mr. Hopkins wished to purchase Mrs. William B. Leeds's house, and offered $250,000 for it, but it was refused, so he bought the Fifth Avenue house, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth Streets.

The roof of the house will be covered with a steel wire cage and half converted into a playground. The other half will be used as a small private zoo. Mr. Hopkins has maintained a private zoo at Irvington for years for the entertainment of his guests and the instruction of the village children.

Mr. Hopkins had a baby hippopotamus there last Summer, but, owing to its splashing propensities and inordinate appetite, he had to get rid of it. A bear cub will arrive from the Rocky Mountains this week, sent by one of his old guides to the son and heir.

CORONATION SHIP SAILS.

Battleship Delaware Off for England 'Mid Cheers and Salutes.

The battleship Delaware, which will be the largest war vessel in the naval review in connection with the coronation of King George, sailed yesterday. The battleship, her flags flying, left her anchorage off Tompkinsville about 1:30 P. M., and headed out through the Narrows. As she moved from her anchorage passing craft began saluting, and this was kept up until the Delaware was well away to sea. As she passed through the Ambrose Channel she passed close to the incoming White Star liner Celtic.

Instead of answering each salute, Rear Admiral Vreeland set the signal, "Thanks," and the string of small flags were still whipping in the wind as the Celtic passed.

The Delaware left the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Thursday and dropped down to Tompkinsville, where she has been taking on board the last of her supplies. Her men have been anxious to get away, and they lined the deck and cheered as the vessel weighed anchor and steamed away.

WESTERN EXODUS TO LONDON

Five Thousand Going from Chicago to the Coronation Ceremonies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 4.—With the coronation of King George and Queen Mary less than twenty days off Chicago hotels were filled to-day with Western people on their way to London for the great show. Most of them have engaged berths already on ships departing from New York this week.

Officials of the various steamship lines said to-day that every outgoing vessel this week and next had been booked to its full capacity, reservations having been made in some instances as long ago as last Summer. Many persons, however, are depending on the adage that there is "always room for one more."

Five thousand Chicagoans will attend the coronation, according to the estimate of the steamship people.

200 ANIMALS FOR KING.

South Africa Sends Them as Coronation Gift—Monarch Inspects Them.

LONDON, June 4.—Since the period of court mourning ended the British public has been finding ample opportunity to become acquainted with the sovereign by the constant appearances of the King and Queen at various functions. Their Majesties with their children made an unexpected visit to-day to the Zoological Gardens to inspect a collection of 200 animals, which have newly arrived as a coronation gift to the King from the union of South Africa.

The party spent two hours in making the round of the gardens, to the special delight of the royal children, who were keen in observing and feeding the different animals. From Monday until Thursday the King will spend among the troops at Aldershot.

The Chinese cruiser Hai Chi, with China's coronation representatives, Admirals Jong and Ching, arrived to-day at Plymouth.

HAMMOND IN LONDON.

Coronation Envoy to Visit Paris and Stay Till Eve of Ceremony.

LONDON, June 4.—John Hays Hammond, the Special Ambassador to represent the United States at the coronation of King George, accompanied by his family, arrived in London to-night.

Mr. Hammond was met by the American embassy staff and proceeded to the Stratton House, where he will remain until June 9. He will then proceed to Paris, remaining in the French capital until a day or two before the coronation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 4.—John R. Carter, the American Minister to Roumania, who has been Chargé d'Affaires at Constantinople since the retirement of Ambassador Straus, left here to-night for Paris. W. W. Rockhill, the newly appointed American Ambassador to Turkey, is expected to reach here the end of June.

LOCK UP SUBWAY SMOKER.

Man Who Persisted in Puffing at a Cigar Is Arrested.

A man smoking a cigar on the downtown platform of the Fourteenth Street Subway station attracted the attention of Special Policeman John McBride late yesterday afternoon.

"No smoking allowed in the Subway," cautioned the policeman. The man continued to puff on the cigar.

"You will have to throw away that cigar; you can't smoke it here," ordered McBride.

"This cigar is too good to throw away. I just paid a quarter for it," returned the man, placing the cigar again in his mouth and emitting a cloud of smoke.

McBride thereupon took him to the East Twenty-second Street Station, where he was charged with violating the section of the Sanitary Code relative to carrying lighted cigars or cigarettes into Subway and elevated stations and trains. He said he was James Murphy of 10 Macdougal Street.

In the Night Court, later, Murphy was fined $5. He paid his fine.

Miss Sutterly's Will Is Filed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 4.—The will of Miss Marianna Clark Sutterly, the teacher, who drowned herself at Burlington last March, and whose body was only recently recovered from the river, leaves her estate of $5,000 to Edward Sutterly, her brother, of this city. Her jewels go to Miss Mary M. Smelzer of Kansas.

AUTO KILLS CYCLIST BY HIS WIFE'S SIDE

MOTHER SAVES CHILDREN

Mrs. Garlen Pushes Them from Path of a Motor Cycle—Two Other Children Hurt.

Automobiles killed Ernest Succow of 348 Liberty Avenue, Brooklyn, and injured two children in East New York yesterday, and in saving her children from being run down by a speeding motor cyclist, Mrs. Annie Garlen of 51 Bristol Street was hurled to the pavement and lacerated severely on the head and face.

Succow, a produce dealer and the father of several small children, was riding a bicycle slowly along Pennsylvania Avenue yesterday morning, while his wife walked along the sidewalk abreast of him. She was talking to him when a large touring car, driven by Edward Hecker of 1,769 Broadway, a chauffeur, who said he was a nephew of Dr. Charles Wuest, a Brooklyn Coroner's Physician, turned out of Atlantic Avenue. The automobile struck the cyclist and hurled him against a lamppost and the curbstone with force sufficient to crush in ten of his ribs and fracture his skull.

The accident unnerved Hecker and he swerved his auto so sharply as to run on to the sidewalk on the opposite side of the avenue and almost crash into the steps of the East New York Savings Bank. He veered off just in time and continued down Pennsylvania Avenue with a number of persons in pursuit, but got away.

Mrs. Succow, half falling, rushed to the side of her husband. He was unconscious and could not reply to her entreaties.

The man was dying apparently, and pending the arrival of Dr. Lynch from the Bradford Street Hospital with an ambulance, a policeman and other persons did their best for him. He was taken to the hospital, and died there two hours later.

Hecker gave himself up at the Liberty Avenue Police Station. He said that he had been driving carefully when the accident happened, and that he could not stop the machine after it, as it was beyond his control. He had dashed down Pennsylvania Avenue into Sutter Avenue, where one of his tires blew out and disabled the car. A summons to appear in the New Jersey Avenue court was served on him.

About the same time Samuel Marcus, 14 years old, of 1,710 Prospect Place, Brownsville, was knocked down near his home by an automobile driven by Frank Smith of 1,128 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn. His right leg was fractured. Although a threatening crowd gathered, the chauffeur stopped the car, lifted the lad into it, and carried him to Bradford Street Hospital. The accident was unavoidable, the police say.

As Mrs. Annie Garlen was crossing Pitkin Avenue at Thatford Street, with her three little children running ahead of her, a speeding motor cyclist seemed about to run over them. She leaped forward with a cry and pushed them out of the way. She slipped and fell in front of the machine and was knocked unconscious. The cyclist, Louis Dizina of 97 New Lots Road, was thrown to the road and received a scalp wound. Both were treated by an ambulance surgeon.

An automobile owned and driven by ex-Assemblyman Albert Lachman of 372 Palmetto Street, Brooklyn, ran over three-year-old Rosie Putkoff of 367 Jerome Street in front of her home in the afternoon. Mr. Lachman stopped the car, and picking the child up put her in the care of several persons on the sidewalk. Then he continued on his way.

Dr. Lynch of the Bradford Street Hospital found the little one suffering from severe bruises.

Her parents reported to the police that the motorist had gone on. An alarm was sent out for the car, but two hours later Mr. Lachman called at the police station and explained that he had given his name and address and other information to persons at the scene of the accident. His explanation was satisfactory to the police.

GIRL KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Sister's Spine Broken and She Will Die—Four Others Only Slightly Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 4.—As a result of spending the night riding with a party of friends in an automobile, Margaret Ryan and her sister, Catherine, came to grief this morning when the car, which was driven by John F. Qvarn, the owner, swerved from the road and ran against a telegraph pole, throwing the occupants out. Catherine Ryan was killed instantly and her sister's spine was broken. She will die.

Others in the party beside Qvarn were Frank M. Winchester, C. J. Breen of Detroit, and Mrs. William L. Roussian. They were only slightly injured and refused medical aid. Qvarn is married and has several children.

The party, according to Qvarn, who is a contractor in Worcester, left the city shortly after midnight and drove through two of the nearby towns and then to the Gesang Verein Froshinns Club on the shores of Lake Quinsigamond. Leaving the clubhouse shortly before 7 o'clock this morning, Qvarn said he missed the main road to Worcester and turned up the Shore Road, and in making the turn at Chestnut Street the car skidded.

RUN OVER IN FIFTH AVENUE.

Cyclist, Breaking His Chain, Loses Control of His Machine.

As a boy of about 15 years old was riding yesterday afternoon a bicycle northward along Fifth Avenue about Fifty-seventh Street, the chain broke. He lost control of the machine and was carried to the west side of the roadway in the way of the vehicles speeding southward.

A taxicab driven by Samuel Horowitz of 1,237 Fifth Avenue was nearest the boy. Horowitz put on his emergency brake and he had almost brought his car to a standstill when he struck the boy. The lad was thrown several feet, and Horowitz jumped from his car and helped to carry him to the stoop of the Vanderbilt residence on the northwest corner.

A policeman told Horowitz to hurry the boy to Flower Hospital, the nearest place for help. Horowitz went at full speed and the boy was put on the operating table immediately. It was found he had fractured his skull and had sustained internal injuries. His condition is very serious, according to Dr. Ahrens.

Nothing was found in the boy's possession to identify him. He appeared to be of Jewish descent, and was dressed in a dark suit and cap, black shoes and stockings, and a white collar and tie.

STRIKERS OPEN FIRE ON NON-UNION MEN

Strikebreakers' Barracks Are Attacked by Pennsylvania Shopmen When They Are in Bed.

WOMAN SHOT THROUGH HEAD

Men on Both Sides Beaten—Strike Threatens to Extend to Harrisburg—Company Wants More Police.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 4.—Striking Pennsylvania Railroad shopmen to-night bombarded a strikebreakers' barracks at Brownsville on the Pittsburg, Virginia & Charleston Division. In the exchange of shots and encounters between the strikers and the non-union men, Mrs. Clara Bodeck, who conducted the barracks, was shot through the head, many men on both sides were beaten, and a striker, who became separated from his side and fell into the hands of the strikebreakers, was kicked and so badly beaten that he may not live. The woman was brought to a hospital in this city, and she is expected to die.

Sunday had passed quietly along the part of the Pennsylvania system affected by the strike, and to-night's outbreak occurred at a point far removed from where Deputy Sheriffs and special police are on duty.

The strikebreakers, about fifty in number, were in bed when the strikers and their sympathizers attacked the boarding house the non-unionists occupied and fired several volleys. The strikebreakers retaliated. The woman was accidentally shot when she tried to seek refuge in another house. Deputy Sheriffs have been sent to Brownsville from Fayette County.

The outbreak at Brownsville really is the first serious one of the present strike. Throughout the day about seventy Deputy Sheriffs and a big force of extra policemen had guarded the situation at Pitcairn and in the various yards along the Pittsburg Division, and the attack was made at the weakest point. Freight handlers, yardmen, and switchmen threaten to join the ranks of the strikers to-day. The company issued the call for extra deputies and constabulary on Saturday night, after alleged efforts had been made to intimidate trainmen and force them to quit.

Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor will be here to-morrow to take charge of the situation, which is becoming more serious than at any time since the strike of the shopmen, which began about six weeks ago.

Union men say that the strike will extend to Harrisburg to-morrow, and that employes in all the big freight yards in and about the Pittsburg district will join the strike.

SIX DROWNED IN UTAH LAKE.

Engaged Couple, Among the Victims, Sink Clasped in Each Other's Arms.

SALT LAKE, Utah, June 4.—Six persons were drowned in Utah Lake to-day when the sailing launch Galilee, on which sixteen persons were attending a party given in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Vera Brown and Edward B. Holmes, capsized in a squall. Among the drowned were the prospective bride and bridegroom and Frank and Helen Brown, two other children of Capt. Frederick Brown, owner of the launch.

James W. Raymond seized his five-year-old son to save him, and both were drowned. All the victims of the accident lived in Salt Lake City.

All sixteen passengers were thrown into the water when the boat turned over. Holmes, guided by the cries of his fiancée, went to her aid. The struggling woman and the rough water were too much for him, and they went to the bottom, clasped in each other's arms.

Frank Brown tried to aid his sister Helen, but both were soon exhausted. The chill of the water benumbed them, and they sank together.

Some young men in a boat were attracted by the cries of the others, who succeeded in grasping the upturned Gallilee, and went to the rescue. They succeeded in saving ten persons, who had been in the water an hour and a half.

FINDS HESSIAN RUM BOTTLES

Necks Gone on Two Dozen Dug Up by R. P. Bolton at Fort Washington.

A bayonet pierced by a rifle ball, two cannon balls chained together and two dozen rum bottles are among the latest finds of R. P. Bolton, who has been excavating in the ruins of old Fort Washington, adjoining Fort Washington Park, and the site of the Hessian barracks on the eastward slope of the Heights, in what was for a long time known as "Death Gulch," which name it took from the large number of Hessians who fell in the rout of Washington's army from the Heights.

The rum bottles were found twelve feet underground on the site of the old Hessian barracks. The neck of each was missing, while there was a similarity in the broken necks indicating that there had been a standard Revolutionary method of dispensing with the drawing of corks.

An old map by which Mr. Bolton located the site for his excavations showed that a tavern stood a short distance away from the barracks on a spot now occupied by a big apartment house. He thinks that this fact may account for the Hessians leaving rum bottles with their minnie balls and chain-shot. The articles dug up are being added to the collection in the Jumel mansion.

OFFICESEEKER COSTS MUTUAL LIFE $60,000

FIRST CONTEST SINCE 1907

Elaborate Machinery Set in Motion for One Man—Shows the Law Is Absurd, Says James M. Beck.

Sol Rosenblatt, a Chicago lawyer, has put the Mutual Life Insurance Company to an expense of $60,000 by having himself nominated for a member of the Board of Trustees. All he had to do, under the law passed after the Hughes investigation, was to get his nomination papers signed by 100 policy holders out of the 500,000 or 600,000 persons insured in the company. This makes it necessary to send ballots containing the administration ticket and the opposition ticket, consisting of Mr. Rosenblatt, to all the policy holders throughout the world. Incidentally, the bill for postage and printing comes out of the policy holders.

The expense, great as it is, is not the only difficulty confronting the officers of the company. Experience in the contest of 1907, which immediately followed the change in the law, shows that many policy holders in voting take occasion to inclose checks for their premiums and correspondence of various sorts. Return envelopes of a certain form are required by the law, and some of the policy holders who have no interest in the election and do not even inclose a ballot use the return envelopes to make their remittances.

None of these envelopes can be opened until June. The dates for closing nominations, for sending out ballots, and for canvassing the vote are specified in the statute in case of a contested election. Three inspectors have to be named, one by the administration, one by the opposition ticket—in this case Mr. Rosenblatt—and one by the Superintendent of Insurance.

The remittances sent by policy holders in this way fail, of course, to be credited to them for several weeks, and their letters on other topics remain unanswered until the vote is canvassed. Some of them get indignant and send in complaints, and it is difficult to make them understand the reason for the delay, especially if they happen to live in Australia or Kamchatka.

"I am glad this matter has reached THE TIMES," said James M. Beck, one of the Mutual Trustees, last night, "because its publication will make it plain to the public that the present law governing elections in insurance companies is an absurdity, and a rather expensive one. Even if Mr. Rosenblatt is elected, he will be but one in a board of thirty-six members.

"The remedy is very simple. If the law required that a nomination should be made by a tenth or a thirtieth of the policy holders it would be perfectly fair, for if a man can get 25,000 names on his petition he is entitled to go on the ballot. Yet 25,000 would be but 5 per cent. of the total."

No explanation has come from Chicago as to what Mr. Rosenblatt's purpose is in putting this extensive machinery in motion.

Mr. Rosenblatt's contest is the first the Mutual has had since that of the International Policyholders' Committee in 1906 and 1907, for that election lapped over from one year into another. That contest was fiercely fought and its conclusion in favor of the administration ticket brought forth charges of fraud and irregularity from Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the International Committee. The expense for the work of counting and inspecting the ballots amounted to about $75,000 and the entire cost was estimated as high as $500,000.

The nominations were made in July, 1906, and the counting of the ballots took several months. The result was announced on April 19, 1907. Roughly speaking, the expense of the canvass did not fall far short of $500 a day. The number of votes counted in a day varied from 6 to 6,000. This count was made without taking into account the challenges filed later, when the tally sheets were made up. The International Committee complained that the system by which the ballots were recorded was so complicated that the clerks could not make the various entries at the speed required without an enormous percentage of mistakes.

After the vote was counted the whole thing had to be gone over again on the challenges.

The expenses were made up of the following items: First, the Board of five Inspectors of Election drew $35 a day each as long as they were engaged on the count. Their compensation was fixed by Supt. of Insurance Kelsey. The expert accountant and his assistants added $100 a day. Then there was a secretary to the Board of Inspectors and a stenographer. Their pay came to $25 a day. A varying number of young women clerks at $1.75 a day were employed. There were at times as many as 110 of these clerks.

When it was all over Mr. Untermyer said:

"I am surprised that the Inspectors counted any of the ballots of the Policyholders' Committee. They might as well have thrown all of them out as do what they did. They rejected genuine ballots for our ticket that were supported by affidavits of the policyholders and counted ballots for the administration ticket that were shown by affidavits to be forgeries. The excuse they made was that they had no right to inquire as to whether the ballots were genuine or forgeries, even where the policyholder whose ballot had been forged offered to prove it.

"We have here the anomalous condition of Inspectors having actually counted ballots that were proved to them to be forged, and having rejected the ballots of the same policy holders that they knew to be genuine.

"Such has been the farcical result of this long and costly canvass under the personal supervision of Supt. Kelsey and his Inspectors. This whole performance has been a travesty due to the absurd attitude of the Inspectors and to the defects in the law."

CHICAGO, June 4.—Sol Rosenblatt was asked to-night by the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES about his candidacy for Trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

"I am the candidate of the policy holders," said Mr. Rosenblatt. "The existing committee of thirty-six Trustees has been self-perpetuating for a long period of time, and the policy holders are anxious to have this system reformed and to secure representation for themselves on the Board of Trustees by electing a man of their own choice.

"The policy holders are seeking to establish the cumulative vote so that they can be represented on the board. If the State Superintendent of Insurance will permit this they will be able to elect a representative to safeguard their interests."

LAUNCH SINKS; FOUR LOST.

Three Others Rescued While Boating on the Mississippi at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Four men were drowned and three rescued from a similar fate to-day when a gasoline launch capsized in the Mississippi River. The dead are: John A. Dietrich, 16 years old; August Masterbrook, a grocer; Charles Tosch, a butcher, and an unidentified man.

The bodies were not recovered.

The accident is attributed to overcrowding of the launch. Seven men were seated in the stern and when it dipped under a wave all rushed forward and capsized it.

Storm at Toledo Makes Artificial Light Necessary During Rainfall.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 4.—an electric storm, followed by a deluge, struck this city just at noon to-day, doing much damage to both telephone and telegraph companies. One telegraph company reported that the high wind which accompanied the storm blew down a number of poles east of this city.

One house was struck by lightning, but no one was injured. The rain lasted for eleven minutes and in that time 1.54 inches fell. It was accompanied by hail, which damaged blooming plants. The temperature fell greatly during the progress of the storm.

The density of the clouds were so great that artificial lights were needed at midday.

MAY ABANDON TURIN FLIGHT.

Landing in Apennines Difficult—Beaumont Will Fly Anyhow.

ROME, June 4.—There is some talk of abandoning the last leg of the Paris-Rome-Turin race, owing to the difficulty in finding appropriate landing places in the Apennines. Beaumont, however, declares that he will make the flight to Turin, whether or not that portion of the race is officially eliminated.

According to the rules, the start from Rome may be made at any time before June 10 for the Rome-Turin section of the contest. Beaumont is in good condition for this flight, but Garros is still suffering severely from the injuries to his right shoulder.

Vedrine, the winner of the Paris-Madrid race, has sent a message from the French capital, saying that he hopes to fly to Rome, and that he expects to accomplish this flight in one day. He would then be ready to take part in the contest from Rome to Turin.

MEXICO CITY FEARS MADERIST INVASION

Lawlessness at Cuernavaca Likely to be Repeated at Capital if Asunsolo Comes.

WEALTHY SPANIARDS SLAIN

Refused to Obey Maderists—Rioting Goes on Throughout the Country—Seventy-three Killed at Leon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 4.—With riots taking place with alarming regularity throughout the republic and resulting in greater destruction and larger death lists than most of the actual battles of the rebellion, conditions are assuming a worse aspect than that before the signing of the peace treaty.

Details to-day from Leon, in Guanajuato, reduce the death list in yesterday's riots slightly from the first reports, but the dead are seventy-three, while more than a hundred persons are wounded as a result of several hours of fighting, that began at the jail and was waged through the streets of the business section of the city. No foreigners were among the killed or injured, the casualties being confined to the lower classes who made up the mob and to the jail guards and soldiers. It took the greatest effort on the part of Candido Navarro, the Maderist leader, to restore order. During the trouble several stores were sacked.

Alberto Robles Dominguez, Madero's representative here, in speaking of the matter to-day, said that he regretted the affair doubly, as it would tend to mar the pleasure of Madero's trip, since one of the important festivities had been arranged at Leon for Tuesday morning.

Bad Conditions in Cuernavaca.

Manuel Asunsolo, the Maderist leader in charge of the forces at Cuernavaca, who started for Mexico City with 5,000 men yesterday, ostensibly to take part in the reception to Madero and to guard him, had covered less than ten miles of the journey when he was recalled in haste to Cuernavaca to restore order.

Since its capture by the Maderists, the capital of Morelos, which for years has been Mexico City's week-end resort, has been on the verge of the horrors of mob rule. Despite all the encouraging statements from the Maderist leaders, the residents see every reason to fear an outbreak among the troops, among whom discipline is very lax. Soldiers hold up people in the streets and extort money from them, they enter the hotels and private residences and demand food and lodging. Persons are arrested and imprisoned without trial or hearings for weeks.

No Effort to Check Disease.

No effort has been made to clean the streets or dispose of the garbage, and the streets are piled with refuse and débris. No effort is made to quarantine smallpox and other diseases that are spreading among the troops. Hundreds of representative people have closed their houses and fled, leaving their properties at the mercy of the Maderists. Many of these homes have been broken open and occupied by the soldiers.

That such conditions should exist within four hours of Mexico City is considered an evidence of the weakness of the ad interim Government, and leads to the belief that a large percentage of the Maderist soldiers were Maderists only so long as there was loot and license under the shadow of the revolution. With the proposed concentration of the Maderist troops in this city it is feared that the lawlessness and violence which is going on in other places will begin here. Every influence is being used to keep the Maderist army out of the city.

Plot of Bandits Is Foiled.

The explanation to-day at the War Office of mysterious military movements last night discloses a clever plot to loot the rich suburb of Tlalpam. Learning of the coming of Asunsolo and the Cuernavaca Maderists, Anselmo Rascon, a bandit, who has risen during the unsettled conditions in the revolution, gathered 300 men in the Federal district and planned to enter Tlalpam in the guise of the advance guard of the Cuernavaca Maderists. After reaching the plaza in Tlalpam the men were to break into the stores and houses and get away before troops could be sent from Mexico City. News of the plan reached the War Office just in time for it to rush troops toward Tlalpam.

Then came a quick change. Before the forces reached Tlalpam advices by telephone told the authorities that the bandits, hearing of the troop movement, had hurriedly disbanded. Fearing that the Maderist forces would misunderstand the movement and learning that a force of 1,000 men, which Asunsolo had detached from his command before returning to Cuernavaca, was near, the War Department made great haste to get the Federals started back to the city before a misunderstanding should result in a conflict between the regulars and Maderists, between whom the most bitter enmity still exists.

Wealthy Young Spaniards Killed.

By the killing of Enrique del Rivero and perhaps the fatal wounding of his cousin, Emilio del Rivero, by a band of twelve Maderists, near Puebla yesterday, two members of a wealthy Spanish family have been added to the long list of victims of the revolution of their nationality. Men wearing the insignia of the Maderists rode up to the hacienda of Santa Anna on the outskirts of the town of Huejotzingo and demanded money and supplies. It happened that the two young men, who live in Puebla with their relatives, but who own the property, were at the hacienda. They went out to talk to the Maderists and refused to grant the demands. Thereupon the men tried to enter the house. Enrique del Rivero pulled a pistol and killed the leader. In the fight that followed three Maderists were killed. When they ran out of ammunition the young men tried to escape on horseback, but were followed. Enrique was killed, and there is little hope of the recovery of Emilio. The Spanish colony is again greatly wrought up over the incident.

Officials of the Post Office Department state that Ciudad Porfirio Diaz still retains that name and that no change has been suggested. This statement contradicts the announcement of the local Maderist officers, who say the name is now Piedras Negras.

Messages from Culiacan this morning to relatives from Gov. Diego Redo report that he is safe, and has not been imprisoned, although detained in the State palace awaiting the settlement of the present unrest.

A message received by the Minister of Justice to-day from Madero asks that the case of the American, W. F. Dunn, under arrest at Monterey on a charge of being implicated in a plot to assassinate Madero, be investigated quickly.

MADERO'S TRIUMPH BEGINS.

Thousands Cheer Him as He Passes Through Mexican Territory.

TORREON, Mexico, June 4.—The bursting of bombs, the firing of cannon, and the crack of musketry from the ranks of 5,000 former insurrecto soldiers, drawn up on both sides of the railroad track, welcomed Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and his party at noon to-day. Fully 20,000 residents of the town, including hundreds of Americans and other foreigners, participated in a huge demonstration.

Counting the throngs gathered at various stations en route to-day, Señor Madero addressed nearly 50,000 persons, whose shouts of "Viva, Madero!" still rang in the ears of the party to-night. The firing of salute, which had been growing more frequent as the party penetrated further into the hotbed of pro-Madero sentiment, caused a change in the schedule of the special train. Instead of proceeding directly to-night to Zacatecas, the train left Torreon at 9 o'clock and an hour later was sidetracked for the night. The trip south will be resumed at daybreak.

The change was made with the double purpose of giving the party an opportunity to sleep, and also of preventing some malevolent person from tossing bombs too near the cars.

It was a day of continuous demonstration for Senor Madero, and one which filled him with joy, particularly because it came from many of his friends in the district of San Pedro, Gomez Palacio and Torreon, who had been foremost in advocating the revolutionist cause.

At San Pedro, the home of Senor Madero, which was reached at 8 o'clock this morning, one of the most enthusiastic demonstrations of the day took place. As the special train pulled in about 1,000 insurrecto soldiers fired a salute. Senor Madero went to a grandstand a few yards from the train and an immense throng crowded every available space around it. After a few speeches the ceremonies were transferred to the balcony of a hotel in another part of the town. The streets were jammed and arches of flowers and flags adorned them.

After an hour's stop at San Pedro, where Señor Madero embraced scores of old friends, his mother and his two sisters joined the party. Other relatives, and likewise a number of political and military chiefs, now are aboard, so that the train is a moving celebration in itself.

The longest stay of the day, seven hours, was at Torreon, where a luncheon as well as a banquet was given by the city authorities to Señor Madero and his party.

The Mexican national hymn was played at nearly every station en route.

Señor Madero retired to-night fatigued from his exposure in the hot sun, while the members of his party made merry in their special cars.

Stops will be made at Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes to-morrow, and at Leon and San Juan del Rio Tuesday, the train arriving in Mexico City Wednesday morning.

REYES AGAIN IN MEXICO.

Arrives at Vera Cruz—Little Demonstration for Madero's Rival.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, June 4.—The war being over, constructively at least, the Presidential campaign may be said to have begun in Mexico to-day, when Gen. Bernardo Reyes, who was recalled from Europe for the purpose of aiding in the re-establishment of peace, arrived here by the steamer Fürst Bismarck from Havana.

While not as yet an avowed candidate for the Presidency, Gen. Reyes is certainly considered a receptive one. Undoubtedly his name will be on the ballot when the election is held. He is popular with the army and can rely politically on what remains of the Diaz machine.

His reception here to-day in a popular sense was not impressive, for the great mass of the people are Maderists in every bone and fibre. A special train arrived this morning from Mexico City with a delegation of prominent citizens, including representatives of the anti-re-electionist club, to meet the General. A military band and a score of officers in full uniform gathered on the wharf when the steamer was sighted, with a fringe of peons on the outskirts. The citizens of Vera Cruz, for the most part, stayed at home.

Gen. Reyes went immediately to a hotel, from the balcony of which he thanked the small crowd on the plaza below for the welcome extended to him. He is a small man, with long bayonet-shaped whiskers. His cheeks are ruddy and his eyes bright.

Efforts of the newspaper men to obtain his Presidential platform were eluded. He came home, he said, to use all his influence to further the work of restoring his country to a normal peace basis. That, he declared, was at present the overshadowing duty of every Mexican, great or small.

DIAZ'S VOYAGE RESUMED.

Visited by Mexican Minister and Cuban Officials at Havana.

HAVANA, June 4.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz, who arrived here last evening on the steamer Ypiranga from Vera Cruz, resumed his voyage this morning, the ship proceeding for Havre shortly before noon.

At the last moment Gen. Diaz received a visit of farewell from the Mexican Minister, Señor Godoy, and representatives of the Cuban Government. He declined to receive the press, sending a message by his secretary that existing conditions rendered impossible any expression of opinion by him concerning the Mexican situation. He merely desired to say that he was greatly gratified at the warmth of his reception at Havana.

BURGLAR TOOK NOTHING.

Furniture Disarranged, and a Desk Emptied by Jersey City "Raffles."

Jersey City's "Raffles" performed another exploit some time before daylight yesterday. He entered the house of William Reed, at 76 Fairview Avenue, at a rear window, carried a writing desk from a front room into the dining room in the rear, emptied its contents on the floor, examined the silverware in the dining room, but took nothing.

The intrusion was discovered at breakfast time. Mr. Reed's house is near the boulevard and in the same section of the Bergen district in which a score of residences have been broken into and robbed of nothing worth speaking of. From one house a cheap necklace was taken from a chiffonier on which was $1,500 worth of jewelry and from another residence a well-worn raincoat was taken.

GOT EXCISE PLACES BY POLITICAL PULL

How Platt, Woodruff, Griscom, and Parsons Helped Is Revealed in Their Own Letters.

MADE PUBLIC BY FARLEY

New Commissioner's Reason for Getting Rid of Republicans—Handy Around Election Time.

ALBANY, June 4.—In answer to recent statements made by representatives of the Civil Service Reform Association, that the special agents of his department were appointed without regard to politics, State Commissioner of Excise William W. Farley has transmitted to the State Civil Service Commission copies of letters received at the department since its inception from prominent Republican leaders in the State, urging the appointment of special agents, and asking that they be assigned to certain localities for political service.

At the recent hearing before the State Civil Service Commission on the request of the department to have the excise agents placed in the exempt class, Commissioner Farley stated that the employes of the department now under civil service rules obtained their places through political influence, and have been retained in the service though incompetent by reason of political services rendered.

Commissioner Farley stated that such assertions were based among other things on certain letters on file in his office. The representative of the Civil Service Reform Association declared that these letters should be filed with the commission instead of being quoted from, and that the Commissioner agreed to comply with his request.

The correspondence shows that political leaders became active in behalf of the agents as soon as the department started, in 1896. The late United States Senator Thomas C. Platt, ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., State Senator W. W. Armstrong, former Speaker of the Assembly Fremont Cole, former Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee Lloyd C. Griscom, former Senator and now Supreme Court Justice Alfred R. Page, former Chairman of the Republican State Committee Timothy L. Woodruff, and others are among those who sought favors from the department.

Senator Platt, under date of Nov. 13, 1896, wrote:

> Gardiner C. Hibbard, special agent, is at present detailed for duty in Queens County. He is a good man and a very discreet man, and I think it would be desirable in every way that he should continue where he is. I hope you will find it consistent to comply with my wish in this matter.

Former Speaker Cole, under date of Sept. 6, 1896, wrote as follows regarding the appointment of M. W. Johnston:

> While I recognize the fact that, theoretically, no distinction is made between applicants on political grounds, I recognize the fact also that the natural sympathy of so good a Republican as yourself would be more readily extended to one of your kind, and you will pardon me for presuming to assure you that no better, truer, or more unwavering Republican lives than Mr. Johnston.

The late Speaker of the Assembly, S. Fred Nixon, under date of Jan. 29, 1903, wrote as follows regarding the appointment of Mr. Frank of Jamestown a special agent:

> I am under the impression now that I will want this appointment when his name is reached.

Regarding the appointment of George F. O'Neil of New York as a special agent, Lloyd C. Griscom, under date of Nov. 30, 1910, wrote as follows:

> If there is any vacancy requiring the appointment of a special Inspector, I should be very glad if you would consider Mr. O'Neil before you determine upon the person to fill such vacany. Such action on your part will be greatly appreciated by me.

George D. Chichester of Poughkeepsie, a former special agent, sought the influence of State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff in 1897. He wrote as follows to Mr. Woodruff:

> Should I be so fortunate as to "land," I will endeavor to do my duty in such a way as to meet your approval and that of the Commissioner.

Mr. Woodruff wrote to the department in Mr. Chichester's behalf and said:

> I hope you can make the appointment very soon.

When the appointment was made he replied:

> I thank you very much for the appointment of Mr. Chichester as special agent.

Former Senator W. W. Armstrong of Rochester on Oct. 18, 1907, sent the following to the department:

> I want to ask you if you will have Inspector McPhillips returned here and kept here until after election. We will appreciate it if you can.

On Sept. 22, 1906, Herbert Parsons, former Chairman of the New York Republican County Committee, telegraphed to the department as follows:

> Can H. C. Adee be excused from duty for some days?

The excuse was granted, in order that Mr. Adee might attend the Republican Convention at Saratoga.

On Sept. 29, 1908, William Barnes, Jr., sent the following letter to the department:

> One of your special agents, Jacob Blatner, is an old personal friend of mine and located in the western part of the State. I think it would be of value to send him to New York.

The request was granted.

Former Senator Alfred R. Page, now a Supreme Court Justice, on July 24, 1906, wrote:

> I have not yet heard that anything has been done in the matter of Charles H. Smith. It is very important that he should be reinstated and employed in some capacity in the department. It will have an effect that is very desirable in the primary contest that is now going on in the Thirty-first Assembly District. I hope that the matter can be attended to immediately.

In urging the appointment of Charles W. Wasson as a special agent, former Congressman J. Sloat Fassett wrote:

> His political affiliations as well as his character, activity, and capacity entitle him to any consideration you may be able to extend.

On Nov. 16, 1908, Mr. Fassett again wrote the department, as follows:

> The Excise Department is possessed of tremendous power, and that is one reason why I am glad it did not fall into Democratic hands at this election.

Letters on file in the department show that the special agents made requests to be assigned to localities for political purposes. The following letter from Special Agent E. W. Steele, written Oct. 12, 1908, is a specimen:

> Gov. Hughes is to speak in Plattsburg Oct. 9, 1908. While at home lately I looked the situation over and believe by a little work I can win from 25 to 50 votes for the whole Republican ticket from the Prohibitionists in our county, and maybe more. The people are well pleased with Section 31, L. T. law, and I propose to advise them it is not safe to run the risk of what the Democrats might do with same if in power. I am deeply interested in the re-election of Gov. Hughes, and shall pay my respects of my own free will and accord to Republican Headquarters here as soon as my next check comes, and to carry out my plans for Clinton County should be in Plattsburg Oct. 19, 1908, so as to have my daughter, who is a stenographer, take down points of the Governor's speech for me. Her husband is Prof. H. Clay Niles, Principal of commercial department of high school and a Democrat, but will stand by me this year. General excise work in Clinton County from Oct. 19, 1908, would let me meet my Prohibition friends. I do not ask this, but merely submit the same as personal and ask you to return this letter to me unanswered so I can destroy it.

Commissioner Farley has discharged a number of excise agents, and they have carried their fight to the courts.

CORPORATIONS TO PAY MORE.

Receipts from Special Tax Expected to be Greater This Year.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Supplementary estimates of the Government's receipts from the corporation tax payable all this month indicate the revenue from that source will exceed the first prediction.

The assessments for the first four months of the present calendar year are more than $28,500,000, which is considerably more than the assessment for the first six calendar months of 1910. Pennsylvania, New York, and Illinois continue to lead the list with the heaviest assessments.

To all taxes which have not been paid by June 30 a penalty will be added.

SUGAR FRAUDS HIS UNDOING.

Philadelphia Weigher Suspended for Impeding Inquiry, Says Official.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—That "the suspension of Henry Clay Marshall, United States Weigher, was due to his impeding the investigation into alleged sugar frauds at this port by withholding facts within his knowledge" was officially announced here to-day by Special Agent Garbarino of the Department of Justice.

Garbarino stated that he had been authorized to make this statement at a conference with United States Attorney J. Whitaker Thompson and Henry N. Arnold, special Assistant Attorney General, who has been conducting the investigation into alleged customs frauds before a special grand jury here. He refused to amplify the statement.

The other Government officials named also refused to discuss the subject. District Attorney Thompson, however, admitted that Garbarino's statement was authorized. The investigation will be resumed before the grand jury to-morrow morning.

KILLED AFTER BALL GAME.

Argument Regarding Its Merits Ends in a Spectator Being Stabbed.

John Cronin of 51 Union Avenue, Belleville, N. J., was stabbed in a fight which followed a baseball game late Saturday afternoon in that town. He was hurried to the City Hospital in Newark, where he died. Six prisoners were arrested, three by the Newark and three by the Belleville police.

Cronin was a spectator at a game in Belleville between semi-professional nines. After the game Cronin and several men started to walk to Newark. At the Mount Prospect Avenue bridge an argument arose and in the fight following Cronin's throat was cut.

HONEY IN BOARDER'S HAT.

Bees Deposit 12 Pounds in Peach Basket Headgear Abandoned by Owner.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 4.—A peach basket hat abandoned by a Summer boarder in the Lackawack Valley in Ulster County furnished considerable excitement to John Satterlee, a farmer near Sundown, yesterday. His little girls found the hat early in the Spring and mounted it on a high fence post. Yesterday when trying to take the hat off the post a swarm of wild bees surged out of it and the children were badly stung. They told their father about the bees and he started to hive them.

The upper part of the hat was filled with a solid block of wax an inch thick, and from this hung the chambers of comb several inches thick filled with white clover honey. There was more than twelve pounds of it.

WAITS DEATH IN EASY CHAIR.

Woman Turns On the Gas and Is Found Dead by Her Little Son.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, June 4.—Anna Dealy, wife of D. Edward Dealy, a prominent resident of Rochelle Park, sat in an easy chair beneath a big chandelier in her bedroom, the jets of which she had turned on, and awaited death. Coroner James H. Brennan decided she must have been insane. Three times before she had tried to end her life by gas, but each time she was discovered in time.

Mrs. Dealy was the mother of five children, and it was one of her little sons who discovered her dead body. He had returned to the house after playing with several other boys, and ran to his mother's room to kiss her. He found her dead. Servants tried to revive her in vain. The servants said that when Mrs. Dealy went to her room she said she was going to lie down to rest.

Dealy is a broker in New York City, and has one of the finest homes in one of the most exclusive residential sections of New Rochelle. He is a member of the New Rochelle Yacht Club, President of the Organized Charities Society of New Rochelle, and a Director of the New Rochelle Hospital Association and of the Colburn Memorial Home for the Aged. He was leader of the Democratic Party in New Rochelle for several years.

Mrs. Dealy was prominent socially, and entertained frequently. Her two elder daughters, Amie and Anna, took prominent parts in the musical comedy, "The Army Post," produced by Les Hiboux Club on Thursday and Friday nights. They are members of the Junior Auxiliary of the New Rochelle Hospital, and were to take parts in the fête of nations in aid of the hospital on the Rochelle Park lawn this month.

Taft's Gift to Sunday Scholars.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Each boy and girl participating in children's day exercises at All Souls' Unitarian Church to-day received a carnation with President Taft's compliments. With the flowers the President sent a cordial note to the Sunday School, regretting that his absence in Chicago made it impossible for him to be present.

SAY WILSON LEADS HARMON FOR 1912

Cincinnati Democrats Report Sentiment as More Favorable to New Jersey Governor.

DISLIKE HARMON'S POLICY

Former Mayor Dempsey and Leader Reynolds Say Boom Is Weak and Criticise Governor's Chances.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 4.—Several prominent Democrats of Cincinnati say that Gov. Harmon's chances for the Presidential nomination are very slim, and that they are getting worse as the weeks roll by. Even Mike Devanney, who is one of Harmon's closest conferrees, and who has been to Minnesota to look over the ground, says that the sentiment there is all for Wilson, with a scattered bit for Harmon.

In Cincinnati the men who are most outspoken against his candidacy are former Mayor Dempsey and Councilman Hubbard Reynolds. The latter is the Democratic leader in Council.

"Much as the local Democrats are attempting to disguise the fact, Gov. Harmon's boom for the Presidency is one of the sickest things seen here for many moons," said Reynolds to-day.

"His negative policy has hurt him immensely and the star of Gov. Woodrow Wilson is now in its ascendancy in Cincinnati. Harmon always holds the people at bay in his conferences and never, not even once, during his governorship has he given them the slightest idea of his intentions in that office."

Former Mayor Dempsey says that if Harmon is chosen it will be good-night to the Democrats' chances in the election.

Harmon's strongest hold in the local Democratic organization is the loyalty of Lewie Bernard. Just now Bernard is down and out politically and the party here is ruled by the Peck-Nocter-Hunt organization. John and Mike Devanney, who are in his confidence in Columbus, are both beholden to Cox, the Republican leader—John for his position in Columbus, and Mike for his job as one of the officials of Cox's Cincinnati trust company.

WANT REFERENDUM IN OHIO.

Progressives Form League—Hope to Change State Legislative Methods.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 4.—To secure a new constitution for the State of Ohio, which will provide for applying the initiative and referendum to the Legislature of the State and all counties and municipalities, is the object of the Progressive Constitution League of Ohio, organized here to-day by nearly 1,000 representatives of labor unions, farmers' associations, civic clubs, and reform associations.

Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo was elected President of the league. Resolutions were passed recommending that a method be provided for amending the constitution by initiative petitions and empowering an Executive Committee to appoint organizers in every county, who will federate labor and other organizations for the purpose of electing delegates to the constitutional convention to be held in January next.

A clause in the resolutions reads: "Whereas the special interests have already organized for the election of delegates who will attempt to perpetuate the rule of their franchise holding corporations, we pledge ourselves to oppose all plans of said special interests."

RUSH TO SEE WILSON ON WASHINGTON VISIT

tion that I have to it is that it does not go far enough. I believe it would have been better if they had put wool on the free schedule and made a greater reduction in the rates on woolen goods than they did. A Democrat can criticise it for not going far enough while rejoicing that it went as far as it did."

WORK AHEAD FOR WILSON.

Governor Still Has to Pass on 25 or 30 Bills and Hold Many Hearings.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 4.—Gov. Wilson is expected at the State House again to-morrow following his month's trip to the West and South. His first work will be to dispose of the twenty-five or thirty bills which he has left over from the legislative session. Hearings will be given on the most important of these.

Church and temperance people are urging the veto of two liquor bills. One of these measures permits wholesalers to sell in counties other than the one in which they are licensed. The temperance people declare this will make "wet" all of the "dry" territory of the State, including Ocean Grove and other camp meeting resorts. The other bill makes it a misdemeanor for a boy to misrepresent his age in order to obtain intoxicating liquors. Under the present law the liquor dealer rather than the boy is penalized, and the temperance people declare that under the proposed regulation it will be practically impossible to obtain the conviction of any one for selling liquor to minors.

The labor people of the State are urging the veto of the bill abolishing the present form of convict labor contracts and requiring the employment of convicts in the making of articles needed by the State or any political division thereof. It is contended that such a law will prove very disastrous to free labor.

Another bill attracting much attention is that passed at the instance of Assemblyman Griffin of Hudson County, providing for the election of County Committeemen every two years, instead of annually, as is provided in the Geran Election act. This bill is desired by the "big six" of Hudson County Democrats, but is opposed by the Republicans of the county and by the Republican progessives of Essex County. In view of this opposition, which is being led by State Assessor George L. Record, it is believed the Governor will veto the measure.

GOV. WILSON HOME, PLEASED.

Found Principles and Men Above Parties on Western Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, June 4.—Gov. Wilson returned to Trenton at midnight to-night from his month's "getting-acquainted" trip West and South. He went at once to the Hotel Sterling, where he had engaged rooms, as his Princeton apartments are closed. The Governor came to Trenton from Washington, where he spent the day with United States Senators and Congressmen discussing his trip. The Governor said he had had a most delightful and interesting time of it.

"I was most impressed," he continued, "with the similarity of the movement in politics on both sides of the continent. Oregon is no more progressive than we are in New Jersey. The people everywhere are considering principles and men, with little or no regard for parties."

He added that he [illegible] had time to study political met[illegible] in the Far West very carefully, but [illegible] his impressions by talking with all c[illegible] of people. He found little opposit[illegible] Canadian reciprocity, which he fa[illegible] said he was glad to be back, ad[illegible] he was not contemplating any [illegible] trips. He will spend most of this [illegible] Trenton, and then join his family [illegible] Connecticut. Early in July he will go to [illegible], to remain until September.

BROOKLYN WORKS TAFT HARD

It Expects Half a Dozen Speeches and Miles of Travel from Him on Thursday.

President Taft's speed and stamina as a traveler will be put to a severe test when he comes to town on Thursday to review Brooklyn's great army of Sunday school children in their annual parade. Arrangements were completed yesterday for giving the President a strenuous day when he visits the borough.

On his arrival at the Pennsylvania Station in Manhattan Mr. Taft will be met by a delegation of Brooklyn citizens. Mayor Gaynor may be of the number. The President will be rushed across the Williamsburg Bridge to the Hanover Club in Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. There he will hold a five-minute reception, meeting the Sunday school officials of the Eastern District. While on his way to the clubhouse he will be greeted at the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza by Borough President Steers and a committee.

From the Hanover Club the President will go to the Union League Club, Grant Square, where he will be a guest of honor with Gov. Dix at a luncheon given by William Berri. After the luncheon Mr. Taft will visit the Tompkins Avenue Congregational, Nostrand Avenue Methodist, and Bedford Presbyterian Churches, at each of which he will make a brief address.

The President is due to reach Prospect Park at 3:30 o'clock to review the Prospect Park division of the parade. From there he will go to Tompkins Park, Putnam Avenue, Stuyvesant Heights, and the Bushwick sections, where he will review other divisions. He will also drive through Flatbush, Borough Park, Parkville, and Bay Ridge, that he may be greeted by the marching children in those districts.

Mr. Taft will then become the guest of the Crescent Athletic Club at its country place on the Shore Road, Bay Ridge. There he will see a lacrosse game between the Crescents and the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association. A rapid-fire entertainment programme will follow. At 6:30 o'clock the President will board a revenue cutter at the Crescent dock and be taken to Manhattan. In the evening he will be a guest at a dinner at the Hotel Astor.

Gov. Dix will review the parade of the Eastern District and other divisions of the Sunday school children, and later will be a guest at the Hanover Club.

LIKE EFFECT OF TAFT'S PLEA.

President's Friends Think His Reciprocity Speech Will Bear Fruit.

PITTSBURG, June 4.—President Taft, on his way back from Chicago to Washington, passed through Pittsburg to-night. Mr. Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, who accompanied him to Chicago, did not return with the President. Mr. Taft is due to reach Washington early to-morrow.

Friends of the President who came East with him were greatly pleased to-day at the way in which his speech on Canadian reciprocity at Chicago has been received. The frank explanation which the President gave of his understanding of the forces which are at work to defeat the treaty, they believe, will have a decidedly beneficial effect. The President will get into the fight again to-morrow to have the bill reported to the Senate unamended by the Finance Committee.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., Mr. Taft listened to the singing of several German songs by a local society that came down to the train to greet him, and at Wooster, Ohio, he told the crowd that he would like to speak, but could not because it was Sunday.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 4.—President Taft has set Friday, June 23, as the day on which he will be present at Fall River's cotton centennial celebration. He will come here on the yacht Mayflower from New York, and will return there the same night.

THINK MAN WAS MURDERED.

Body Found on the Astor Estate in Westchester County.

The body of a man, apparently an Italian about 30 years old and of the laboring class, was found in the fields of the Astor estate at Tremont Avenue and Watson's Lane, Westchester, yesterday afternoon by a young man and a girl who were picking wild flowers. The man's throat was cut.

Albert Billing, the young man who discovered the body and who lives at 177th Street and Bronx Park Avenue, hunted up Policeman Hildgeman of the Westchester Station and took him to where the body lay. The policeman got help, and the body was taken to the Westchester Police Station, where Coroner Schwannecke was summoned. The Coroner gave it as his opinion that the man had been lured to the lonely spot where his body was found and there murdered. He said the man had not been dead more than a few hours when his body was found.

Coroner Schwannecke based his opinion on the fact that no money was found in the man's pockets, although two photographs of himself and several letters had been left. These letters indicated that the man might be Arturo Carallo of 348 East 106th Street. One of them appeared to have been written by Carallo to a girl, and to instruct her in the future to address him at the 106th Street address.

Another of the letters seemed to be from the man's parents in Italy, although neither the Coroner nor any of the men in the station were able to translate the letters fully. This letter, as the Coroner made shift to translate it, told of the joy of the parents at the approaching home-coming of their son. It was partly on this letter that the Coroner was moved to suspect murder.

The Coroner said that the man probably had worked here as a laborer—the condition of his hands indicated this—and saved money, enough perhaps to allow him to live comfortably in Italy. Then he had written home telling of his approaching return, which probably was to have been within the next few days.

His success in saving enough money to return home would certainly be known among all his acquaintances, argued the Coroner, and it was not difficult to believe that there were men among those who knew him ready to lure him away to a lonely place and murder him for his money.

$80,000 SHORTAGE IN COLLEGE FUNDS

Deficit Found at Minnesota University, Whose Accountant Is Under Arrest.

BOOKS IN HOPELESS TANGLE

No Separate Accounts Kept and Expenditures Made When Funds Were Not Available.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4.—As a result of the investigation of Trevor Arnett, Controller of the University of Chicago, who has been studying the University of Minnesota's financial system for the Board of Regents, it has been learned that the university has a deficit of $80,000.

Conditions revealed by Mr. Arnett's investigation have been made public, following the alleged robbery of Joseph D. Bren, University treasurer, who is in the city jail, following his story to the police that he was held up on Friday in a secluded spot on the campus and robbed of $13,000, which he held in trust for university students. Because of Bren's arrest a personal investigation of the University finances will be made by President George E. Vincent and Controller George H. Hayes, to begin to-morrow. The examination will follow a series of conferences between University and State authorities.

Bren has stated to county and city officials that he kept no separate fund accounts. Controller Hayes says it will take a month to check up the university funds and ascertain the exact financial status of the items over which the accountant had jurisdiction.

For weeks Mr. Arnett, employed by the Regents at the suggestion of Dr. Vincent, has been at work on the university books. His work has not been completed, but the financial system at the university is to be revolutionized. The overdraft of $80,000 in the current expense fund has come largely in the last three years. Reports made by the public examiner department have shown that there were overdrafts, but the examiner has not called special attention to the fact, and the sum has been steadily growing until Dr. Vincent and the Regents, studying the situation and amazed at the condition of the finances, have determined on a new era at the university.

Not only have there been overdrafts, but the books of the university have been kept unsystematically. Funds have not been separated and itemized. The exact condition of the current expense fund is known to no one. Requisitions for supplies have been made by department heads without a thought as to money available, and expenditures have been authorized when available funds were exhausted.

HAPPY BUNCH NOT SO HAPPY.

Two Members Get Back from an Outing Sadly Out of Repair.

The Happy Bunch, a Jersey City outing club, set out in the steamer Atlas and two barges yesterday, bound for Orchard Grove, L. I., and none was happier than Charles Craff and Edward Mackey of the Jersey City police. These two returned last evening so patched and bandaged that it seemed as though, in their two persons, they had opposed all the lawlessness in the world. They rather thought they had, and here is their story as they tell it:

The grove, it seems, was also the goal of the Bergen Athletic Club of New York, which has a large Italian membership. One of these men was operating a "sweat board" game and got into such a quarrel with some of the Happy Bunch patrons that he fled incontinently and took refuge on the Atlas. There the two policemen offered to take him back to his own friends. Perhaps these friends misunderstood the kindly motives of the escorts. At all events, the police were beset in such fashion that they were soon unconscious and badly cut about the head when rescued by their own outing party.

After being patched up at the Flushing Hospital the policemen sought to have their assailants arrested, and were pained to learn that the only constable assigned to that part of Nassau County was taking his day off.

POLICE KEEP AUTOS AWAY.

Dying Child Needed Quiet, and They Try to Save Her.

A five-year-old girl, ill with diphtheria in Jamaica, was the cause of thousands of automobilists on Long Island yesterday having to change their routes. Her father had asked the police to permit no automobilists to pass his house, as the noise so distressed her the doctors said it might result in her death. Accordingly, traffic men sent the automobilists to other streets.

The child was Florence, daughter of Henry Rohr of Bergen and Hillside Avenues. The child was passing through the crisis of the disease yesterday, and the doctor feared noises might kill her.

IN NEW JERSEY.

BAYONNE.—Recorder Mara sent yesterday Grace Saunders, aged 30, of Hoboken Avenue, Jersey City, to jail for thirty days for smoking a cigarette on the street. The woman was followed by a crowd of children until arrested.

BAYONNE.—The crabbing season in Newark Bay, off this city, opened yesterday, and hundreds enjoyed the sport. Two men caught twenty-eight crabs within an hour.

BAYONNE.—More than 150 Hungarian, Russian, and Polish men, women, and children visited City Park to-day and started to tear limbs from the trees to decorate their homes in celebration of Pentecost. Scores of the trees were ruined before the police arrived. Thirteen men were arested.

HACKENSACK.—Frank R. Long of the New Jersey Hudson River Bridge Commission is critically ill in his home in Prospect Avenue, Hackensack. It was said to-day that his recovery was doubtful.

NEWARK.—A bronze tablet was unveiled yesterday in the Calvary Presbyterian Church, in Newark, in commemoration of the late Rev. Dr. Isaiah Hopwood, who was the rector for thirty-seven years. The ceremony was attended by many clergymen of Newark and near-by cities. The tablet is erected on the west wall of the church, to the left of the pulpit. It was unveiled by Dr. Hopwood's grandson, Isaiah Bardsley Hopwood, and addresses were made by the Rev. Samuel J. Skevington, rector of the Clinton Avenue Baptist Church; the Rev. Louis Shreve Osborne, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Dr. Ford C. Ottman of Stamford, Conn.

NEWARK.—Thieves broke into the St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church yesterday and stole a gold luna, valued at several hundred dollars. The theft was discovered by the Rev. George Corrigan, the rector of the church, when he was about to celebrate early mass.

ORANGE.—Praise for Taft and Carnegie, and endorsement of the movement toward international peace were given by the New England Society last night in the adoption of a resolution offered by Frederick W. Kelsey. The resolution urges the prompt adoption of treaties with France, England, Germany, and other nations. Copies will be sent to President Taft, the Secretary of State, Andrew Carnegie, Senators, and Congressmen from New Jersey.

HACKETTSTOWN.—The new law requiring all places of business closed on Sunday, was strictly enforced yesterday. Barber shops and candy stores are included in the scope of the measure. Mayor Smith succeeded Mayor Shafer C. Sigler, who committed suicide because he could not achieve that degree of Sunday observance for the town. After his death the Common Council passed an ordinance such as he had asked for in vain.

ROOSEVELT FOR A NEW LAW.

Says Present Act Cannot Be Amended—Wants Drastic Reform.

Theodore Roosevelt has in the Outlook an article entitled "The Standard Oil Decision—and After"—in which he says in part:

"The decision of the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case has, of course, brought out many proposals for altering or amending the anti-trust law. There are two classes of men whose respective attitudes in reference to this law are, in theory, diametrically opposed, and in results almost identically the same; those men who wish no interference whatever by the Government with any combinations or corporations, and those men who, under the plea of being against all combinations and big corporations, propose absolutely to prohibit their existence.

"In theory these two sets of men are diametrically opposed. In practice the activities of the second class, who wish totally to prohibit all corporations, can result only in practically fulfilling the wish of the first class by leaving the present situation fundamentally unchanged.

"Actual experience with the anti-trust law, extending over many years, has shown that it does not and can not by any possibility be made to do what the extreme antagonists of corporations desire or assert that they desire. As construed by the Supreme Court, the anti-trust law accomplishes a certain amount of good, and it has been a good thing to obtain the decision that has been obtained against the Standard Oil Company. But as a means of effectually grappling on behalf of the whole people with the problem created by what are commonly called trusts—that is, of enormous combinations of corporate capital engaged in inter-State business—the anti-trust law is radically and vitally defective, and any effort to strengthen it would be worse than futile, and would result only in prolonging the time during which the corporations will escape control of the kind demanded in the interests of the people.

"The anti-trust law was framed on the theory that it was possible to turn back the wheels of progress in industrialism, and in an age of combination to put a stop to the combinations under which business was carried on. While, as I have said, the anti-trust law, as now construed, does accomplish a certain amount of good, it was out of the question that, framed as it was, in such a spirit and with such a purpose, it could achieve in any but the smallest degree what its framers hoped; and any effort to achieve this purpose simply by making the law more stringent will result either in nothing or in changing the situation for the worse.

"What is urgently needed is the enactment of drastic and far-reaching legislation which shall put the great inter-State business corporations of the type of the Standard Oil Company, the Sugar Trust, the Steel Trust, and the like, at least as completely under the control and regulation of the Government in each and every respect as the inter-State railways are now put.

"To break up the Standard Oil Company, as the recent decision has broken it up, does a certain amount of good; but it does not do anything like the amount of good that would be achieved from the standpoint of the public, if the proper governmental body were given the same supervision and control over it as the Inter-State Commerce Commission has established over certain of the railways of the country. It may well be that, in the end, Government control of these great Inter-State corporations may have to go much further than is indicated by the present Government control over the railways; but, in any event, the only possible satisfactory method of dealing with these great corporations of a monopolistic trend which are not railways is to follow the lines along which the Nation has gone in dealing with those of them which are railways, altering and developing the policy as conditions and events shall justify.

"Our prime object must be to have the regulation accomplished by continuous administrative action, and not by necessarily intermittent lawsuits."

DUBOIS OUT AGAINST BRYAN.

Says Democrats Should Avoid Him Either as Candidate or Boss.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Former Senator Frederick T. Dubois of Idaho, speaking of the recent attempt of Mr. Bryan to dictate the policy of the Democratic majority of the House of Representatives, said to-day:

"Mr. Bryan has never been fortunate in his selection of opportunities to dictate to Congress. Had it not been for his presence and insistence the country would not now have the Philippines. He indulged in small politics then, and was practicing small politics in his endeavor to commit his party to the doctrine of 'free raw material.'

"The entire West, from the Allegheny Mountains to the Pacific Ocean, wants to break away from the Republican Party. There is no place for the people of that section to go, except to the Democratic Party, and they will support the Democratic Party in the coming National election if allowed to do so. These people are not free traders and very much less are they in favor of free raw material and a duty on the articles manufactured from such raw material. The Democratic Party could not elect a member of Congress from the Rocky Mountain or Pacific Coast States on such a platform. The people are in favor of a substantial, fair, and consistent reduction in the tariff all along the line. They favor the Democratic doctrine of a tariff for revenue only, which means, of necessity, incidental protection.

"The trouble with Mr. Bryan is, he has become an autocrat. He will not brook opposition or discussion. To be his friend you must accept his judgment without question down to the smallest detail. The party cannot win with Bryan, either as its candidate or boss, and it had better take advantage of the issue now raised between him and the Democrats of the House, to make it plain that he will not be either."

JOSTLED BANK DEPOSITORS.

Three Men Arrested in Wall Street Believed to be Old Offenders.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty appeared in the Tombs Court yesterday when three men, said by the police to have records, were arraigned before Magistrate Steinert. The men were arrested Saturday in the financial district after Detectives Miller, Thompson, and Yorke had seen them, the detectives say, jostling persons in the doorways of banks.

W. C. Paxton of 82 Wall Street had complained to the police that he was jostled in an elevator in his building on March 9 last and afterward found that a wallet with $535 had been taken from his pocket. Magistrate Steinert held the men for a hearing to-day, when Mr. Paxton will be in court to see if he can identify them.

The prisoners said they were James Hendricks of Mills Hotel No. 3, William Barrett of Chicago, and John Drew, who refused to give an address.

LODGE EXPLAINS HIS RECIPROCITY VIEWS

Against All Hostile Amendments, in Which He Doesn't Include His Own and Root's.

WANTS FISHERIES PROTECTED

President Taft Confident of Getting the Agreement Through the Senate in Unhampered Form.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—In response to resolutions of inquiry as to his attitude, adopted recently at home, Senator Lodge to-day, in a telegram to Henry M. Whitney of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, set forth his position on reciprocity. Only yesterday Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives admonished Mr. Lodge that he had been elected on a reciprocity platform and that now, if ever, was the time for him to hold up the President's hands and not obstruct his bill by insidious amendments. His telegram said:

> Your telegram received. My views are the same as explained to you and others last Winter. I shall vote for the reciprocity agreement. I shall vote against all hostile amendments, or against any amendment which would endanger the acceptance of the agreement by Canada.
> I shall vote for the Root amendment, because it makes the bill conform to the agreement submitted by the President to Congress and the bill now pending in the Canadian Parliament. As the President said in his speech in Chicago, the House bill is not in exact conformity with the agreement. The House amended the agreement by omitting one clause. The Root amendment in effect restores this clause.
>
> The amendment I have planned to offer in regard to the fisheries is not intended to change the terms of the agreement. It is a new section, enlarging the mutual abolition of duties to the mutual abolition of bounty, fees, and privileges.
>
> As the agreement now stands our fishermen would have to compete with the bona fide subsidized industry. This will be impossible, and would mean the extinction of our deep sea fisheries, which would be a misfortune in itself and injury to the consumers. This is true of no other industry affected. But I shall not offer even this amendment unless I am satisfied it will not endanger the passage or the acceptance of the bill.

Senator Lodge sent a similar message to the editor of a Boston newspaper.

Though both Mr. Root and Mr. Lodge have taken the position that it simply returns to the real text of the agreement entered into between the two Governments, the Root amendment nullifies all the progress toward lower tariff made by the agreement in regard to paper and wood pulp, and the President realizes that such a change in the House bill will arouse bitter opposition in the House, if it does not cause an indefinite deadlock.

In spite of Mr. Root's refusal to return to his support of the Administration and Mr. Lodge's threatened bolt, the President, however, is very optimistic in regard to his ability to take the agreement through the Senate without amendment. That success will at once obviate the dangerous negotiations involved in a conference between the two Houses and will send the bill up for his signature at once. The President's speech in Chicago last night before the Western Economic Society was clear on this point, and he made it plain that after a study of the figures supplied by the Tariff Board he saw no reason for continuing the present high protection accorded the American paper manufacturers.

Mr. Root seems definitely committed to the amendment he has offered, but there is still hope that Mr. Lodge may return to the fold. He has long stood out prominently as a friend of the Administration, regardless of who headed the ticket, and it is suggested that he will not willingly lose that coveted distinction.

WOMAN ACCUSES BROKER.

Says He Obtained $1,500 from Her on a Promise of Marriage.

Louis Goldman of 1,349 East New York Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested last night while visiting friends in Miller Avenue. A charge of grand larceny was made by May Floman of 257 Henry Street, Manhattan. It is an old romance that she sets forth in her complaint, for she accuses Goldman of having fraudulently obtained money from her on the promise of marriage.

The sum named is $1,500, and it happened, she says, some time between July 13 and Aug. 11, 1909. Goldman said he was a broker.

WENT "FISHING" FOR RATS.

Negro Boy's Sport Rids New Rochelle City Hall of Its Pest.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., June 4.—For the first time in fifty years the City Hall of New Rochelle is free of rats. Mayor Colwell, the members of the City Council, and other city officials, including the police, to-day thanked eleven-year-old Harrison Lee, a little mulatto boy, who was taken from his home in Baltimore by two negroes and deserted here two weeks ago, for the riddance.

The boy was picked up by Patrolman Bussard one night, and the police kept him until Charles H. Warner of Yonkers, Superintendent of the Westchester County Children's Society, was making up his mind what to do with him. A few days ago the boy watched the City Hall cat trying in vain to catch rats as big as itself.

Rigging up a fishing tackle, baited with cheese, the boy poked it down the rat hole and for three days fished for rats. He caught sixty-seven of all sizes and ages until yesterday. A big fellow took bait, hook, sinker, line, and all.

Last night Harrison placed a piece of limburger cheese near the rat hole and waited with a club. About 1 o'clock this morning the big rat appeared and Harrison finished him. Not a rat has been seen in the City Hall to-day. The youngster was taken to the Colored Orphan Asylum at Riverdale to-day.

It is a day of extraordinary economies in Women's apparel, a day when money enjoys a tremendous increase in its buying power. You probably need nothing so much at this season as a new tailored suit to replace the one you have worn for several months past; and a smart and jaunty coat will make cool evenings delightful, whether in the city, at the shore or in the hills. And it is these very garments which are today marshalled under new prices at Saks' to give impetus to selling. Reductions are liberal in the extreme, in spite of the fact that Saks prices are always conservative in the first place. Fourth floor

The Fur Question!

How typical of life is the fur coat that hangs disconsolate in a wardrobe! How many of us, moth-eaten from our own neglect, hang disconsolate in the Wardrobe of Time? How many of us might well imitate the example of most furs and cool off in cold storage, when the heat of the strife becomes unbearable? But meanwhile, what about those furs that even now may be hanging in your own wardrobe weary for the bracing airs of the Saks Cold Storage Vaults? Who gets them—Moths, Unlimited, or Saks & Company?

ITALY'S TRIBUTE TO VICTOR EMMANUEL

Nearly 1,000,000 Witness Inauguration of the Monument to Victor Emmanuel II. in Rome.

ITS FINAL COST $20,000,000

Overlooks the Eternal City from Capitoline Hill and Has Taken Thirty Years to Construct.

ROME, June 4.—Nearly one million people witnessed the inauguration to-day of a magnificent monument to King Victor Emmanuel II. Interest was added to the occasion by reason of the celebration of the granting of the Constitution by King Charles Albert in 1848, the same Constitution which still rules United Italy.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, the Queen Mother Margherita, who appeared for the first time at an official function since the death of King Humbert; Dowager Queen Maria Pia of Portugal, the surviving daughter of King Victor; the Dowager Duchess of Genoa, the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, the Duke and Duchess of Genoa, the Duchess Letitia, the Count of Turin, the Duke of the Abruzzi, and other members of the royal house were present.

Not only the people of Rome but thousands from the provinces joined in making the event one of National importance. The Mayors of the various towns and cities throughout the kingdom who were in attendance numbered eight thousand. One of the incidents of the day was the cheering of a priest who climbed the steps of the monument. Senators and Deputies surrounded him with as much enthusiasm as the populace. Opening his gown, the priest showed a tricolor sash, the emblem of the Mayoralty, saying:

"I am Canon Paolucci, Mayor of Goriano Abruzzi. As Mayor I took the oath of loyalty to the King and the Constitution, and I thought it my duty to come here and pay a tribute of homage to the father of our country."

Premier Giolitti delivered a patriotic address, saying: "On the Capitoline Hill, which recalls the glories and greatness of ancient Rome, the Italians inaugurate a monument to the father of the country which typifies the struggles, the sacrifices, martyrdoms, and heroism which made the Italian resurrection possible."

The Premier declared that the presence of the representatives of foreign countries was a new acknowledgment of the mission of peace and civilization which Italy pursues.

The monument is the most colossal structure of its kind in the world. It occupies the left section of the Capitoline Hill and opens into the very heart of Rome on the piazza where stands the Palace of Venice, which Paul III. erected. In front is the Corso, the leading thoroughfare of the city, so that the equestrian statue of the King Liberator, in gilded bronze, can be seen from the distance, shining against the white marble of the colonnade forming its background. The statue is forty feet high and weighs fifty tons. It was cast in eighteen pieces, the modeling occupying two and one-half years. When the work was finished a banquet was served in the body of the horse for twenty people.

The so-called "altar of the Fatherland"—that is, the massive base on which the statue stands—was surrounded to-day by the flags of all the Italian regiments, by delegations of the army, and all the veterans of the War of Independence. The picturesque uniforms and the red shirts of the Garibaldians made the scene a brilliant one.

The monument is in the form of a great portico in white marble, with sixteen immense columns surmounted by a frieze and with quadrigae in bronze at the ends. In front of the colonnade stands the gigantic equestrian statue of the father of the country, on a richly decorated pedestal. Grand staircases lead up to it, decorated with fountains, statues, groups and antenae with gilded figures. The entire length of the monument is 500 feet, its depth 450 feet and its height 250 feet.

Notwithstanding the relative cheapness of marble and labor in Italy, the monument when completed will cost about $20,000,000 and will have represented thirty years' work. The plans for the structure were drawn by the young architect, Giuseppe Sacconi, and were selected from hundreds of designs in June, 1884. King Humbert laid the cornerstone of the great structure on March 22 of that year. Sacconi devoted all his energy to the work and died. Three other architects were placed in charge, Koch, Manfredi and Piacentini, the first of whom has since died. No more fortunate was the sculptor of the equestrian statue, Signor Chiaradia, who did not survive to see his magnificent work completed. Emilio Gallori, the sculptor of the monument to Garibaldi on the Janiculum, took up the work where Chiaradia had dropped it.

The interior of the monument will be occupied by the museum of the Risorgimento, in which will be gathered all the mementos of the struggle which led Italy to unity, and independence.

It will be several years yet before the structure is completed. Recently there has been a strike of workmen, and Premier Giolitti, declaring that he would not permit the Government to be coerced into paying the exorbitant demands of the strikers, ordered 500 engineers attached to the troops to take the places of the strikers. The latter yielded at the end of a week.

A TACK IN SHERMAN'S PATH.

Vice President's Auto Trip in Westchester is Interrupted.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 4.—That a tack is no respecter of persons was shown to-day when one got in the way of a tire of the left rear wheel of an automobile in which were James S. Sherman, Vice President of the United States, and Gen. Howard Carroll. The tack had concealed itself on Broadway in front of the Ardsley Club grounds.

Vice President Sherman, who with Mrs. Sherman, is the guest of Gen. and Mrs. Carroll, had been to the Sleepy Hollow Country Club for luncheon, following which the party went out for a short tour of the country. When the tack had done the work the Vice President and Gen. Carroll said they would remain while the rest of the party went on in the other cars. Mr. Sherman insisted on helping remove the tire and repair it. When a reporter happened on them the Vice President had just finished the pumping part of the contract and was mopping his brow.

"How are you enjoying the day?" the reporter asked.

"That flat tire is self-explanatory," laughed the Vice President.

"Why," said Gen. Carroll, "I had to stop him from doing the whole business. All I could do was to stand by, and I think that was a unique position with the Vice President of the United States putting on a tire."

"The General wasn't a bit of help," replied Mr. Sherman. "All he could say was, 'Cast off there, look out aloft, or drop anchor,'" and they both laughed.

Everything was ready then and both jumped into the car and started for Carroll Cliff, where a large dinner was given to-night. None of the hundreds in the passing automobiles had recognized the Vice President in his plight. At the dinner to-night were: Judge and Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Archbold, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, Col. R. C. Clowry, Chauncey M. Depew, Charles C. Paulding, Miss Anne Paulding, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis of Troy, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon, Col. and Mrs. F. Q. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Ralston H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. S. Parker, Mrs. J Allen Townsend, and Mrs. John Black.

"The dinner was given because the Vice President like us Westchester folk and we like him," said Gen. Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman will remain over night at Carroll Cliff and depart for New York in their automobile in the morning.

TO PUMP MAINE COFFERDAM.

Major Ferguson Begins To-day—Process Will Be Gradual.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, June 4.—Major Ferguson, who is working day and night on the difficult task of raising the Maine, expects to be ready to-morrow morning to begin pumping out the cofferdam. He will first pump out only five feet of water, taking about eighteen hours to do so; then he will pause to observe the effect. The pumping will be a most gradual process, Major Ferguson at each stop correcting any weakness developing.

It is most probable that the cofferdam will prove successful; but it will be six weeks or more before the wreck can be bared so as to permit of determining the nature of the explosion.

ROOSEVELT IN VERMONT.

Dinner at White River Junction with Two Governors as Guests.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., June 4.—Representative men of Vermont will meet at White River Junction Wednesday to welcome Theodore Roosevelt, who comes to talk to Vermonters upon the advantages of co-operation among community institutions.

At the dinner in Gates Opera House will be seated guests from Washington, the Faculty of Dartmouth College, and Gov. Robert D. Bass of New Hampshire and Gov. John A. Mead of Vermont.

On the Committee of Arrangements is Wallace Bachelder of Bethel, who was a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders in the Spanish American war, and who has recently been appointed to the National Commission on Uniform State Laws. The visit of Col. Roosevelt is in accordance with a promise made some time ago to Lieut. Bachelder.

Clothes Lines Save Falling Child.

Fate was kind to three-year-old Rose Gasser yesterday morning, when she fell from the fire escape of her home on the sixth floor of 63 East 112th Street and escaped with a broken leg. The child fell seventy-five feet to a stone pavement, but at every floor between there were clothes lines stretched from the windows, and the child bounded from one to another of these until she landed in the yard. She was carried into the Laura Franklin Hospital for Children a few doors away and the surgeons found that the broken leg was the only injury.

THRONG OF 200,000 AT CONEY ISLAND

Rush as in Midsummer to the Resort—Seven-Legged Pig Closes a Show.

NEGRO DROWNS FROM A PIER

Policeman Nearly Loses His Life in a Swim to Win a Ten-Dollar Wager.

A regular mid-Summer crowd of more than 200,000 persons visited Coney Island yesterday. They filled Luna Park and Steeplechase to overflowing, and large numbers congregated about the waste spot where Dreamland stood. Some tents have been erected in a cleared space there, and later the place is to be called the New Midway. At present some few shows and ball games are going on there.

Inspector Dooley shut up one of the shows, however, when he decided that a seven-legged pig did not constitute a "What-Is-It? A Puzzle to Scientists," as a gaudy sign outside the tent characterized the show.

Visitors to Luna Park found a welcome innovation of Frederic Thompson's in a battery of baby carriages in charge of attendants just inside the main gates. It developed that these were for the use, free of charge, of any tired mother with a baby in her arms. The carriages were loaned out as fast as they were called for, and presently more than fifty of them were being trundled about the park.

Few arrests were made all day, although Inspector Dooley has twenty detectives, all of them strangers to the Coney Island amusement place proprietors, presumably looking for evidence against any kind of resort with a view to keeping the island clean this year. Inspector Dooley declined to say what progress his men were making or whether warrants would be sought in the near future.

There were the usual accidents that mark a Sunday at Coney Island. John T. Green, a young negro, losing his life by toppling from the pier at Steeplechase. He was at work on the extension of the pier which is being made to accommodate the Iron Steamboats which are to land there hereafter. John F. Fairman jumped in after him, but Green sank before Fairman could reach him. His body was not recovered.

Policeman Brennan also had a narrow escape from drowning. He had boasted frequently of his prowess as a swimmer, and recently Detective Reick bet him $10 he could not swim from West Thirtieth Street to the buoy anchored off Sea Gate, and return. At 9 o'clock yesterday morning Brennan made the effort. He, with Reick and a lot of other policemen, went to the shore and he set out. When he had gone 500 feet he yelled for help. His comardes thought he was fooling until they saw him sink. Then Reick threw off coat and shoes and jumped in after him. When Reick got Brennan ashore, the latter was nearly senseless. He was resuscitated, and paid over the $10. He said he got a cramp.

Police Capt. Robinson got a telegram yesterday from a Mrs. McCarthy of San Francisco, asking for news of her daughter, Celestine. She said the girl had been working at Coney Island and that she had not heard from her since the Dreamland fire. Robinson could find no trace of the girl, but it is known that no lives were lost in the fire.

ROME, June 4.—On account of a report emanating from Munish that a cholera epidemic was prevalent in a certain section of Italy, the authorities have issued an official statement to the effect that the conditions of health throughout this country are excellent.

GIRLS' CHAMPION ARRESTED.

He is Charged with Disorderly Conduct When They Deny They Are Detained.

After making a complaint to Lieut. McIvor of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau early yesterday morning that two young women were detained against their will in a boarding house at 157 Schermerhorn Street, Walter J. Scully of 11 Third Street, Brooklyn, was arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct.

Detective James Reynolds was sent with Scully to investigate his story. He found that Scully had created a disturbance when Miss Jennie Massan and Miss Katherine Kramer, who live in the house, slammed the vestibule door in his face. He had pounded on the door and had awakened Erling Natrig, an old sea Captain, who conducts the boarding house. Natrig told the policemen it was untrue that the young women were detained, and they corroborated him.

Magistrate Reynolds, before whom Scully was araigned in the Adams Street Court, suspended sentence on him.

FREELY GAVE $1,000,000.

Mr. Plant Placed Few Restrictions on Endowment of Woman's College.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 4.—That the gift Saturday of $1,000,000 by Morton P. Plant of this city to the woman's college to be located here was without restrictions, save that the income be used to pay the running expenses of the college and that the name be changed, was announced in a letter made public by Mr. Plant to-night.

The object of having the name changed from Thames College to the Connecticut College for Women was because of the desire to have the name of the State figure more prominently. Among the subscribtions announced to-night was that of $1,000 from Gov. Baldwin.

WORK TO SAVE BABIES.

Diet Kitchen Will Show Poor Mothers How to Care for Them.

The New York Diet Kitchen Association is about to open its Summer work among the mothers of the poorer districts, and will endeavor to show them how the death of children from Summer diseases may be avoided. It will fight the idea that such deaths are providential. At the Wickham Kitchen, 169 Mott Street, and at the main office of the association, 1 West Thirty-fourth Street, the method and value of milk modification will be explained by trained nurses and doctors.

Last Summer 1,335 babies were under the care of the association, and of these only 18 died. Only 4 of these deaths were due to Summer complaints.

HIT TARGET UNDER WATER.

Torpedo Boat Narwhal Did It Twice at Top Speed at 2,000 Yards.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 4.—Improvement in naval marksmanship is not confined to the men who handle the big guns. In the submarine division, it was learned to-day, the Narwhal, while running at top speed between thirty and forty feet under water made two clean hits out of four tries at a distance of 2,000 yards.

The Narwhal is under command of Lieut. Chester W. Nimitz. In her other tests, both on the surface and beneath water, the little torpedo boat, which has been engaged for the last week in practice in Narragansett Bay, has done good work, according to officers of the submarine flotilla.

CHIDED, BOY HANGS HIMSELF

Lad, Missing 24 Hours, Found Dead in the Cellar.

Hanging by a rope from a steam pipe, the body of fourteen-year-old Charles McKinley Christian, who lived with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, at 253 Fairmount Avenue, Newark, was found yesterday afternoon in the cellar of the house. The boy had been missing for nearly twenty-four hours.

Mrs. Wilson could give no reason for the boy's act other than that she had scolded him on Friday for his poor showing in school. Mrs. Wilson said he was very backward in his studies, and she frequently chided him for taking so little interest.

Mrs. Wilson said he had run away from home several times, and when he left the house on Saturday and did not return her husband suspected the boy had run away again. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Lena Mendel, who lives in the same house, went to the cellar and saw the body dangling. She informed the Wilsons of her discovery, and a physician was summoned, but he said the boy was dead. The police notified the County Physician, who decided the boy had taken his life soon after he entered the cellar on Saturday.

JUDGE GARY'S SPEECH TO THE STEEL MEN

Willingly Lets Republic Company "Stand Outside the Circle of Friendly Conversation."

DOESN'T REFER TO IT BY NAME

Agreements Unlawful, He Says, but He Would Tell His Prices to One Equally Frank—Every One His Own Guide.

The address of Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, made to the fifty or sixty independent steel men who were his guests at luncheon at the Metropolitan Club last Monday, was made public yesterday.

The steel men were called together to consider the action of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, which is dominated by John W. Gates, in withdrawing from Judge Gary's co-operative system for the trade and announcing that it would adopt "a more aggressive sales policy." This, of course, meant a cut in prices, without reference to the Steel Corporation or the independents which have been acting in concert with it.

The price reductions of the Republic company followed immediately, and the result of Judge Gary's luncheon party was that all the other manufacturers, including the Steel Corporation, made similar reductions. These included bars, structural shapes and sheets, but did not apply to rails, wire, or tin plate.

Judge Gary's address shows throughout an apprehension that the withdrawal of Gates's company might be the beginning of the end of his co-operative plan, and might result in cut-throat competition all around. He struck this note right at the outset when he said:

"You have been requested to come here for the purpose of testing your intelligence and your grit. You have been requested to meet here for the purpose of inquiring, one of the other, as to whether or not you and your business can be entirely demoralized by the disposition or the action of one individual or a few individuals in the trade."

Gary's View of Oil Decision.

Judge Gary then referred to the decision of the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case, saying:

"I offer, simply for your consideration, this view of the decision: that the Supreme Court, instead of saying that there may be reasonable restriction of trade or reasonable monopolies, intended to say that in the application of the law to the facts in a case there must be reason exercised. In other words, that the Supreme Court has said that there must be a reasonable application of the law to a case in point, rather than that the conduct itself, if in violation of the law, must be unreasonable in order to be a violation.

"I hope when we find to what policy the Administration in Washington has settled down, for the governing and controlling of the great business interests of this country, that we steel and iron people in this country, instead of being found in opposition to that general policy which is calculated to be of benefit to the people of the country, will line up with the Administration and take a position foremost in the ranks of those who, in a patriotic way, are attempting to do what they can for their fellowmen. I do not care whether it is a Federal incorporation act the lawmakers may determine upon, or what it may be. If it is reasonable or if it is determined by the Administration or the lawmakers to be reasonable, let us—occupying a great position in the activities of business life—let us take a leading part in doing our best to bring about an improvement in the conditions which surround us."

The Rights of the Laborers.

Coming down to the situation in the trade brought about by the action of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, Judge Gary said:

"I have never, to my knowledge, opposed the reduction of any price suggested by a majority of the iron and steel makers, after there had been full opportunity for consultation, and generally when any one of the iron and steel makers has, after due deliberation, made up his mind that his prices were too high and ought to be reduced, I have not made any opposition in our company to following the lead of that individual; but, on the other hand, I have advocated, and shall always advocate, so long as I believe I have the right to do it, the stability of prices, the regularity of business conduct on the part of all that is calculated to recognize and advance the interest of all others.

"I have urged you to remember, and I again call attention to the fact, that when you make substantial reductions in your prices, if you reduce to a price that is unfair and unreasonable and you make so small a profit that it does not yield you a fair return on your investment and your risk, you at least place for consideration before every one the possible necessity of reducing the cost of production, including prominently, if not principally, the wages which you are paying, or may be allowed to pay, to the man or the men in your employ. Do not forget that the laboring men—the employes of the corporations—have more at risk, when these questions are considered of reducing prices below what is reasonable and fair, than the employer, because it is just as natural as it is right and fair that if reasonable profits are prevented and your prices are put down below what they ought to be, then as a matter of necessity you are forced to consider and perhaps decide in favor of a liquidation of the wages of your employes; and you have no right to disregard them and their interests. You have no right to run the risk of being compelled to put their wages below what they ought to be unless you are driven to it, and I hope, under the present circumstances, gentlemen, that whatever may be done, or whatever may happen as a result of present conditions, you will not reduce the wages of your employes until you feel it is an absolute necessity to do so.

The Republic Read Out.

"Now, we are confronted with a very serious and disagreeable problem. It is not for me to criticise men nor to pass judgment on the motives of men. Whether people who have changed their minds suddenly are actuated by motives of cupidity or motives of necessity is not for me to say. One thing we know that one of the leading iron and steel companies hitherto joining in our councils, learning from us our intentions, our business, our methods, our clients, our customers, everything of benefit and interest for one to know concerning his neighbor, has suddenly, for reasons considered good by those in charge, given notice that for the present at least it is not desirable to co-operate with us.

"If I believed the reason was that the officials of that company had reached the conclusion they had no right, from the standpoint of law and good morals, to continue, I would be the last one to criticise. I would not expect or ask any one to do anything he believed wrong, legally or morally; but on the other hand, gentlemen, if any one who has been co-operating in a lawful way, not in secret, but under conditions well known and frequently exposed by all of us, suddenly changes his opinion and believes it is for his pecuniary interest for the time being to withdraw from associating with us and declines to give us any information concerning what he is doing or proposes to do, leaving himself free to go to your customers and mine and get the business for himself, regardless of price, and simply for the prupose of filling his mill temporarily and securing for himself a customer who has been your customer or mine, then I do not hesitate to say that, so far as I am concerned, I am perfectly willing to let him stand outside of the circle of intercourse and friendly conversation and open and above board fair dealing and frankness in expression; but if I have sufficient influence, it shall not in the least affect the relations of all the rest of us.

Bound to Respect the Law.

"Now I do not know the feeling of the rest of you; I do not know what you are disposed to do. I think that so far as we are concerned we would be largely influenced by the action of others; and while insisting upon the position from which I have never varied, I would not under any circumstances make any agreement, express or implied, direct or indirect, to maintain certain prices, to keep away from customers, to divide territory, to restrict output, or to make any agreement of any sort or description with you or any of you, because, as I understand the law, I have no right to do it; yet at the same time I would do what I have always said I would do, I would tell you and each of you at any time exactly what we were doing; I would give you the names of our customers, I would tell you what prices we were charging, I would give you any information concerning our business, concerning our mills, concerning our clients, concerning ourselves that you wanted to have, so long as you have the same disposition toward me.

"On the other hand, if it is your opinion that the time for co-operation has gone by or that it should be suspended, then we ought to find that out and we will all go our way, parting as friends, but at the same time separating entirely; which means that we will simply go upon our way, doing our own business in our own way, when, how and where we please.

"We have not only enjoyed the association with you gentlemen but you have been of great benefit to us. It has been not only a great pleasure, but it has been a great profit and we have made money for ourselves and we have pleased, by our conduct, every one who is interested in us.

"Among other things, when demand was great and the capacity was insufficient, we have prevented prices from going higher, which is just as important as to prevent them from going too low. One is just exactly as important as the other. I am sure I have never stated an opinion here which I did not believe was in accordance with the opinions of the rest of you—I have never intended to disregard your opinions or go outside of and away from them. I have tried to find out what was in your minds and have acted and talked in accordance with what I believed to be your own wishes and your own conclusions, and I say that we have never stood for unreasonably high prices any more than we are willing to have unreasonably low prices. What we advocate is stability of prices. We know our customers like that. We know it is better for the mills, we know it is better for the employees in every way. That is why I think it is of great importance for each of us to know all the time what the rest are doing."

BOY SOLDIERS SHOW ARMY HOW TO DRILL

King's Guard Gives an Exhibition After a Service on Governors Island.

REVIEWED BY THE GARRISON

Gen. Grant Unable to be Present—Lads Get a Wetting When Waves Hit the Ferryboat.

The King's Guard, 100 strong, invaded Governors Island yesterday afternoon, marched up the little hill from the ferry to the chapel, and then marched down again, after having shown some of the seasoned old army men how a real drill should be conducted.

The King's Guard is not exactly a military organization. They do not carry muskets when on parade. But they are soldierly looking in other respects, and their ages ranged anywhere from 12 to 16 years.

But, like real militiamen, the members of the King's Guard wear uniforms and soldierly looking caps, march well, and, on the whole, form a creditable organization. The King's Guard is a church organization, and its purpose in traveling to Governors Island yesterday was to attend a special service in the Protestant Episcopal Chapel there. The drill was incidental, although quite important in the eyes of the youthful guardsmen.

There should have been 300 members of the King's Guard on Governors Island yesterday, but one detachment lost its way and some of the companies did not turn out in full force. Parts of four companies were on hand, however, when the island ferryboat at the Battery landing tooted for the King's Guard to scramble on board.

A corporal's guard from Hoboken showed up just too late to board the boat, but they took the next boat, half an hour later, and were in time for the drill. Company A, from St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, was in command of Lieut. A. N. Keedwell. Lieut. E. J. Wood was in charge of Company B, from the Church of St. Mary the Virgin. In command of Company C of St. Agnes's Chapel was Lieut. Arthur Purdy. Company D of Trinity Church, Hoboken, was in charge of Lieut. Herbert Schitching, and Company E of the Church of the Heavenly Rest was in command of Lieut. Lutz. Capt. C. M. Budlong, however, was in supreme command.

The hour for starting had been set for 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon, but most of the guardsmen were on hand an hour in advance, their gray suits and caps attracting a lot of attention from the Battery throng. On the trip across several of the guard received a wetting, much to the delight of their more fortunate fellows, when a big wave swept over the forward deck just as the ferryboat had left the Battery. Capt. Budlong had quite a time restoring order.

Leaving the ferryboat, the guardsmen fell into marching order and the King's Guard Band struck up a marching tune. Many of the regular army men were on hand to watch the little fellows land. One comment heard as the King's Guard swung up the street was that the guardsman who pounded the big bass drum looked as if he were working too hard.

The Governors Island Chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Smith, received the guard at the chapel and conducted the service. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Judge of St. Matthew's Church.

The drill was held on the parade ground, following chapel service. Several dozen army officers and their wives applauded the youngsters as they went through the evolutions of the drill. The miniature guardsmen got home in time for supper.

It had been planned for Gen. Grant to review the guard, but he had to leave in the afternoon for Baltimore upon an inspection tour lasting several days.

EXPLOSION BURNS THREE.

One Woman Probably Mortally Scorched by a Benzine Flash.

Mrs. Sadie Richter of 538 East 148th Street, the Bronx, received burns yesterday from which she will probably die when her clothing caught fire from exploding benzine in the bathroom of her apartment. Her sister, Miss Tillie Stengel, 17 years old, and Mrs. Jennie Grossman, were also severely burned in attempting to save her.

Mrs. Richter went into the bathroom with a lighted match just after dinner. A bottle of benzine was on the shelf and suddenly there was an explosion and the room was filled with flame. Mrs. Richter's clothing caught fire and she ran screaming from the room. In the next room was Miss Stengel with Mrs. Richter's son Max, 6 years old. The mother grabbed the boy and ran from the apartment, followed by her sister. She ran into the apartment of Mrs. Grossman, across the hall.

Mrs. Grossman dragged the child away from Mrs. Richter and then pulled down some draperies which she wrapped about the woman, smothering the flames. In trying to beat out the fire Miss Stengel was badly burned about the arms, neck, and hands, and Mrs. Grossman was burned about the hands.

An alarm of fire was sounded through the house and the occupants ran into the street. The firemen confined the fire to the bathroom. Mrs. Richter and Miss Stengel were taken to the Lincoln Hospital and Mrs. Grossman was attended at her home. The boy was not injured.

HELD AS TRADE MARK THIEF.

Prisoner Accused of Illegally Using a Medicine Concern's Label.

William Fink of 1,765 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, was arraigned before Magistrate Appleton in the Essex Market Court yesterday, charged with violating the trade mark law, and an additional charge of forgery, and was held in $2,500 bail for further examination to-morrow. Harry Harowitz, a printer, of 71 Suffoly Street, was arraigned with Fink on the charge of having forged electrotyped plates in his possession, but was discharged.

Fink was arrested on the complaint of Charles H. Orcolit, manager of the Carter Medicine Company of 45 Murray Street. He said that for the last two or three months some one had been selling a patent medicine bearing his firm's trade mark and signature at a reduced price in New England and this city. It was found that Harowitz was printing labels for Fink which were an exact copy of those used on one of the medicine company's products.

STOLE TO PAY MORTGAGE.

Young Assistant Cashier Admits Theft from Shoe Firm.

Walter T. Richmond, 88 years old, assistant cashier in the wholesale shoe house of Clark-Hutchinson, at 121 Duane Street, and residing at 160 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, was held in $2,000 bail for trial yesterday by Magistrate Steinert in the Tombs Court on a charge of stealing $600 of the firm's money.

According to the complaint, Richmond on Feb. 1 last, took $3,697.87 to deposit in the National Park Bank. He deposited $3,097.87, keeping the $600.

Richmond pleaded guilty, saying he was in fear of having a mortgage on his house foreclosed and owed other money on furniture. He says he intended to make the amount good if he had a chance. He has a wife and two children who were in court yesterday. The wife was overcome and had to be attended in the Magistrate's room.

THIEVES IN FUNERAL CROWD.

Woman Robbed, and One of Six Youths Who Fled Is Arrested.

While a funeral procession was going along Manhattan Avenue, near Richardson Street, Brooklyn, yesterday a woman in the throng watching it, Mrs. Flora Citera of 16 Meeker Avenue, suddenly shouted that a pickpocket had stolen her pocketbook. Immediately half a dozen young men made haste to get away. All escaped except James Brooks of 142 Richardson Street.

Mrs. Citera couldn't tell who had robbed her, but Brooks was arrested. On being arraigned in the Manhattan Avenue Court Magistrate Dodd held him.

JEFFERSON BIBLE ON VIEW.

Copy of the Third President's Work Given to Riverside Library.

A remarkable Bible is that made by Thomas Jefferson. He took copies of the Bible in Greek, Latin, French, and English and cut from the four Gospels a continuous narrative of the life and morals of Jesus, from the time of His birth to His crucifixion. The four lines are arranged in parallel columns on eighty-two pages.

The Government purchased the original pasted, scrap-book Bible, with Jefferson's marks and corrections, and placed it in the National Museum. By an act of Congress in 1904 a photographic facsimile of this Bible was made with a reproduction of the original red leather binding and gold tooling. Every detail was faithfully reproduced. The edition was soon exhausted, and the book is seldom found even in public libraries.

The Riverside Library has just received a perfect copy from former Congressman M. J. Daniels. The book is not for circulation, but may be examined.

The New Supremacy in Manufacturing

YOU cannot judge advertising by the fact that it has made this or that man rich. You must judge it as a whole,

National Advertising, in the modern sense, is something less than 25 years old. Has it proved itself as a business principle?

Choose any lines of manufacture whose goods are bought by the retail consumer. Select the dominating concerns in each line—and see how many are not systematic advertisers.

For instance—shoes, corsets, automobiles, paints, pianos, watches, safety razors, firearms, underwear, type-writers, pickles, men's clothes, cocoa, stockings, carpets, silverware, soups, confectionery, tools, refrigerators, bath-tubs, crackers.

You will search well for your non-advertiser before you find him.

The remarkable fact about this list of advertising manufacturers who dominate their lines is the large number of names that were unknown 25 or 15 or 5 years ago. They are new leaders. Where are the old leaders? You will find many of them in that same list of Advertisers, their supremacy unimpaired. The rest you will find fallen behind into a secondary place. There are exceptions to this rule but they are growing fewer year by year.

Is all this an accident, or is modern advertising a force against which the old methods, the old commercial strongholds, cannot stand?

Mr. Manufacturer, nothing is more certain than that you must answer that question for your own business. It may not seem to press for an answer today, but is it wise to wait until the pressure is upon you? Will you not at least be forearmed?

You will find the first facts to get hold of in our 40-page booklet on "National Advertising." It is yours for the asking.

HUNDREDS DO HONOR TO FATHER MOONEY

Holy Name Societies Unite in Celebrating the Fortieth Anniversary of His Priesthood.

PARADE TO HIS CHURCH

Present an Illuminated Address and a Check to the Distinguished Monseigneur.

Delegates from all the Holy Name Societies of the Archdiocese of New York gathered yesterday afternoon in the Sacred Heart Church, Fifty-first Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, to celebrate the fortieth anniversary in the priesthood of Mgr. Mooney, spiritual director of their organization. The representatives of the out-of-town societies assembled at the Holy Cross School in Forty-second Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, and, escorted by 600 members of the society of the Church of the Sacred Heart, marched up Tenth Avenue to the music of the bands of the Catholic Protectory and Mount Loretto, Staten Island.

Many of the houses in the neighborhood of the church were decorated with the Papal and the American flags, and as word came that there was room in the galleries after the men had been seated, there was a rush of women and children to capture the seats. The ceremony began with the march up the nave of the officials of the society who led Mgr. Mooney to a seat on the right of the sanctuary.

Henry Cassidy, President of the society, then read the Monsigneur an address. In this he spoke of the appointment of Mgr. Mooney as spiritual director by Archbishop Corrigan and his confirmation in that office by Archbishop Farley. Under his administration the number of societies in the archdiocese had been increased from 32 to 134, and the credit of this was ascribed to the Monsigneur's judicious rule. Special mention was made of the appointment of an Executive Committee, and to the interest he had always taken in the society's requiem mass on Labor Day, the triduum before the Feast of the Holy Name, and the Thanksgiving mass on New Year's Day.

As Mr. Cassidy finished, there was a burst of hand-clapping, and this was repeated as, with John McDonald, the Treasurer, he approached Mgr. Mooney, and, kneeling before him, presented the illuminated address and a purse containing a check. Mgr. Mooney, wearing the purple robes, then mounted the steps of the altar and addressed the society.

"I would, indeed, members of the Holy Name, be disloyal to my own true sentiment if I was not profoundly touched by what you have done and said in regard to me to-day," he began. "This magnificent outpouring of your devotion seems to have some analogy, spiritual indeed, it is true, with the events connected with the pentecostal feast 1,900 years ago. Then began the infant Church, and what you have done to-day has been to me no feeble reminder of the spiritual meaning of that day."

Mgr. Mooney went on to say that the growth of the Holy Name Society in the seventeen years during which he had been connected with it would not have been possible but for the co-operation of its members with the clergy. It was that loyalty, he declared amid applause, which had rendered the Church victorious even in the days when it seemed defeated. It was so in the early days of the Church, and so in the land whence so many of the members of the society had come.

"In no other way," he concluded, "can you be true to the faith of your fathers and that little island beyond the seas. It is the one secret of what the Church and the people have accomplished, and if I have achieved anything it is because you have stood by me."

Again vigorous applause rang out through the church, and then Mgr. Mooney was vested for the benediction of the sacrament, at which he officiated with Father James Crosby of Nyack as deacon, Father Thomas Wallace of the Church of St. Angela, in the Bronx, as sub-deacon, and Father John J. Cressey of the Church of the Sacred Heart as master of ceremonies.

Mgr. Mooney was born in Pike County, Pennsylvania, on July 8, 1848, and was ordained to the priesthood on June 3, 1871. He was first an assistant at St. Stephen's Church, in Twenty-eighth Street, and, speaking of the growth of the Roman Catholic Church in the last forty years, he remarked yesterday that at that time it was the church furthest uptown. Now the present charge remains as one of the most distinctively Irish churches of the city, the people of his own race having been gradually driven out of lower districts by the advance of business and the influx of foreigners and having made a stand on the west side, between Forty-second and Fifty-ninth Streets.

"I think," said Mgr. Mooney, "that we have held our people better than any other Christian Church, and our men have been specially faithful to us. It has been in the face of difficulties that we have not escaped the materialistic tendencies of the age, which arise from the advance in natural science and the loss of faith in a personal God. Then, too, there is Socialism, which at bottom in its philosophy is atheistic, but this has not affected my people as much as other districts. We have had some leakage, of course, though it is not now so great as when the Irish first came to this country, but, on the whole, we have held our people well."

Soon after his ordination Father Mooney became pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Newburg, and he was later Professor of Philosophy at St. Joseph's Seminary, Troy. He was made rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart in 1890, and two years later was created Vicar General by Archbishop Corrigan. In 1896 the Holy See made him a Domestic Prelate, and in 1904 he was created a Prothonotary Apostolic.

Yesterday morning there was a high mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart in commemoration of his anniversary, at which Mgr. Lynch of Utica was the preacher, and this morning there will be a high mass for the priests of the archdiocese, at which Archbishop Farley and Bishops Cusack, Gabriels of Ogdensburg and Mundelein of Brooklyn will be present. The sermon will be preached by Mgr. Brann of the Church of St. Agnes. This evening in the Amsterdam Opera House there will be a meeeting for parishioners, and a purse will be presented to Mgr. Mooney by Nicholas Griffiths, Senior Trustee of the parish.

CENTENARY OF CITY HALL.

To be Observed in Connection with Fourth of July Exercises.

This year is the centenary of the building of the City Hall and the first session therein of the Board of Aldermen. It has been decided to commemorate this on the Fourth of July by a gathering in the City Hall of all descendants of the officials of the De Witt Clinton administration of the city, before the parade of nations and the formal exercises, over which Mayor Gaynor will preside.

The committee in charge of the celebration will be glad if descendants of the officials of a century ago will send their names to the committee's offices in the Pulitzer Building. The members of the Common Council of 1811 were De Witt Clinton, Mayor and President; Aldermen Peter Mosier, Thomas Carpenter, Charles Dickenson, Richard Cunningham, William Hoagland, William Torrey, George Buckmaster, Caleb Pell, and John Pell, and Assistant Aldermen Samuel Jones, Jr., Peter Hawse, August H. Lawrence, Elisha H. King, John Morse, Michael W. Titus, William Welling, William A. Hardenbrook, and Abraham Van Gelder.

The subscriptions received for the celebration now amount to $6,623. Among these received in the last few days are Mrs. Russell Sage, $500; Cornelius Vanderbilt and James Byrne, $100 each; Sheriff John S. Shea and Henry Lewis Morris, $50 each; George W. Wingate, Edward M. Shepard, Charles T. Wills, Inc., Charles M. Higgins, James B. Regan, and Henry Heide, $25 each, and George Batten and Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, $20 each,

URGES McMANUS TRACK BILL.

Eleventh Ave. Association Would Have Gaynor's Veto Disregarded.

At a meeting yesterday of the Executive Committee of the Eleventh Avenue Track Removal Association, at which representatives of the West Side Children's Playground and Recreation Conference were present, it was voted to send to Gov. Dix and the members of the Legislature an open letter embodying a resolution urging the passage of the Boylan-McManus bill, drawn by Clarence J. Shearn, notwithstanding the veto of Mayor Gaynor.

The resolution sets forth that the Mayor has been deceived by a specious "report of accidents and fatalities comparing Eleventh Avenue deaths with deaths on other avenues, but which omits to include the number of miles of track and the number of trains operated thereon. Thus on 1½ miles of track on Eleventh avenue there have been 49 deaths, in 12 miles of Broadway tracks 265 deaths, an average per mile on Eleventh avenue of 33 2-3 deaths per mile, and for Broadway of 22 1-2 deaths per mile."

The Governor and Legislators are requested by another resolution to disapprove all other Eleventh Avenue bills, and by a third resolution to "stand for the people and not for acts desired by the New York Central Railroad."

WORKHOUSE FOR A FLIRT.

Man Who Approached Mrs. Cook Gets a Ten-Day Sentence.

Henry Meyers, who said he was a clerk in the United States Steel Corporation, living in Smith Street, East Orange, N. J., was sentenced to ten days in the workhouse by Magistrate House in the Night Court yesterday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. Meyers was accused of trying to flirt with Mrs. Millie Cook of 522 West 112th Street a short time before at Forty-second Street and Broadway.

Mrs. Cook, with her husband, David Cook, a diamond cutter, and Edward Meridan of the Hotel Normandie, according to the evidence, attended a theatre on Saturday night, and after the performance went to a restaurant near Forty-second Street and Broadway. On leaving the restaurant they were standing on the corner, when Mrs. Cook told her husband that Meyers, who was standing near by, was trying to flirt with her.

The husband remonstrated with Meyers, and Meyers threatened him and made insulting remarks, he said. Then Meyers was arrested.

DOG BITES THREE MEN.

Face of One Badly Torn—Animal Beaten to Death.

A stray black spaniel caused much excitement yesterday in the neighborhood of Rodney and Hope Streets, Brooklyn. Before it was killed it had bitten several persons, including Thomas Murphy of 20 Ten Eyck Street, whose right cheek was badly torn. He was taken to the Eastern District Hospital.

Murphy, with Stephen Butler of 65 Clymer Street, Henry McMahon of 18 Ainslie Street, and Edward Hafer, who lives at Graham Avenue and Powers Street, seated on a truck, saw the dog chasing children. Finally the dog ran toward the truck. The men tried to drive it away, but it jumped at Butler and seized his right leg. The others went to his assistance, and Hafer and McMahon were bitten.

Murphy tried to grab the dog from behind and fell. Before he could get to his feet the dog fastened its teeth in his right cheek. Murphy's companions killed the dog with a stick.

FRUIT AUCTION FOR ORPHANS.

Pineapples and Oranges to be Sold for Sheltering Guardian Society.

Leopold J. Lippmann of 388 Washington Street, has originated a fruit selling plan whereby it is hoped a substantial sum will be added to the building fund of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society and Orphan Asylum. The Fruit Auction Company, Washington Street, will sell by public auction on Wednesday, without renumeration, for the benefit of the society, boxes of oranges and pineapples contributed by A. F. Young & Co., the Westfall Fruit Company, the L. J. P. Bishop Company, the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, J. & G. Lippmann, Steinhardt & Kelly, W. H. & O. P. Davis, P. Rubiman & Co., Olivit Brothers, and the J. M. Fanning Company.

It frequently happens at such sales that generous buyers offer their purchases for resale, and a box of fruit is sold several times over and fetches a big sum before it is finally disposed of. Orders mentioning prices offered may be sent to the auctioneers, who will buy in the lots desired. The Orphan Boys' Band will attend the sale and give selections.

POLICE HONOR DEAD IN ANNUAL SERVICE

Mgr. Lavelle Welcomes 2,000 Patrolmen to St. Patrick's Cathedral.

COMMENDS WORK OF FORCE

Chaplain Sullivan Defends the Department Against Criticism—Praise for Those Killed on Duty.

Nearly 2,000 policemen marched into St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday afternoon to the strains of solemn music, to attend their annual memorial service. They fell in at the East Fifty-first Street Police Station, and as they paraded to Fifth Avenue, preceded by the Police Band, with banners of different squads floating in the winds, they were followed by a large crowd.

As they filed inside the Cathedral the flag sergeants carried their banners down to the pulpit, where they were stacked. The organ played the processional, and the choir boys marched out from behind the altar, followed by the red-flocked acolytes, Mgr. Lavelle, the Rev. Francis J. Sullivan, chaplain of the force, and the assistant priests, in scarlet robes.

The policemen occupied almost all the seats in the body of the church, and in the first pew sat Commissioner Waldo and Deputies Dougherty, Walsh, and McKay. In the transepts sat some of the wives and families of those who have died in the police service, and whose names were honored at this special service.

At the end of vespers Mgr. Lavelle welcomed the men to the Cathedral.

"We realize," he said, "with all thinking people that the police force is the most important part of our city government, so important that when it is in perfect condition everything would seem to be secure, and without it, no perfect condition of the other departments would make our lives or property secure.

"To-day you are with your friends, those who appreciate and love you. You have many difficulties to cope with. There are many laws, for instance, which theoretically leave you no discretion, but which practically cause you to use the utmost discretion. In spite of these and the carping of those who are guided by human ambitions, you are in general doing a great work."

The sermon of the day was preached by Father J. Sullivan, who took as his text, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." He said in part:

"There is not in the world to-day a more faithful ten thousand to God, country, and fellow man, than the members of the police force of New York City. Your critics have been severe; many are ready to tear down, and few ready to suggest how to build up. You have stood the test, performed your duty, and performed it well. In critizing you they make no note of your deeds of bravery in the performance of your duty. This is, and has been your record, not only to-day, but for years past.

"And you, the widows and orphans of the heroes who have died in the battle of duty, have deep sorrow in their loss, but great consolation in the memory of their bravery. The work done by your beloved ones lives in the hearts and minds of every man before me. This great gathering is here to pay the yearly honor to those who have gone before, and to offer a silent prayer to God for mercy on their souls.

"Time will not permit me to enumerate, but you are all familiar with the names and the deeds of the heroes of the police force, who fell fighting to protect property or to save life. May God grant them their reward. Others have gone, whose record the world will never know, but they, too, 'have fought the good fight, ran the race, and won the crown.' These acts of bravery and faithfulness are continued to-day by the members living, and will continue until the end of time.

"The flags which surround this pulpit are the marks of appreciation of our citizens, presented to you in recognition of your bravery and faithfulness to work. The torn and tattered one from the riots of 'the sixties' is borne for the last time to-day, but its memory will live with you and the people of our city as a tribute to the police force of New York."

The Police Band, under the leadership of Patrolman Beauclaire, played several selections, and "Taps" were sounded at the end of the service by the combined trumpeters of the force.

TO PAY TRIBUTE TO GIBBONS.

Taft and Roosevelt to Speak at Big Celebration of Cardinal's Jubilee.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 4.—As a tribute to Cardinal Gibbons for his distinguished public services as an American citizen, a non-sectarian celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood and the twenty-fifth of his elevation to the Cardinalate will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory here on Tuesday afternoon.

Gov. Crothers will preside and the principal addresses will be made by President Taft, Vice President Sherman, ex-President Roosevelt, Speaker Clark of the House of Representatives, Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court, Senator Root of New York, and former Speaker Cannon. Mayor Preston and the Cardinal also will make addresses. Among others who have accepted invitations to be present are a number of United States Senators, Congressmen, and diplomatic representatives of foreign countries.

Bishop John Gardner Murray of the Protestant Episcopal Church is Chairman of the Reception Committee, and associated with him are clergymen of various denominations.

The general ecclesiastical celebration of the dual anniversary will be held next October.

RIVAL CHURCH STARTED.

Seceders from a Ridgefield Park Congregation Would Dismiss the Pastor.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, June 4.—The opponents of the Rev. Allen MacNeill of the Union Church, Ridgefield Park, established today a separate church and Sunday school in the new Masonic Hall, fully a hundred children attending the latter. Nevertheless they have no intention of resigning from the Union Church, which they have done much to build up. They hope to return as soon as Mr. MacNeill decides to leave.

The committee to organize the separate services consisted of George Elliott, J. H. Ficken, and Edmond F. Tukey. The teachers who have retired from the Union Church Sunday School are H. M. Dutt, the Superintendent; Robert Barnett, George M. Brewster, Edgar Crandall, Mrs. Crandall, Mrs. E. S. Ferris, Miss Cora Nelson, Miss Lillie Mergler, Miss W. Poole, Miss Ada Jursch, Miss Claire Dutt, Miss Louise Mergler, Miss Amelia Mergler, Mrs. K. MacBeth, Miss May Hamilton, and Miss Lillian Blauvelt. There is also talk of a split in the Christian Endeavor Society.

Mr. MacNeill has been pastor of the Union Church for more than fifteen years. He assailed local politicians and women's euchre parties, and began to lose favor in certain circles. Ill health has also taken him away from his work a good deal during the past two years. At the recent annual election the vote was 181 to 89 in favor of retaining him.

SOUTH SEA NATIVES FAST DISAPPEARING

Indigenous Population Has Decreased 50 Per Cent. in Ten Years in Some Places.

WHITE INVASION THE CAUSE

Aborigines Readily Fall a Prey to Ailments Accompanying Civilization's Unnatural Methods.

The question has arisen again as to whether or not the benefits bestowed by the implantation of civilization are offset by the disadvantages. This time the query comes from the Southern Pacific Islands, where in some places, it is reported, the population has decreased 50 per cent. in ten or twelve years, the aboriginal races having succumbed to diseases introduced by the white invaders. Some interesting facts relating to the dwindling population of these islands has been sent to The Medical Record by its Manila correspondent, who writes from Rabaul, New Guinea.

"The independent testimony of reliable medical men, Bishops, and others who live in those islands," he says, "is practically unanimous that the population is steadily growing less. In Yap and in the near-by islands, which are under the same jurisdiction, the population ten or twlve years ago was estimated to be 12,000. Estimates made this year by the same sources place the population at 6,000 or less."

The writer says that inquiry as to the cause of this decrease brought the answer that it was mainly due to tuberculosis and other diseases introduced there in the last few years.

"In German New Guinea," he continues, "the conditions are still so primitive and the country so unexplored that no one ventures to make an estimate of what the population was a dozen years ago, or, for that matter, what it is now, but medical men, large planters, and other persons of experience agree that it is only half of what it was formerly. In New Guinea the introduction of smallpox has probably caused the greatest havoc. Until very recently vaccination was unknown, and the unprotected natives died literally by the thousands. Bacillary dysentery was next introduced, and now sweeps over the country in great epidemics. More recently influenza has been imported and a loss of from 10 to 20 per cent. of the population in the districts affected is not an uncommon experience.

"In New Pommern the population is again unknown, but from the best evidence obtainable there is not much doubt that the number of natives is rapidly decreasing. In those islands the causes are ascribed to the diseases given above, with the addition of amebic dysentery and pernicious malarial fever.

"In the Papua Islands there is also a rapid decline in population. Tuberculosis is gaining a strong foothold and bacillary dysentery and influenza, with accompanying pneumonia, are also causing a high death rate."

The writer explains that these and other diseases were introduced by the influx of white people caused by the discovery of gold near Samarai.

"In the Gilbert Islands," he continues, "in addition to the causes already cited, measles was introduced, and has been responsible for many deaths."

Beriberi has also been the cause of a large percentage of the deaths in some of the islands. In this connection the writer goes into a discussion of an investigation of the disease. The data obtained, he says, "seem to lend considerable support to the theory of those who believe that beriberi may be caused by depriving the human organism of those substances which are found upon the outer layers of a rice grain. In each instance there is a large incidence of beriberi among those whose staple article of diet is polished rice, while the disease is rare among those who use other forms of food. The small amount of beriberi among those who do not use rice as a staple article of diet may be accounted for by simple insufficiency of food or a poorly balanced diet.

"Among those who have made a study of similar conditions in the Philippines it has long been the belief that the population of those islands has been at a standstill or actually decreasing during the past few hundred years, and that it was not until the effects of the wholesale sanitation which was introduced by the American occupation began to be felt that the population began to augment. It would seem, however, that some of the increase in population may be due to a gradually acquired immunity to the diseases which were introduced by civilization nearly 400 years ago."

BIG HAULS FOR PICKPOCKETS.

Four Elevated Train Passengers Lose $514 in Cash and a $121 Check.

Yesterday was a record day for the pickpockets on the elevated roads, according to the complaints received at the East Twenty-second Street and the East Thirty-fifth Street Police Stations. Owen Gilshannon, a real estate dealer of West New Brighton, S. I., reported that a wallet containing $300 in bills was stolen from his hip pocket as he was about to board a Second Avenue train at the Thirty-fourth Street Station. Two men seemed to be in an altercation as he came up, and he was jostled by them. They crowded into the car ahead of him and the gates were closed before he could step aboard. As the train was leaving the station, he discovered that the wallet had been taken.

A complaint was lodged at the same station by Nathan Fine, a salesman of 162 East 102d Street, who declared that $63 in bills was taken from his hip pocket in a Third Avenue train between the Thirty-fourth Street and Forty-second Street stations. He, too, was jostled by several men, and two blank checks signed "Leon and Rossenwasser" were also taken from his pocket.

A man, who refused to give either his name or address, complained to the police of the same precinct last night that while standing on the downtown platform of the Thirty-fourth Street station of the Third Avenue elevated $100 in bills was taken from his pocket. The robbery occurred in a manner similar to those of the other complainants.

William O'Connor, a broker's clerk of 531 East Eleventh Street, reported at the East Twenty-second Street Station that a check for $121 and $51 in bills were taken from his inside coat pocket while he was aboard a downtown Third Avenue train between Eighteenth and Fourteenth Streets. He spoke of the same jostling tactics.

SEIZE ROWDIES IN QUEENS.

Reserves Free Trolley Cars of Various Disturbing Elements.

Determined attempts were made by the police of the Astoria and Hunter's Point Precincts last night to break up the rioting of groups of young men that has come to be a regular feature of Sunday night travel on the trolley lines. About fifteen reserves of the Astoria Station were assigned to duty in the Woodside car barns, which most of the trolley lines pass.

They did not have much to do in the early part of the evening, but shortly after 11 o'clock there drew up in front of the barns a trolley car whose passengers were in an uproar. The police forced their way in, leaving the doors guarded, and, after quieting the passengers, arrested seven young men whom the conductor pointed out as having caused the disturbance.

The conductor told the police that they had first annoyed one of the women passengers and that when others in the car stopped them they had become quarrelsome and threatening for the rest of the trip. The seven were locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct, and will be brought to court this morning. They all gave addresses in New York City.

The reserves of the Hunter's Point Station were assigned to the Queensboro Bridge Plaza. Shortly after 10 o'clock Policeman Eadie was called to remove a disorderly man from a trolley car that had come into the terminal. His prisoner escaped as they were stepping off the platform and started across the open bridge plaza. Eadie caught up with him before he had gone a block. The man put up a fight, and in the struggle that followed he got the policeman's right hand in his mouth and bit the forefinger. After subduing his prisoner, Eadie went to St. John's Hospital and had the wound treated. The man was locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct and resisting an officer.

YOSEMITE RUNAWAY ON PRECIPICE EDGE

Tourist Killed and Women Hurt When Stage Coach Horses Bolt in the Valley.

PARTY FLUNG UNDER COACH

The Injured, Who Were All from the East, Includes Mrs. Jaeckel of New York.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—The Yosemite tourist season, which opened a fortnight ago, was marked yesterday by a fatal stage accident on a steep grade in Big Tree Grove, at Wawona, in the Yosemite Valley. R. S. Licenring of Allentown, Penn., was killed, three women were seriously hurt, and seven other persons were slightly injured. The more seriously injured were Miss Martha Webber of Boston, whose arm was broken; Miss Diesenderfer of Boston, who suffered a broken shoulder, and Mrs. A. Jaeckel of New York City, who received a deep cut over the eye. The driver of the stage escaped with a sprained foot.

All the victims of the accident were members of the Raymond-Whitcomb touring party from the East, who were staying at Camp Ahwanee in the Valley. The party which was in charge of R. S. Yard, conductor of the tour, left Camp Ahwanee early yesterday morning for a trip to Wawona, and after their visit to Big Trees were on their way back to the Valley(when the runaway occurred.

The party numbered forty persons and occupied four Big Mountain stages drawn by four horses each. Eleven, including the driver, were on the stage to which the accident happened. At one of the most dangerous points on the grade the horses became frightened and unmanageable.

The brakes failed to hold the vehicle, and the animals started at a mad gallop down the winding road, with the stage careening from side to side of the narrow way and the terror-stricken passengers shrieking in fright. The mad ride took place at a point where a dangerous precipice was on one side and a steep bank on the other.

Time after time the stage swung over the brink of the declivity, but the driver managed to hold the frightened animals in the road until, fearful that the runaway would result in the stage, with its entire load, going over the bank and being crushed on the rocks hundreds of feet below, he took a desperate chance and turned the horses into the inner bank.

The runaway was stopped, but the stage turned completely over, and several passengers were caught beneath it. Mr. Licenring was thrown out from the rear of the vehicle and was instantly killed, his skull being crushed.

The stages following came up to the scene of the accident a few minutes later and rescued the injured from the wreck.

Mrs. Jaeckel is the wife of Adelbert Jaeckel, President of A. Jaeckel & Co., dealers in furs, of 384 Fifth Avenue. At her home, 329 West Eighty-third Street, it was said last night that Mrs. Jaeckel left on a Western tour on May 11. No word had been received from her about the accident in the Yosemite Valley.

REPEATS DYNAMITING TALE.

Police, However, Doubt if Delaney Was a McNamara Spy.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 4.—John Delaney, quoted in a confession last night as having said he was employed by John J. McNamara, Secretary and Treasurer of the International Association of Structural Iron Workers, as a spy on non-union work, and that he marked the places where dynamite was to be placed, talked with visitors to-day, repeating the same story.

The official statement which was made to a detective from Oklahoma City is locked in the vault of a bank.

SALT LAKE, Utah, June 4.—John Delaney served a short term in jail here for complicity in the dynamiting of the Hotel Utah.

The steel work of the hotel was slightly damaged by an explosion on Dec. 29, 1909, as declared by Delaney in his confession at Oklahoma City. He was sentenced to pay a fine and serve six months in jail.

According to Sheriff Sharp, Delaney in his term in jail told many contradictory stories concerning his connection with alleged crimes of the ironworkers, and little credence was placed in his tale.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Chicago police discredit the reported confession of John Delaney, who said he had at the direction of John J. McNamara selected structures in different cities for destruction by dynamite. Among the steel structures he mentioned was a viaduct in Chicago. He said it was blown up in February, 1907. Examination of police records disclosed no record of such an explosion in that year in the city limits.

Out in Janesville.

As a fitting accompaniment of the transcendent gladness of the refreshing and exuberant Spring season the brilliant dancing fête at which Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Osborn last night entertained Janesville society will long be remembered as one of the most delightful social events ever given in the city. The completeness and the grandeur of the directions, the bewitching music of the Krell orchestra, and the ever present radiance of the handsomely attired women, all contributed toward the charm and the happiness of the occasion.—Janesville Recorder.

PATROL TIRES HIM QUICKLY.

Newark Policeman Resigns After 3 Hours' Trial of the Job.

Patrolman Daniel F. Haggerty started off on Saturday night at 9 o'clock on his first tour of duty in Newark. His post was in the southern section, where houses are far apart and mosquitos close together. After patrolling for three hours, he decided that police life would not agree with him, and early yesterday morning he returned to the station house, handed in his club, badge, and keys and then sat down and wrote out his resignation.

Haggerty had gone to the trouble of taking a civil service examination for his job, and had done two hours' patrol duty every evening with a regular policeman while being broken in.

CRY OF THE TAILORS

Tired of Carrying Clothes Home and Sewing Into the Night

The members of Local 390 of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, who say they make suits for millionaires, met yesterday at the headquarters of the union, 106 West Thirty-first street, to agitate for the opening of factories by their employers, most of whom, they say, give the tailors the work to take home after the garments are cut

The tailors in Local 390 work for merchant tailors whose showrooms are in Fifth Avenue and the adjoining streets. The measurements of the customers are taken at the warerooms where the cutters work and the tailors call daily for the cloth to take home. They are employed on the piecework system, and complain that they have to wait so long in the warerooms every day for the cut parts of garments that they are kept working far into the evening to sew them together. N. Croonquest, organizer of the union, who presided at the meeting, said:

"If the rich men knew the conditions under which some of our members work they would join us in our agitation for factory work. Many of our members have large families and live in tenements. In a family with six or seven children the conditions in the rooms in which they live, eat and sleep cannot be considered most sanitary. Yet the clothes are made in these rooms.

"The tailors do not like making workshops of their already crowded homes. The few factories which have been established for the trade are sanitary. We want to have all the work done in factories."

It was decided at the meeting to call organization meetings, to send men throughout the city to organize the trade, and then make a general demand for the abolition of home work and the opening of factories by all the employers.

Does It Make Any Difference to You Where Your Clothes Are Made?

The well-dressed men of New York are the best-groomed and cleanest men in the world. And they want clean clothes. That very bad conditions still exist, in places where men have a right to expect something very different, is proven by the article here quoted from a recent issue of the New York Sun.

The man of cleanly habits couldn't tolerate clothing made under unclean conditions.

BUT, HOW CAN HE BE SURE?

By buying high-class ready-made clothing. For the high-class factory is generally sanitary and clean to the highest possible degree. Certainly the most particular man in the world would be delighted with conditions found in the factories that make

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 4.—The Giants were beaten 6 to 5 by some hard luck and some worse umpiring in the third game of their series with the Cubs to-day, after they had taken the lead in the early stages of the game and held it for five innings, despite the efforts of Umpire Johnstone to make Wiltse put everything over the centre of the plate, before he would cease the monotony of calling balls on the lanky southpaw.

Wiltse was outlucked all the way through, and would have won his game handily at that had not a batted ball struck him amidships in the eighth inning and weakened him so that Ames had to make a futile rescue attempt in the ninth, after the Cubs had tied the score at 5 to 5.

Johnstone chased Larry Doyle to the clubhouse for arguing his ability to judge strikes and balls. This is the third time Larry has been bounced in the three games in Chicago. The rulings of the arbiter behind the plate were so apparently off that the crowd was all with the acting manager of the Giants and cheered him on in his scrap for better eye work on the part of the umpire.

Nearly 30,000 fans were kept fuming in the hottest weather of the season while Johnstone delayed the game until Doyle disappeared into the clubhouse. The switch from Eason to Johnstone at the plate was gratifying to Cub fans only. He failed to satisfy the Giants. In the second inning Doyle took exception to Johnstone's ruling on a pitched ball, and the acting manager rushed to the plate and argued the proposition at length and fiercely.

The result was that he was exiled. This put Fletcher into the controversy and he not only played a nice game at second, but he figured in the run-getting to a great extent. Devore's run, with which the game started away, was a sort of present. He did drill a nice single to centre field, but Kaiser failed to stop it and it drifted on into the crowd. Before the pill could be recovered the speedy outfielder had made the circuit. Doyle followed with a double to centre and Snodgrass got on by being hit by a pitched ball. Kling caught Snodgrass off first and the Cubs were running him up and down the base line when Doyle endeavored to score from third. A shift in the play caught him at third, with Jimmy Doyle getting the put-out.

Then Mordecai Brown tightened and struck out Murray and Merkle, winding up the inning. The Cubs went out in order in the opening and the Giants grew dangerous in their portion of the second. Devlin singled and Zimmerman obliged with an error on Meyers' effort. This was a bad move for the Bronx artist. He had Devlin running into a double play if he tossed to Tinker, but instead tried to get Devlin himself. As a result he missed both players. In the Cubs' half of the second they scored two runs. Zimmerman started away with a single, and after Doyle flew out got to second on Tinker's hit to right. Kaiser got on with a single to third base that Devlin knocked down, but failed to recover in time to throw to first. This filled the bases and seemed to disconcert Wiltse, for the southpaw walked Kling and forced Zimmerman across with the first tally.

Then came a peculiar play. Brown made what looked like a clean hit to centre field. Devore reached the ball and sent it to the plate, where it beat Tinker. It was with Sheckard up that Larry Doyle objected to some of Johnstone's decisions and was ousted from the session. When the confusion subsided Sheckard walked, scoring Kaiser with the second run, and Schulte wound up the inning with a pop that was corralled by Meyers.

In the third the Giants evened the score. Fletcher tripled to deep centre and scored on Murray's single to right. Murray stole second, but died there, Brown coming along with the proper line of pitching, and the side was retired. In the fourth New York scored a trio of runs. Devlin walked, but he was forced at second by the Big Chief. Wiltse struck out, but Devore came back with a single to centre, and Meyers went to third. Jimmy Sheckard dropped Fletcher's high fly. Meyers and Devore scored on this, and Fletcher went to third on the throw to infield. Brown became rattled, a wild pitch scoring Fletcher with the third run, making the Giants' total 5. Snodgrass walked, but was forced at second by Murray, and the spasm was over.

After the fourth and until the conclusion of the eighth Brown pitched masterly ball. He wouldn't have been taken out had it not been for the chances that appeared for a needed hit, and Archer was sent in to bat for him in the eighth. Richie was sent to the rescue, and in his one-inning effort gets credit for a winning game.

With two out in the eighth, Tinker soaked a line drive right at Wiltse, and it hit him full in the chest and jumped back to the back line before the tall twirler could recover the ball. Tinker was safe on an infield. The blow on the chest must have affected Wiltse, for the first time in the game the Cubs got hits in a row off his delivery. Kaiser singled to centre and Kling doubled to the same and Tinker scored, then Archer went into bat for Brown and Saier was put on the sacks to run for Johnny Kling, whose underpinning is weak just now. Archer doubled into right field, scoring both Kaiser and Saier. The score was tied 5 to 5, and that aggregation of 28,000 fans went nigh crazy. Pandemonium reigned, and it only subsided when Sheckard was retired for the third out when he hit a sharp one to Merkle. It was a wonderful stop.

Then came the finish—the wonderful ninth inning. Schulte started away with a long fly to Snodgrass. Hofman shot a sizzling single over second and went on to that bag when Zimmerman winged one to left field. Right here Wiltse was plainly in trouble and Hofman and Zimmerman singled. Wiltse gave way to Ames. A passed ball advanced both runners. Doyle singled, scoring Hofman, and the game was won.

POLO TEAMS READY FOR SECOND MATCH

Playing Ground at Meadow Brook in Perfect Playing Condition—No Change in Line-Up.

With the fine drying wind and accompanying sunshine of yesterday the polo field of the Meadow Brook Club is now at its best, and close followers of the game look for a marked improvement in the play of both the American and English teams when they line up this afternoon for the second match for the International Cup.

It will be such a field as the Americans are used to playing on, and considerably nearer that which the Englishmen are used to, their desire being for an almost flintlike turf, such as they experienced in India, where most of their playing has been done, and which permits of longer drives, with the short strokes they use, with a better opportunity for perfect direction.

The invaders feel that, with a faster field than they played on on Thursday last, their chances of victory will be materially increased, their contention being that they had more opportunities for scoring in that game than the Americans, but were considerably handicapped by poorly directed shots. With to-day's field, however, in the shape it is in they anticipate better fortune with their drives when they get into American territory.

Their ponies will stand up better on the faster field, which will not tire them half as quickly as in the previous match, and it is the undercurrent of opinion in the English camp that to-day's showing will be more spectacular all the way through, and savor of the speed which obtained in the first half of the first match.

The English players are highly gratified with the manner in which the English public generally viewed their initial efforts to lift the cup, and while they do not give vent to a decided opinion one way or the other in regard to the second game, each has a confident hope that their excellent combination plays will warrant their holding the Americans in check, and prevent such spectacular driving as occurred in the game on Thursday.

While there has been some discussion concerning the possibility of a change in the line-up of the American team, it was announced that the quartet would be the same that brought the cup to the States, and so ably defended it in the first match.

During an interesting discussion at one of the Long Island clubs yesterday relative to the proposition that the American ponies were better than those used by the English players, one of the participants who has decided American tendencies, said he thought the ponies brought over by the challengers were just as good in every way as those ridden by the Meadow Brook players, in view of the fact that they were the best obtainable.

He rather startled his hearers with a decidedly sporting suggestion, which was none other than that each side should choose its four best ponies, and let the Englishmen ride the American selections and the Americans the English choices in a gallop across the field's length. It was his idea that the Americans could win an event of the kind with the mounts handed them.

It was stated that in the event of an English victory to-day, the next and concluding match would be played on Thursday, weather permitting, of course.

Whenever a player drives the ball over the end line outside the posts of the goal he is defending, it shall be deemed a safety. A player shall not crook his adversary's mallet unless he is on the same side of the adversary's pony as the ball, or in a direct line behind, and his mallet is neither over nor under the adversary's pony. The mallet may not be crooked unless his adversary is in the act of striking the ball. The ball continues in play after the seven and a half minutes signal is sounded until it hits the sideboards or goes out of bounds. Such overtime is deducted from the subsequent period.

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Newark Recuperates and Wins Twice from Providence Team.

Newark won both games of a double header with Providence in Newark yesterday. The 8,000 fans present were loud in their applause for "Iron Man" McGinnity and his Indians.

It was anything but tail-end baseball the locals put up, and Jimmy Collins and his clam diggers were a surprised lot. The first game ended 12 to 2 and the second 5 to 2. In the first the Braves hit the ball at a lively clip, getting fifteen hits. Lee proved equally as effective in the second session. The scores:

VANDERBILT'S HORSE LOSES.

Rose Verte, an Outsider, Defeats Baume for French Oaks.

PARIS, June 4.—The Whitsuntide fêtes and brilliant weather attracted record crowds to the Chantilly race course today, where the feature was the Prix de Diane (the French Oaks), a stake valued at $18,000. Many Americans witnessed this event, in which twenty-one horses started.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Brume was a strong favorite and made the running almost to the end, when M. Aumont's Rose Verte, an outsider in the betting at thirty to one, came up strongly and won by a length and a half. Brume finished second, with Marquis Lauriston's Sibylla third. Frank Gould's Jarretiere was unplaced. The Prix de Diane was for 3-year-old fillies at ten and one-half furlongs.

Frank Gould's Combourg ran second in the Prix Pedouville at ten furlongs.

KRAMER DEFEATS CLARKE.

National Champion Noses Out Australian at Velodrome.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., June 4.—Joe Fogler defeated Floyd MacFarland, the veteran cyclist, to-day at the Velodrome bicycle track in the five-mile motor-paced race. Fogler led off at a fast clip and held the lead throughout the race and won by a half lap.

In the half-mile National championship Frank Kramer nosed Jackie Clarke out at the tape. It was an exciting finish, and for a time the winner of the race appeared to be in doubt until it was officially announced. Jackie Clarke captured the three-mile professional handicap in a wonderful burst of speed in the last three laps of the race. He was pocketed by the other riders in the race, but pulled himself out and started a fast sprint to the tape. Kramer, Goullet, Menus Bedell, and Eddie Rupprecht started after Clarke, but he had such a big lead that they were unable to overhaul him. The summary:

Quarter-Mile Novice.—Won by L. Sayers, Newark; G. Moeller, Newark, second. Time—0:32 1-5.

Half-Mile Championship, Professional.—Won by Frank Kramer, East Orange; Jackie Clarke, Australia, second; Joseph A. Fogler, Brooklyn, third. Time—1:20 1-5.

Jones Will Not Run This Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 4.—Cornell's distance runner, John Paul Jones, will not take part in any meets this Summer nor will he run under any other colors than those of Cornell University. This was announced to-day by Coach Moakley, who brought Jones out. The latter has received a good many invitations to run at games in various parts of the country, but all have been declined. He will not run again until next Fall, when he takes part in the cross-country meets.

WORLD'S RECORDS AT CELTIC PARK

Dan Ahearne, in Hop-Step, and J. J. Eller in Hurdles—Kiviat Defeats Paull.

Two world's records were established yesterday at Celtic Park at the games of the Bricklayers and Masons' Union, and the 3,000 persons present were rewarded for their devotion to the cause of amateur sport by some keenly contested events.

Dan Ahearne put to his credit 51 feet 4½ inches in the running hop, step, (or two hops) and a jump, which is the best recorded performance in the world. Despite this fine work, he gained but third place in the contest, which was accounted for by men with 8 feet and 6½ feet handicaps, respectively.

Jack Eller gave further evidence of his hurdling ability when he smashed the 75-yard record over the low flights by doing 0:09 1-5 and displacing the former mark of 0:09 2-5, held jointly by himself, his brother Bob, and Roger Bacon of Wesleyan.

Quite the best distance race seen in local circles in some time was the 1,500-meter invitation, and it had all the earmarks of an event of championship importance, having as starters such famous runners as Wilton C. Paull, former holder of the intercollegiate one-mile record; Melvin W. Shepard, the maker of marks innumerable; Abel Kiviat, winner of more scratch miles than any one in the territory; Jack Monument, the one-mile National champion; Frank Riley, Joe Meeks, and Dave Noble.

This was probably the event which had the closest attention of the day. It finally resulted in one of the most keenly contested races ever seen in this vicinity, as Kiviat just did get to the tape by about three inches ahead of Paull, who in turn led Riley by fifteen yards, in the slashing time of 4:03 2-5.

Billy Hayes, the National quarter-mile champion, showed his heels to the 300-yard handicap field, getting to the tape in fine style from scratch in 0:31 4-5, winning by five yards handily. The other backmarker, Roy Dorland, failed to qualify in the heats.

The two-mile run, although won by a middle mark man, was productive of some capital work on the part of Louis Scott, of South Paterson, who did 9:40 3-5 all the way, and got second place. Tom Collins was third, ten yards behind Scott.

In the discus event the Sheridan family had a winning session, as Martin the scratch man, won with 130 feet 9 inches, and Andy, his brother, in receipt of 15 feet, got the Greek weight out the creditable distance of 123 feet 5 inches, which got second place.

The 100-yard handicap proved a gift for I. Picard of the Flatbush A. C., who was presented with ten yards, and won the final by three from H. Taber, Irish-American A. C., who was a half yard to the good of Gwinn Henry, the scratch man, the time being 0:10, and run in the face of quite a strong breeze. The summary.

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by I. Picard, Flatbush A. C., (10 yards;) H. Taber, Irish-American A. C., (6½ yards,) second; Gwinn Henry, unattached, (scratch,) third. Time—0:10. Won by three yards; one foot between second and third.

Two-Mile Steeplechase, Handicap.—Won by John J. Daly, Irish-American A. C., (scratch;) F. Ruggerio, Pastime A. C., (100 yards,) second; Harry J. Smith, Pastime A. C., (70 yards,) third. Time—11:20 2-5. Won by sixty yards; fifty between second and third.

75-Yard Hurdle, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by John J. Eller, Irish-American A. C., (scratch;) Robert Eller, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) second; I. K. Lovell, Irish-American A. C., (2 yards,) third. Time—0:09 1-5. Won by two yards; inches between second and third.

1,500-Meter Race, Scratch, Invitation.—Won by Abel R. Kiviat, Irish-American A. C.; Wilton O. Paull, University of Pennsylvania, second; Frank N. Riley, Irish-American A. C., third. Time—4:03 2-5. Won by six inches; fifteen yards between second and third.

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by H. Muller, Mohawk A. C., (55 yards;) S. J. Riley, Irish-American A. C., (25 yards,) second; M. McHugh, Pastime A. C., (46 yards,) third. Time—2:15 3-5. Won by two yards; same between second and third.

Throwing Discus, Handicap.—Won by Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) with 130 feet, 9 inches; A. J. Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., (15 feet,) second, with 123 feet 5 inches; N. Yeahus, Pastime A. C., (15 feet,) third, with 112 feet 1 inch.

Two-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by H. Barling, Irish-American A. C., (90 yards;) Louis Scott, South Paterson A. C., (scratch,) second; T. J. Collins, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) third. Time—9:34 3-5. Won by forty yards; ten yards between second and third.

300-Yard Run, Handicap.—Final Heat—Won by W. J. Hayes, Philadelphia, (scratch;) A. H. Smith, Mohawk A. C., (15 yards,) second; H. Oltmann, National A. C., (12 yards,) third. Time—0:31 4-5. Won by five yards; two yards between second and third.

Running Hop, Step, (or Two Hops,) and Jump, Handicap.—Won by I. Levy, Morris A. A., (8 feet,) with 43 feet 11 inches; J. Wilkinson, Irish-American A. C., (6½ feet,) second, with 44 feet 11 inches; D. F. Ahearne, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) third, with 51 feet 4½ inches.

RECREATION CENTRE GAMES.

Second Annual Contests of Sheridan A. C. Furnishes Good Sport.

A crowd of nearly 3,000 persons witnessed the second annual games of the Sheridan A. C. yesterday at Seward Park. The six events brought out 350 athletes from the various evening recreation centres of the city, and was productive of some exciting finishes.

The feature event was the three-mile run, which was captured by E. C. Kennedy of Evening Recreation Centre 23. About forty starters faced the tape, with handicaps ranging up to 150 yards, and, after a very spirited finish, Kennedy, who started from the 100-yard mark, won by inches from two of the scratch men—V. Douis, No. 62, Manhattan, and S. Damiano, also of the same centre, who were second and third, respectively.

S. W. Wilcox, E. R. C. High School of Commerce, who holds the recreation centre record for the 1,000-yard run, was placed on the back mark in the run at this distance yesterday, and, after a brilliant performance, was only beaten to the tape by inches, T. Harley of 146, Brooklyn, with a start of forty-five yards, getting the honors.

The only easy win of the entire programme was in the 440-yard handicap, and Z. Goldstein, who was allowed a mark of six yards, made good use of the distance and won handily. The summaries:

60-Yard Dash, Handicap, Open to Playground Boys.—Won by H. L. Robinowitz, Seward Park, (1 foot;) S. Falk, Tompkins Square Park, (2 feet,) second; P. Klauber, Seward Park, (3 feet,) third. Time—0:07.

DUAL TEAM CONTEST.

Ten Members of Morris A. A. Compete in Elimination Race.

Ten club members of the Morris A. A. were put under test yesterday at Macomb's Dam Park in a dual team race to determine the best of the string to represent the club in the future dual games with the Mohawk A. C. The teams were pitted in a medley relay race, with five men in each, the first team allowing its opponents a handicap of 178 yards. In the first relay of two miles S. Rosenbaum was opposed by H. Backer for the distance. When the pair completed their task S. Aggen of the first team was handed a lead of fifty-five yards to take up his run against J. Manning for a distance of three-quarters of a mile. Aggen held the position until the finish, and managed to open more of a gap on the second team runner.

The third relay at a mile distance was between two walkers, each covering a distance of one mile. B. W. Smith took up the jogging for the first team, with W. Krause as his opponent, but the latter proved the best pedestrian and cut down the lead to twenty yards before the walk was ended. The next pair to try conclusions were L. Cohen for the first team and J. Kunzel, each running a quarter of a mile. The position did not change in this period, as both runners were on about even terms, and in the final relay, which was a sprint between W. Wenzel and A. Kuttner over a distance of 220 yards, the former won out by a margin of about ten yards.

HART WINS TWO RACES.

Four Motor Cycle Events Decided at the Guttenberg Track.

Frank Hart was the star of motorcycle races at the Guttenberg Motordrome yesterday, winning the two events he entered. The best race of the day was the five-mile Trade Riders' Handicap, in which five men started. Hart, Mercier, and Costello were on scratch, with Cox on the fifteen-second mark, and Constant, with twenty seconds handicap. Hart by clever riding overhauled Constant on the second mile, while Cox dropped out. Costello was closely pressing Hart, and on the third mile a short distance separated them.

Hart could not better the advantage his Indian had over the Merkel, ridden by Costello, and the race was too short for the latter. Hart won by about seventy-five yards in 5:09 1-5.

There was a professional match race scheduled between Guterman, Chapple, and Charles Mitchell of Dallas, Texas, but a disagreement arose among the riders as to the style of a start, and the race had to be abandoned. The summaries:

Three-Mile Novice, Open.—Won by D. W. Marvin, (Indian, 7;) D. Epstein, (Indian, 5,) second. Time—3:35.

Five-Mile Private Owners.—Won by F. L. Vanderpoel, (Indian, 7;) D. W. Marvin, (Indian, 7,) second; T. Rice, (Merkel, 6,) third. Time—6:03.

Fifteen-Mile Trade Riders, Handicap.—Won by Frank Hart, (Indian, 7) (scratch;) Ferd Mercier, (Indian, 7,) (scratch,) second; Percy Drummond, (Indian, 5,) (54 seconds,) third. Time—16:31 3-5.

Five-Mile Trade Riders, Handicap—Won by Frank Hart, (Indian, 7,) (scratch;) M. C. Costello, (Merkel, 7,) (scratch,) second; Ferd Mercier, (Indian, 7,) (scratch,) third. Time—5:00 1-5.

BURNS-DALY BOUT STELLAR BATTLE

Bantams Will Contest at Ten Rounds at Twentieth Century Club Friday Night.

In the world of fistiana this week the pièce de resistance promises to be the Frankie Burns-Johnny Daly affair on Friday night at the Twentieth Century Athletic Club, at the St. Nicholas Rink. This affair has all the earmarks of a championship match. Daly has had a couple of sessions with the Western stickler for everything in sight, and in their go two weeks ago handed Coulon a volleying that had him dizzy.

Frankie Burns welcomes the opportunity, wherein he expects to show New Yorkers that he is the real bantam champion. Both men are about as evenly matched as can be, and their adherents are agreed that, from a betting standpoint it's an even-money proposition. In his anxiety to be in a position to put in his bid for a match with either Daly or Burns, Coulon has announced that he will challenge the winner. Both boys will weigh in at 116 pounds ringside.

The fans will start off the week to-night at the Olympic Club in Harlem, when they will see Sailor Burke and Ted Nelson, the Australian middleweight. They will travel the usual distance of ten rounds, and each is of the opinion that he will hand the other his quietus. Both men are of the smash-bang order, and as each has designs on the middleweight title, a stirring battle is promised.

Coincident with this event, the Colin Athletic Club, in Ridgewood, has carded as its star attraction a bout at ten rounds between Terry Mitchell and Willie Reid. This will be prefaced by a six-round go with Davy Hayes and Young Governor as the principals.

To-morrow night at Brown's Gymnasium Jack Dorman and Kid Burns will come together at ten rounds. Burns has met and rendered good accounts of himself in battles with Johnny Marto, Young Donohue, Jack Denning, Jack Britton, Tommy Maloney, Paddy Sullivan, Phil Cross, and others, and is expected to continue his winning career when he faces Dorman. As a curtain raiser Prof. Atlas and one Schinzing, from Hoboken, will participate in a heavyweight catch-as-catch-can wrestling bout.

At the Longacre Athletic Association Thursday night Billy West, the hard-hitting New Yorker, has been matched against Young Monohan, who, although unknown to most of the local fight followers, is said to have a string of knockouts a yard long, to which he intends to add that of West. Other affairs in this series will be three four-round bouts and a six-round semi-final.

The runners up in the recent "White Hope" tournament will be the main attractions at the National Sporting Club show next Friday night. The pair slated are Sailor White and Al. Benedict. The latter asserts that he had had two hard bouts prior to the final in the series ten days ago, and could not do himself justice. He thinks that he can beat White, and will get his chance Friday. There will also be a ten-round affair between Young McGovern and Johnny Dundee. Christy Williams and Shadow Morris are still another pair carded.

Bantams will hold the boards Wednesday night at the Sharkey A. C. The principals will be Packey Hommey and Young Eger of the West Side, who has been giving a good account of himself on all his recent battles. There will also be several four- and six-round bouts.

PAPKE TO FIGHT SULLIVAN.

American to Battle with English Champion for the World's Title.

Of the many boxing contests arranged for the Coronation period in London, which is now crowded with visitors from all lands, unquestionably the one which is attracting the greatest amount of attention is that arranged by Hugh D. McIntosh, for decision at the Palladium, the new fight club, on Thursday of this week between Billy Papke and Jim Sullivan, the English title holder, for the middleweight championship of the world. This will be the first real world's championship held in England for a generation.

The Palladium, the largest music hall in Europe, in which the contest will be staged, costs McIntosh $2,500 a night, and the leasing of it for such a purpose is considered in England to have been a master stroke. Eugene Corri will be the referee, which at once acclaims a fair field and no favor to the contestants.

The scheduled bout is a world's championship on an enormous scale, and it is anticipated that the gate will exceed that of the Lang-Langford battle, which up to that time exceeded all previous attendances in England. Sullivan is the best middleweight England has produced since the days of Charley Mitchell and Jack Burke, and he is being liberally backed to beat Papke.

McIntosh has taken over the Folies Bergere in Paris, for Grand Prix Eve, June 24, and at that time he will have Papke, win or lose, with Sullivan, fight Marxeau, the French middleweight, or Leo Houck. McIntosh writes that

The littel syndicate which ran the Wogram in Paris has been frozen out of existence. The competition was too great for them and they succumbed. Many notable battles were fought out there, and the patrons who remained loyal to the end regret that their former rendevous has come a cropper.

Edmund Covell, McIntosh's Australian manager, arrived from Australia last Sunday, and he and Mrs. McIntosh immediately commenced preparations for next season's campaign. The latter he secured a piece of ground in the central part of the West End of London, on which he will build an earena capable of seating 10,000, and this will be the headquarters of a huge boxing circuit that he will include London, Paris, and Australia. In Paris, he will probably take the Hippodrome, as, after all that is the best place in the gay city for the purpose.

The McIntosh staff is already negotiating with all the leading boxers of the day. He proposes to give six genuine championship contests in each of London, Paris, and Sydney next season, and minor bouts as usual. Among the boxers to be engaged are Jack Johnson, Bill Lang, Sam Langford, Jack Lester, Joe Jeannette, Sam McVea, Harry Lewis, Billy Papke, Jim Sullivan, Bombardier Wells, Johnny Summers, Jimmy Clabby, Jimmy Gardner, Digger Stanley, Abe Attell, Fred Welsh, Ad Wolgast, and Jim Driscoll.

BROOKLYN SPEEDWAY.

New Course for Pleasure Horse Drivers Will Open on Wednesday Afternoon

The completion of the new Brooklyn speedway will be celebrated on Wednesday afternoon, with a parade of pleasure horses under the auspices of the Brooklyn Pleasure Drivers' Association. Brooklyn horsemen have never enjoyed a real speedway until the present course was made possible by the recent ruling of Park Commissioner Kennedy, which was sustained by legislative action. The event will be the greatest affair of its kind ever held in Brooklyn, and in the line will be more than 300 of the best-known horse owners representative of the entire metropolitan district.

Of the 300 entries already made, nearly 200 of them are women drivers. Women have not taken a very active part in the light harness sport in Brooklyn because of the presence of automobiles on the speedway, but now that the machines will not interfere, a revival of driving among the women is looked for. One of the entries in the parade is Mrs. John Gerken, owner of several show horses, and five of her prize winners will be in the procession. Mrs. Gerken will drive her best team, News Boy and Shop Girl. Her ponies, Daisy and Toronto, will be driven by Edward Gerken and Charles Gerken. Another entry in the saddle class will be Capt. George Brighton, who has seen service on the western plains with Col. W. F. Cody. He will wear his scout costume.

The parade will form at Ocean Parkway, move southward along that boulevard, over the new speedway, to the Parkway Driving Club track, at Kings Highway, where the entries will be judged. The formation at the Circle will be: Saddle horses and ponies on Fort Hamilton Avenue, speed wagons and carts on Prospect Avenue, runabouts, the largest class, will form in Greenwood Avenue, on the west of Prospect Avenue, and teams, surries, and victorias will form in Greenwood Avenue, to the east of Prospect Avenue. There will be marshals for each division to direct the entries and many aids to assist them. Forty mounted policemen will direct the formation and lead the parade, so that ample protection will be at hand. The entries must be in their places at 1:30. At 2 o'clock sharp the word to start will be given. Leading the column will be the new Speedway Squad of police. Then will come St. John's Home Boys Band, of fifty-two pieces.

Among the guests who will ride in carriages will be Park Commissioner Michael J. Kennedy, Park Supt. William J. Hartman, former Assemblyman Henry E. Goodspeed, who framed the Speedway bill, and several city officials. The judges will include Matthew Dean, W. Frederic Moore, and Henry H. Solmon, Vice President of the Riding and Driving Club. The Grand Marshal will be James J. Heffernan, President of the Pleasure Drivers' Association, who will drive his black filly Anne E. His aids will be the other members of the parade committee, Edward K. Coffin, Jr., Griffin B. Conklin, Joseph T. Carboy, and William Nathis. The different classes will be judged at the Parkway track and thirty-two prizes will be awarded.

NOTES FOR MOTOR CYCLISTS.

Frank Hart, the local motor cycle racer, returned to this city on Thursday from Chicago, where he had participated in a three days' race meet at the Hawthorne track, commencing May 28. On the opening day of the meet Hart figured in an accident that resulted in the death of one rider and the injury of several others. While leading the field in a ten-mile race the front tire on Hart's machine blew out and caused the rider to fall. The racers folland caused the rider to fall. The racers, following at terrific speed, could not stop in and there was a great jam. Harry Nixon was thrown from his machine and received a fractured skull and other injuries that resulted in his death. Although Hart was at the bottom of the wrecked machines, he was uninjured and continued in the other events of the day. Hart said the bad condition of the track was the cause of his tire trouble. He said he entered five races and won three firsts and finished in front in the other two events.

The first 24-hour endurance motor cycle run ever held in the country, that promoted by the New Jersey Motor Cycle Club on May 29 and 30 from Newark to Atlantic City and return, was a very successful affair, and, despite the hard road conditions encountered on part of the run, a large percentage of the starters completed the contest. Thirty-nine riders left Newark at 7 o'clock Monday evening, and after traveling over the New Jersey roads all night arrived at the seashore resort early the following morning. After breakfast the return trip was started. The route was bordered by Atlantic City, Camden, Trenton, Mendham, and Newark. At the end of the 24 hours of riding twenty-nine men still remained in the contest, although all did not have perfect scores. One woman was on the trip. She was Mrs. Clayton Cox of Elizabeth, N. J., who rode in a side car attachment with her husband. After riding all night she thought the affair was too strenuous and gave up at Atlantic City. Among the New York riders to complete the run were H. G. Truppner, 3½ Yale; B. J. Huerlander, 4 Yale; Stanley Beach, 6 Excelsior; Joseph Buckingham, 4 Harley-Davidson; Otto Krause, 4 Harley-Davidson; H. B. Thorpe, 4 Harley-Davidson; Carl Stevens, 4 Harley-Davidson; G. A. Smith, 6 Merkel, and Al Graves, 6 Reading-Standard.

The organization of the Indian M. C. of New York was completed last Wednesday with the election of officers and the drafting of the constitution and by-laws. P. F. Edgar was elected President and H. F. Bidwell Secretary and Treasurer. The club is to devote its attention in the sport line to touring only, and no member will be permitted to race as a representative of the club. The club will promote runs for the members, and entrance fees will go toward providing a dinner for the participants in the events. The club's membership is limited to twenty-five and already twenty have joined the organization. The headquarters are to be at 2,142 Broadway.

The Concourse M. C. of the Bronx is scheduled to hold its fourth annual Spring run to Savin Rock, Conn., to-day. The start will be made from club headquarters at Jerome Avenue and 165th Street at 7 A. M. A race meet is also scheduled for the Guttenberg track in the afternoon.

Cornell's New Track Captain.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 4.—Herbert Nathan Putnam, Cornell's crack half-mile runner, was elected Captain of the Cornell track team at a meeting here to-day. Putnam succeeds E. G. MacArthur. Berna has already been chosen Captain of the cross-country team. Putnam will be a senior next year; he comes from Fredonia. He won the half mile in the Pennsylvania dual meet in 1:56 2-5 and was but four yards behind Jones in the intercollegiates. He is also a cross-country runner.

MATINEE HORSES IN FAST BRUSHES

Denver Wins Two Heats on the Speedway—Mahlon Wilkes Scores Double Victory.

Brushing on the Speedway yesterday was the best witnessed since the Spring matinée season opened. Nearly every member of the Road Drivers' Association was out with his horse, and the matches that started early in the morning were kept up until well after noon.

Sol B. Wolf, owner of the fast pacing mare Minnie Albert, and who has always been a prominent figure in the Speedway brushing, was for the first time in three years one of the spectators, which was due to the fact that he has disposed of his horse to a foreign agent. When Mr. Wolf made known the news that he had disposed of his horse it caused quite a little comment among the horsemen, but he said he would not retire from the game. The purchase was made by an agent for a foreign party, and it is expected that Minnie Albert will be shipped to Germany in a few days.

The first match of the morning was a three-cornered affair, in which George C., driven by J. Kuhlman, after some spirited going showed his heels to Teddy P. and Bright Direct. After the first brush the drivers lost little time in hooking up and came down the stretch in numerous dashes.

Nathan Straus was among the first to show up for a brush, and during his stay on the drive managed to secure three opponents, two of whom he defeated easily with his gray gelding Denver, 2:14¼. In the first match Mr. Straus encountered G. Stengle, a New Jersey horseman, behind Ouadie, with a mark of 2:18½. Denver led all the way from the start and came under the wire with plenty in reserve. In the second brush Denver was sent against William Scott's Elliott B., and after getting away to a bad start in which Elliott B. had a few lengths advantage managed to close in, but was beaten at the finish by a half length. The defeat of Denver, however, did not count, owing to the uneven start. Toward the close of the morning Denver was again sent down the drive in competition with E. Shoemaker's trotter Dick Williams, and won handily.

President Gibbons was out early with his chestnut gelding Mahlon Wilkes, and after a warming-up session managed to annex a double victory. His first opponent was with T. H. Bassett's Baron Delect. Mahlon Wilkes is a trotter, while Baron Delect is of the side-wheeling type of horse, and the latter was sent down to defeat after a spirited brush. Mahlon Wilkes's second victim was one of his own kind, Oliver Todd, from which he won from by a length and a half after easy sailing. In a series of three brushes between The Trip and Pioneer Princess, the former won the first contest handily, but had the tables reversed in the ensuing ones.

Thomas C. Harper, who handled the reins over his Class B pacer George Patchen, won a three-cornered match with Dr. Threet and Midnight Direct. E. Binzen's bay gelding Ragged Edge won an easy victory over T. Young's brown gelding C. C., but later suffered defeat from William Scott's Elliott B. In a fast brush Mr. Binzen showed against Hugh Reilly's Octavia and captured two straight heats.

James Murphy, who showed up late with Ardelle, managed to secure one opponent in the person of G. Stengle, and after hooking up with Ouadie won with ease. Dr. G. Mehler, one of the latest additions to the ranks, who was driving Young Wicklow, got in a double victory by defeating Dr. Ferster, who was behind his bay gelding Strathino. Baron Delect also beat Strathino in a close brush toward the close of the morning's sport.

Auto Ambulance in Collision.

Many Italians living in the neighborhood of First Avenue and Ninety-eighth Street got an unexpected addition to the week's larder last night when a new automobile ambulance of the Metropolitan Hospital on Blackwell's Island ran into an Armour meat truck, sending its driver to the street along with a lot of beef. The front of the ambulance was smashed and $300 worth of damage done. The ambulance was obliged to turn over its sick call to another vehicle, and the surgeon turned his attention to the driver of the meat wagon, who was patched up and sent home.

Auto Races at Guttenberg.

Sanction has been granted to the Guttenberg Motordrome Association by the Contest Board of the A. A. A. to have automobile races at Guttenberg Race Track Saturday, June 17, at 2:30 P. M. The promoter has promised the Contest Board that he will scrape, roll, and oil the track, and build a paddock for the cars that are entered in the races. It was on these conditions that the sanction was granted, as the Contest Board did not want to have a reproduction of the meet as conducted early in the season, which was not satisfactory to either the owner of the track or the Contest Board.

No expense will be spared in order to make this meet a success, as the promoter expects to have a number of these meets this season. The race schedule follows:

Three miles, non-stock, Class 2, cars under 161 cubic inches piston displacement.

Five miles, non-stock, Class 3, open to any car or chassis under 231 cubic inches piston displacement.

Five miles, non-stock, open to any car or chassis under 301 cubic inches piston displacement.

Ten miles, non-stock, open to any car or chassis under 451 cubic inches piston displacement.

Five miles, non-stock, open to any car privately owned, owner to drive.

YALE AT GALES FERRY.

Forty Eli Oarsmen Ready to Begin Final Practice.

GALES FERRY, Conn., June 4.—Members of the Yale crews, forty in number; Coach Kennedy, Assistant Coach Plaisted, and cooks and rubbers are busily engaged to-night in stowing away their belongings preparatory to beginning the final practice for the annual race with Harvard. The crews left New Haven this afternoon in a special car, and arrived here shortly after 6 o'clock, and immediately sat down to dinner. The shells, three eights, three fours, a double, a single, and a pair oared, came later in the evening.

The quarters have been renovated, and under the veranda of the 'Varsity quarters shower baths have been put in for the use of the freshmen. This was a gift of George W. Sheffield. A meeting of the freshmen eight was held to-night, and S. M. Snowdon, 1913, S., of Pittsburg, Penn., was elected Captain.

Examinations in charge of Prof. Durfee will be held through to-morrow, and it is not expected that the crews will take the water until after 6 o'clock. Dr. J. P. Greenway of New York is expected here to-morrow to take charge of the physical condition of the men.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 4.—The annual Sage College boat races between the co-ed crews of Cornell University resulted in victories for the senior and freshman crews. The winners received trophy cups, and Mrs. Andrew D. White presented them with numerals. The races were rowed over a quarter-mile course on Beebe Lake, the seniors beating the juniors by a length, while the freshmen won the under-class championship from the sophomores by a length and a half. The senior time was 1:52. The winning crews rowed as follows:

Senior—Rhoda White, bow; Ruth Vorhees, 2; Clara Brayer, 3; Grace Delany, stroke, coxswain, Murray.

Freshman—Louise Bontecu, bow; Merle Mosher, 2; Anna Berry, 3; Bernice Spencer; stroke; coxswain, Van Law.

No Changes in Cornell Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 4.—The make-up of the Cornell crew in the race against Harvard satisfied Coach Courtney, and he said to-day that there would be no changes in the 'Varsity boat. There was a report that Bates, No. 2, might lose his seat because he had been losing weight, but the coach says that since the contest with Harvard Bates had gained seven pounds, and that he is in first-rate physical condition. The 'Varsity crew will begin work for the Poughkeepsie regatta this week, but on account of the examinations, which begin to-morrow, the men will not get down to business until one week later.

Steeplechase Swimming Races.

Swimming races and water sports, which are to be special attractions at Steeplechase Park, Coney Island, during the Summer, will start on Thursday evening, June 22, with a special programme arranged for the local mermaids, for which a large entry is expected. Many new and novel events will be tried out this Summer in the large pool. Water polo teams are being formed for a tournament, as well as two teams for girls, which promise plenty of sport. The events will be held under the same management this season as they have been in the past, and all information in regard to same can be had by addressing Charles T. Earl, 446 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Wa-Shi-Shi-Ma Finds New Owner.

Wa-Shi-Shi-Ma, a large motorboat, formerly the property of Frank A. Smith of Worcester, Mass., is now owned by Charles W. Clifford of New Bedford, who will run it between his Summer home, at Martha's Vineyard, and New Bedford. The sale was negotiated by the Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency of Boston, which announces that the Wa-Shi-Shi-Ma is 62 feet long, 13 feet beam, and 3 feet 6 inches draft, with a very large cabin and comfortable staterooms. She is 32 gross tons and is equipped with a 40-horse power Knox motor, and is said to be one of the best-equipped power boats of her size ever built.

German Motor Cyclist Killed.

BERLIN, June 4.—Theile, a well-known German bicyclist, while pacemaking on a motorcycle at the international race here to-day, fell, and was instantly killed.

PENN WINS FIRST COLLEGE FLIGHT

Quakers Lead Dartmouth and Williams in Intercollegiate Balloon Race.

PEABODY, Mass., June 4.—The University of Pennsylvania is the winner of the first intercollegiate balloon race in the history of aeronautics, having defeated Dartmouth and Williams for distance and for duration in the race that began at North Adams yesterday afternoon. The Pennsylvania balloon, Philadelphia II., landed at West Peabody at 10:30 last night after covering a distance of 115 miles in a little over seven hours.

The occupants of the Philadelphia II., A. F. Atherholt, the pilot, and George A. Richardson of the University of Pennsylvania, reported that they had landed in the woods during a heavy thunderstorm which forced the racers to remain under cover in their basket until this morning. The greatest height reached by the Pennsylvania entry was 12,000 feet over Fitchburg.

Pilot Atherholt said that the wind of yesterday was exceptionally tricky. "We were driven in all directions," said he, "but threw out some ballast and could have stayed up all night if we had wanted to."

A flash of light which they mistook for a ray from a lighthouse on the coast led them to venture a descent in the dark rather than run the risk of being carried out to sea. Luckily they escaped tree tops and landed in a little clearing in the woods. As no lights were to be seen in the neighborhood, they sheltered themselves from the storm in their basket and remained in the open until morning.

The three contests left North Adams yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock. The Dartmouth balloon, Boston, piloted by Jay B. Benton, with John W. Pearson as passenger, was the first to land, coming down at 6:30 P. M. in West Pelham, Mass., forty-one miles from North Adams, after three hours and fifteen minutes of air traveling. An hour and a quarter afterward the Williams balloon, Stevens No. 27, with H. P. Shearman for pilot and K. T. Price as passenger, landed at Paxton, sixty-six miles in an air line from North Adams. All the big gas bags had 35,000 cubic feet capacity.

JOHNSTONE'S LONG GLIDE.

Aviator Makes Sensational Flight at Garden City.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 4.—The most dramatic aeroplane flight seen here this season was made this afternoon by St. Croix Johnstone. Over a thousand people crowded the grounds, being distributed half way around the field in packed motors, in the grandstand, and on the north side of the grounds around the aeronautical sheds. With the exception of the mechanics no one was allowed on the field proper.

About 5 o'clock Johnstone climbed into his machine, shooting straight up into the air. The machine grew smaller until it reached an altitude of about 1,200 feet. At this height Johnstone shut off his motor and made a direct glide to earth. It was the prettiest stunt of volplaning ever seen on the field. Like a giant gull, with all power of motion suspended, the machine dropped swiftly, gracefully, to a place on the field where stood a little group of mechanics.

When within a hundred feet of the ground the aviator dropped a mesage, and with a quick turn of the motor started off on a cross-country flight which took in the Meadow Brook Club and many villages in the vicinity. Johnstone when he returned stopped his motor and jumping out over the fuselag stopped his own machine within a hundred feet of th egrand stand. The crowd shouted itself hoarse at the feat.

William Haupt, who acquired some fame as a driver in the Vanderbilt Cup and other automobile races, undertook to take a trip on the Aviation Field to-day. On leaving the ground the machine shot up almost perpendicularly to a height of about one hundred feet and then dropped, landing on top of the high board fence surrounding the field. The machine was cut almost in two, and the front part was badly damaged. Haupt received a cut under one eye, another cut on the upper lip, and two front teeth were broken. He says that a sudden gust of wind caught his machine before he could get it in working order.

INTERNATIONAL CUP RACE.

England Will Send Three Motor Boats to Contest with American Trio.

Commodore H. H. Melville of the Motor Boat Club of America will leave for London in a few days to confer with the English yachtsmen over the details for the forthcoming races for the British International Trophy. It is practically assured that England will be represented by a team of three boats to race a trio from this country. While not officially announced it is reported on excellent authority that the Duke of Westminster will send over one of the challengers, but the name of his boat has not been revealed.

The Duke's challenger probably will be a hydroplane of the multiple step type, a shade under 40 feet in over all length. The other British craft will be the Maple Leaf II., owned by E. Mackay Edgar, which established a world's record with the phenomenal speed of 57 miles an hour during a trial run on the Solent several weeks ago. The third British challenger may come through the British Motor Boat Club, and will in all probability be a hydroplane like her sister boats.

Within the next ten days most of the boats building for the elimination trials in this country will be launched and everything done to get them in condition for the preliminary tuning up work. One of the first boats to take the water will be the Dixie IV., owned by the Melville-Burnham-Hechscher syndicate. Of the nine possible aspirants for the American trials six will soon be launched. The engines for all of them have been practically finished and are ready to be installed as soon as the hull work has been finished, and when the trials start in Huntington Bay, on Aug. 17, the largest fleet that ever assembled for extraordinarily fast speed boats will be ready to face the starter.

Bronxville A. A. Tennis Tourney.

Spirited lawn-tennis matches in which Mrs. Bailey won the women's handicap singles, four men arriving in the semi-finals of their portion of the tournament, and a dual team match with the Bronxville Athletic Association provided an abundance of sport at the nets yesterday at the Dunwoodie Country Club, Yonkers. The matches were in a measure preparatory to the Hudson River championships which are to hold the courts later on. The summaries:

Women's Handicap Singles.—First Round—Mrs. Hoskins, (scratch,) defeated Miss Elsie Dietz, (minus 15,) 6—4, 7—5.

Semi-Final Round—Mrs. Hoskins, (scratch,) defeated Miss Schroder, (plus 15,) by default; Mrs. Bailey, (scratch,) defeated Miss Emily Dietz, (minus 15,) 8—6, 6—0.

Final Round—Mrs. Bailey, defeated Mrs. Hoskins, 6—4, 6—4.

REMY MAGNETO WINS
500-Mile International Sweepstakes Race
World's Greatest Motor Speed Competition
Proves Triumph for Remy Ignition

Ray Harroun won the most sensational victory known to automobile racing history on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30th, when he whipped the Remy-Equipped Marmon "Wasp" over the brick track for 500 miles at the savage, world's record-breaking

Average of 74.62 Miles Per Hour

Perfect ignition—Remy Ignition was a vital factor in that Marmon triumph over the best cars of the great factories of two continents.

Never was the unfailing reliability, the greater efficiency of an ignition system demonstrated in such a striking and conclusive manner.

Never was the design, the materials, the construction of an ignition system subjected to such a relentless strain, never did any ignition device meet the unusual demand in such a satisfactory manner as did the Remy Magneto on Harroun's car.

Not a car equipped with a Remy Magneto suffered the slightest ignition trouble.

Every car equipped with the Remy showed its superior speed and staying qualities.

Charles Merz with his Remy-equipped National showed the way for both his teammates who used other ignition.

Merz finished in sixth place in the race. And the Remy supplied the spark of motor life throughout the long grind without a miss.

Every Remy-equipped car was running when the race ended.

The Remy-Equipped Velie qualified for the big race. The other Velie with other ignition did not show the required speed.

And the Remy Magneto that gives such faultless service under the conditions like those which reigned upon the Speedway on May 30 will find nothing in ordinary automobiling to bother it for a moment. Remember that Bob Burman and his Remy-equipped Blitzen Benz hold all world's sprint records. It took Remy ignition to do it.

Remy Ignition Supremacy Proven Again and Again in World's Most Sensational Speed and Endurance Races

THE PRESIDENT AT CHICAGO.

We should say that any American citizen, whatever his political connection, who takes the trouble to read President TAFT's speech at Chicago in explanation of the policy of reciprocity with Canada would be proud of it. It is not too much to say that no President since the civil war has gone to the people and defended in a manner more masterly a policy conceived in a more elevated and statesmanlike spirit. Nor is it beyond reason for one who is not unfamiliar with like achievements in Great Britain to find this one ranking with the best efforts of such a master of political exposition as Mr. GLADSTONE.

Indeed, in the very important element of entire candor, of sincere desire to understand and fairly to state the grounds of reasonable opposition, Mr. TAFT distinctly excels the great Englishman. In eloquence he does not compare, because he is not rhetorical in thought or expression. In lucidity and grasp, in orderly presentation of matured conclusions, in manly appeal to the judgment, he is surpassed by no one. And we regard it as a sign of great hope that in this latest and most important of the President's addresses to the country on his policy, one would search in vain, not merely for any partisan argument or appeal, but for any reference to the existence of opposing parties. It is the utterance of the head of the Nation directed to the Nation as a whole, discussing real National interests of a vast and lasting nature.

It may be said, indeed, that the situation in which Mr. TAFT finds himself is peculiar and that he must depend for the success of his policy on the support of the Democrats as a body and on that of a considerable part of the Republicans. But Mr. TAFT created this situation himself by opening and carrying through the negotiations with Canada, by entering on a policy which he believed was in the general interest and would command the support of the majority of the people regardless of party. It is a work of broad and courageous statesmanship which places his countrymen under great obligation.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND ARBITRATION.

We are sorry that Admiral MAHAN should think us unjust to Mr. ROOSEVELT, but we do not think that he has shown that we are. On the contrary, comparing the quotations he makes from the speech of President TAFT and from that of his predecessor, it seems to us that our characterization of Mr. ROOSEVELT erred, if at all, on the side of leniency. Mr. TAFT advocated "a positive agreement with some great nation to abide the adjudication of an international arbitral court in every issue which cannot be settled by negotiation, no matter what it involves—whether honor, territory, or money." Mr. ROOSEVELT declared that there "are certain questions which we Americans would never think of arbitrating. One is the Monroe Doctrine, and the other is allowing the vast quantities of Asiatics to come here." Here is a flat and specific contradiction to the policy advocated by the President. He went on: "We have got to stand out against these dangerous things"—things which Mr. TAFT had omitted to except from his plan for submission to an international arbitral court—"no matter what the shortsighted, false-peace advocates say."

It is possible that Mr. ROOSEVELT did not have the President in mind when he used this last phrase, but it is a phrase that obviously includes the President, and would inevitably be so understood by the great body of hearers or readers. In any case, Mr. ROOSEVELT has taken in public a definitely hostile attitude toward the policy the President has advocated, and which has since become the basis of important negotiations with a number of the great Powers for the establishment of general adjudication of international differences on the principle that every civilized nation applies to the settlement of private differences within its jurisdiction. That policy has enlisted the interest and sympathy and awakened the admiration of statesmen the world over. We cannot help thinking that the animosity shown toward it by Mr. ROOSEVELT, the rude and far from refined manner in which he has expressed his animosity, the appeals he has made to passions the reverse of noble and magnanimous, are not worthy of a man in his exalted position. Admiral MAHAN appears to argue that Mr. ROOSEVELT could not have meant to include the President in the class of "shortsighted, false-peace advocates," because, as a matter of fact, the President does not belong in that class. The reasoning is hardly conclusive, but granting that it is correct, we still have Mr. ROOSEVELT strenuously opposing the policy advocated by the President, and opposing it in a fashion that is more characteristic than dignified.

The Admiral suggests that "Mr. ROOSEVELT's name seems to make THE TIMES see red." Possibly. The ex-President's tendency to "paint red" any subject that he discusses may have that effect on our vision, but it has not prevented us from doing ample justice to his really good qualities.

COL. DIAZ TALKS WILDLY.

Two statements made by Col. PORFIRIO DIAZ in an interview on board the steamship Ypiranga, reported in The Sun, indicate that, skillful as the great Presidente's son may be as architect and engineer, he has not inherited his father's discretion and clearness of vision. PORFORINO, as they call him affectionately in Mexico, declared that MADERO's revolution "was framed by foreign capital":

> It is plain to see that certain holders of the bonds of the Mexican National Railways hoped by the revolution to prevent the redemption of those bonds and then the railways would revert to them. MADERO sold himself to foreign capital.

It is incredible that Col. DIAZ should believe this. Bondholders want the interest paid on their bonds. American capitalists with investments in Mexico were the last persons in the world to desire the overturn of a seemingly strong Government which protected their property.

Another profound utterance of PORFORINO is: "The strength of Mexico lies in the army. Whoever has the army has Mexico." In that case, MADERO and the provisional Government he has called into existence must have the army, for assuredly they have Mexico. But, the truth is, the boasted army of Mexico is largely mythical. It has practically vanished in the face of a revolution. The Diaz Government was overturned by hordes of untrained, sandaled or barefooted men, who were unpaid and unprovisioned, living on the meat and meal to which they helped themselves day by day. Some excellent buildings in Mexico attest the ability of Col. DIAZ as an architect, and it is believed that he is a competent engineer. But he talks nonsense, and is clearly not a chip of the old block. Gen. DIAZ's speech has always been as purposeful and apt as his actions.

BASSETT OR CRAM?

Mr. CRAM has been obliging enough to supply us with a sample of his quality as a man of judgment in general, and of his judgment on the rapid transit question in particular. He thought it wise and expedient to talk while his nomination was pending. A man less sure of himself might have thought it better to wait until confirmation, lest perchance his views might not seem to others to justify the Governor's confidence in him. Just as the city is within weeks, or perhaps even days, of the result of negotiations successful beyond expectation Mr. CRAM criticises everything which has been done.

He favors municipal operation. The route on the east side is not well chosen, and should take another avenue from that proposed by the Commission or the operator. He has no views regarding the lower west side accommodations, but is sure that the great demand is for a five-cent fare to Coney Island. If the five-cent fare cannot be obtained otherwise, it should be "compelled by legislation." These views are highly contentious. Mr. CRAM thinks it judicious to advance them when everybody is weary of contention and eager for action. We know now, since his letter to Mr. MCANENY was published, that the Governor does not see his way clear to follow the moderate course recommended by the Borough President, and the one so clearly necessary if the Governor desires to hasten rapid transit. He leaves us free to doubt his desire to hasten it, as his course is clearly in opposition to the best interests of the city.

The situation as it stands should be fought to a finish on the lines chosen by both sides. If Mr. CRAM's views come up for discussion there will be no rapid transit for an indefinite future. It is hardly to be imagined that one man can alter the decisions all but registered, but he can delay them beyond all patience. However endurable the nomination might have been a year or two ago, or might be a year or two ahead, just at this time it is contrary to all public interest, and in that sense so unfit to be made that it puts the Governor upon his explanation and defense.

It is more agreeable to urge the excellence of Mr. BASSETT's services than the deficiencies of Mr. CRAM. Mr. MCANENY regards Mr. BASSETT's co-operation as "almost indispensable." This is said with a knowledge of Mr. BASSETT's services not possessed by those who have not shared in the negotiations. But enough is known of Mr. BASSETT's work and opinions in capacities other than official to justify Mr. MCANENY's appeal. Mr. BASSETT's idea of the five-cent fare which the city needs is as different as possible from Mr. CRAM's. Mr. CRAM thinks of a five-cent fare as something needed particularly for an occasional holiday to fortify the public health and lessen the need of hospitals. Mr. BASSETT conceives that a five-cent fare is needed especially by those who will pay it twice a day every working day, and he thinks it should be collected over routes devised to convert the city from a narrow parallelogram containing Manhattan Island with a northerly extension into a round city, as nearly as may be. In his view—and Mr. CRAM would be rash to contest it—a long city contains the smallest area with the longest rides for a nickel. A round city contains the largest area with the shortest rides for the same money. The shortest ride which will serve the purpose is best for both the railways and the riders. The largest area is the one providing the cheapest and most sanitary homes and the amplest supply of trade and traffic centres. It is the shape of Manhattan which has produced our traffic woes, not lack of facilities, which, in fact, are the best and most abundant in the world. The greatest single need is not for an excursion rate to Coney Island, but for daily facilities for 235,000 persons who have none within a four-mile radius in one place, which lies altogether outside of the scope of Mr. CRAM's remarks.

If the Governor thinks Mr. CRAM knows all about the subject, what must be the depth of the Governor's lack of information about either the city's needs or Mr. CRAM's fitness to deal with them? The appointment can gratify only those who think these matters capable of settlement by a counting of votes, rather than by an application of intelligence to a settlement upon the merits, regardless of any selfish interests. No one desirous of such a settlement can approve of Mr. CRAM's appointment at this time.

THAT WATER FAMINE.

Commissioner THOMPSON says he cannot understand why the people will keep on wasting water "when they have been told that this water famine is no joke." The reason is, that after they had been stirred up almost to the fever point by official talk about the scarcity of water, they were officially informed that there was no cause for alarm. The 150 emergency Inspectors who start today on a hunt for leaks and willful waste of water may accomplish some good, though the invasion of private houses may be resented by many persons who refuse now to believe that the supply of water is too short for safety, and who see that the authorities have not taken a single step toward securing an emergency supply for Manhattan and the Bronx.

The Commissioner's best estimate of the amount of water which can be saved through the efforts of these extra Inspectors is only 9,000,000 gallons daily over the amount he claims to have saved before the Inspectors were appointed. This is, indeed, "a drop in the bucket." If the department is determined not to try what can be done with the Ten Mile River, some other plan for a temporary emergency supply should be put into operation immediately.

FASHIONS IN CROWNS.

Interesting news concerning the crowns to be worn by KING GEORGE V. and his consort at the crowning ceremony in Westminster Abbey was contained in the special Marconi dispatches to THE SUNDAY TIMES. As these are now the foremost crowns in the world, and the Autumn styles in crowns will largely be modeled after them, it is worth while to dwell upon their peculiarities. KING GEORGE, always frugal and unostentatious, has had his father's old crown altered to fit his own head, and has otherwise made no changes in it. It shows no signs of wear, we understand, and such a crown never goes out of style. It is made of gold, and contains a sapphire which belonged to EDWARD the Confessor, a ruby which the Black Prince wore, and a piece of the Cullinan diamond. The crown is valued at $7,500,000, and would probably bring more from some American millionaire if put up at auction at CHRISTIE's, but there is no present likelihood that it will ever be sold.

Queen MARY could scarcely be expected to wear her mother-in-law's crown. No matter how deep may be the respect a wife may have for her husband's mother, she is rarely willing to wear the old lady's things. Moreover, Queen ALEXANDRA would have a word or two to say about that. One's crown is one's property, we hope, as long as one lives, no matter how little purely official significance may attach to it. The new Queen's crown is appropriately new, as to shape and metal, but it contains the historic Kohinoor diamond, and another bit of the Cullinan. It is, however, a comparatively cheap crown, worth only $3,750,000, but Queen MARY will always value it for its associations, and sentiment cannot be expressed in pecuniary terms. Queen MARY's crown weighs a trifle more than an English top hat, a pound and a half, but King GEORGE's is a three-and-a-half-pounder, and he will probably only wear it on the most formal occasions, after the coronation. Copies of the Queen's crown, slightly reduced in size, may be observed next Winter, in the parterre of the Metropolitan Opera House, on the heads of the supposedly uncrowned Queens of American society. But KING GEORGE's royal and imperial headgear will not be imitated here in our time.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Explanation Fails as Defense. There is, doubtless, a certain plausibility about the explanation made by the Executive Officer of associated Audubon Societies in defending their acceptance from the manufacturers of "pump" guns of a big annual subsidy. He says that the givers of the subsidy—amounting to $125,000, distributed through five years—made only two conditions, one that it should be used in game protection, and the other that it should be spent by the Executive Officer with the approval of his Directors. The trouble with this explanation is that it seemingly puts the gunmakers in the position of men who are giving a lot of money for little or nothing, or at least with no assurance of any direct and immediate benefit to be derived from it.

To be sure, it is not for the real, that is, for the permanent, interest of gunmakers that the country's game should be exterminated, but they have never in the past shown much appreciation of that fact, or any large inclination to sacrifice present profits for the sake of those to be derived in a more or less distant future. What they have always wanted was to sell guns, any kind of guns, to anybody. It may be that they are wiser now, and have come to appreciate that not the game protector, but the market hunter, is the enemy who threatens to put them out of business. If that is the case, however, it is strange that they have never been known to use their influence, or to contribute from their resources, for the assistance of the sportsmen who are trying to restrict the use of automatic guns.

As to the disastrous effects of such use, all sportsmen worthy of the name are agreed, and none of them would any more think of going a-hunting with one of those wholesale slaughterers than he would think of going a-fishing with dynamite cartridges for tackle. Therefore will there be, in all sporting and game-protecting circles, a strong inclination to dismiss the gunmakers' first condition as a sort of joke, and to study long and seriously the one which intrusts the spending of the annual $25,000 to a man who has carefully refrained from expressing publicly any opinion on the subject of pump guns, but seems to be a great favorite with the manufacturers thereof.

The plain and obvious truth is that the Audubon Societies, by taking this money, have almost if not quite forfeited whatever right they ever had to the honorable name they appropriated. The thing is distinctly scandalous.

An Aviator With a Grievance. Mr. A. J. MOISANT, though expressing general agreement with our recent remarks on the mistakes of American aviators and on the reasons why the Frenchmen are raising so many more and so much finer flowers from the seed with which the WRIGHTS supplied them than are now grown here, insists that this humiliating fact is not due to any superiority of skill or courage possessed by the foreign birdmen. We never thought or said it was, but think and are willing to say again that we have failed to retain the advantage which priority in the field of real aerial navigation gave us simply because our aviators saw little or nothing more in the aeroplane than a machine by the exhibition of which a lot of quick and easy money could be made.

Though they realized the aeroplane's imperfection well enough, they made few attempts to improve it. Instead they did what and all they could with what they had, and though they recklessly risked their lives—and not infrequently lost them—in performing useless feats at the very limit of a dubious margin of safety, they have left to others the less remunerative, but vastly more important, task of bettering construction, creating new types, and increasing the efficiency and trustworthiness of engines. After a few notable achievements in cross-country flying—the only kind that really counts or makes for progress and utility—they abandoned that form of activity and devoted themselves almost altogether to the honest, but not lofty, calling of the peripatetic showman.

They have their reward in the shape of much money collected at "the gate," but they have pretty nearly killed aviation in the United States, both as an art and as a sport. Mr. MOISANT complains that no big prizes are now offered here for cross-country flight, and says that, when they were offered, more was demanded from the aviators than they were then able to perform. The first statement is certainly true, but it wouldn't be if the aviators had in those earlier days frankly confessed their inability, instead of making great boasts and promises and then failing even to attempt their fulfillment.

And what, pray, does he mean by hinting that there is something apocryphal in the claim that America is the birthplace of the aeroplane? If the WRIGHTS were not the very first of human beings to ride and guide through the air a motor-driven machine, the concealment of their predecessor's name has been mysteriously and wonderfully successful.

Probably Malice Was Absent. It seems much to have tried the temper of our good Mayor that the motorman on a Brooklyn street car ignored his signal and went by him without stopping to let him get on. So irritated was he by this experience that he suspects the motorman of taking a special as well as a malignant pleasure in inflicting the affront because the victim of it is by some counted among the antagonists of "B. R. T."

Of course there is no disproving the truth of this curious theory, but its accuracy can safely be doubted. We have all suffered the disappointment that comes to a would-be passenger when a street car passes with what is or seems to be accelerated speed, and most of us, in the excitement of a maddening grief, have hurled after it the expressions of a heated disapproval. But on reflection most of us have realized that probably the motorman had some sort of an excuse for what he did, and that at least possibly his failure to stop was due to regard for the general welfare rather than personal hatred or a criminal sense of humor.

When a car has been delayed, for instance, it facilitates the restoration of normal traffic conditions for it to hurry on its way until it catches up with its schedule or at least puts space between itself and the car behind. To do so causes individual annoyance, but as a whole the traveling public profits. Such, possibly, and even probably, were the circumstances when the Mayor was so pained, and the chances are that the motorman knew not whom he had offended.

Prospect Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your statement this morning regarding the deplorable condition of the city parks you make no distinction between the boroughs of the city. I must say that I am a citizen of full age and keep my eyes open for beauty, and am extremely familiar with at least one park in our city, namely, Prospect Park, and although I have been in many other parts of this beautiful country, I have never seen a more artistically laid out or well-kept public pleasure ground than the park I have mentioned.

PARK'S RHODODENDRONS.

Expert Says Sage Plantation Is Ideally Placed and Is Thriving.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attack recently made by Mr. Maynadier, the Government soil expert, upon the Sage plantation in the following sentence, "The poor growth of the rhododendrons should be attributed to their unfavorable situation, being exposed largely to direct sunlight and planted too deep," made me visit and look over the plantation a few days ago. Since this plantation was planted in the Spring of 1908 I have, as a plant lover, watched it with keen interest.

I found that the plants have made a splendid growth since they were planted, and, despite the dry weather we are having, and the scarcity of water, they are again making strong shoots. No doubt the mulch they have received every Autumn, which is so valuable for retaining moisture, has greatly helped the present growth.

Mr. Maynadier's assertion that the rhododendrons are in an unfavorable situation is wrong, and it is only necessary to look at Rhododendron Maximums in their native situations in the States of New York and Pennsylvania to find them on mountain slopes, mostly in a shady or partly shady situation. The Rhododendron Catawbiense are on high mountains at several hundred feet elevation above sea level, grown fully exposed to the sun in the State of North Carolina. Therefore the Sage plantation is in an ideal place, as the plants are planted partly in the shade and partly exposed to the sun. You will find places in this plantation where they are at their best where most exposed to the sunlight, which Mr. Maynadier seems to dread so very much.

I could show Mr. Maynadier many private estates where the rhododendrons grow as well in the full exposure to the sun as they do in the shade.

It will be found in the Sage plantation that the Rhododendron Maximums are planted in the rear of the Catawbiense Hybrids and in the most shady places, and the Catawbiense Hybrids in the open and most exposed places, where there is plenty of sunlight. I, therefore, claim they are planted and located well. It seems that Mr. Maynadier, the soil expert, knows better what these plants prefer or require than nature, which should, without doubt, be our best teacher.

In regard to Mr. Maynadier's statement that the rhododendrons are planted too deep, I wish to say that deep planting of rhododendrons will never harm their growth. There is, naturally, a rule that trees and shrubs should not be planted deeper than they originally stood, but there are always exceptions to all rules, and the rhododendrons and other Ericacean plants form exceptions. To prove the correctness of this exception, I would point out the fact that propagators plant their rhododendrons deep in the ground to induce the growth of roots along the stems or branches, which are cut off later and are planted out for new plants. This deep planting for propagating purposes is done on a large scale in different parts of the world, but it seems that Mr. Maynadier pretends to understand the habits of rhododendrons better than the most expert nurserymen.

To take the Sage plantation on an average and as a whole, I must say it is in a fine condition. Naturally, in a plantation of such magnitude, there are bound to be weak spots. This would be the case with any plantation whatsoever. It should not be forgotten that one variety of rhododendrons grows quicker and bushier than another; therefore some parts of them seem less strong than others. I can show many tracts where the plants have already naturalized themselves and have grown as they would in the forests of New York and Pennsylvania.

If the city of New York will take care of its plants in the future as it has done in the past, it will, without question, have in the rhododendron plantation, so generously given by Mrs. Russell Sage, the finest in the world.

If Mr. Maynadier is no better expert on soil than he is on rhododendrons, his opinion in all such questions can not be as great as the Commissioner of Parks, Mr. Stover, undertakes to assert.

THE GERMS SWIM TO US.

We Cannot Cleanse the Milk Until We Cleanse the Streams.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your report headed "Impure Milk Kills More Babies Yearly" though true and timely, tempts me to ridicule the good people who are organized for the protection of defenseless innocents. Guard our milk, yes, pasteurize it if you must. Kill all flies and other carriers of disease germs. Inject your vaccines and antitoxins, but when you have done all we shall have to begin the work over again.

Neither man nor beast nor germ is created in these days. They all have parents. We know where disease germs are born and bred. We know how they are passed along on their deadly mission and still we continue first class marine service for their safe transportation to our cities, towns and villages with comfortable omnibus service to our homes. In a word, if we would save the babies we must forever stop the dirty insane practice of making sewers of our waterways. Until we do this, filthy disease and death will reign supreme in spite of the noble work done to alleviate a desperate condition which could and should be cured.

Examine the streams from which our cattle drink and you will know why the baby dies. Examine the water some drink and all bathe in and you will discover why we are doomed to continual sickness and premature death.

Green Maple Worms at Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Green maple worms have appeared in "millions," and are defoliating the soft maples of Amsterdam. They have been reported as abundant at both Schenectady and Menands, N. Y., and also from Grand Rapids, Mich. These caterpillars are now about an inch long and easily recognized by the light green color and the broken white stripes, in connection with the numerous white dots. The pests are only two-thirds grown, and where abundant may cause serious injury before deserting the trees. These caterpillars stripped hundreds of soft maples in Schenectady in 1898, fairly swarming at that time over adjacent roadways and sidewalks. There are other records of similar outbreaks. Present conditions are favorable for extended defoliation wherever soft maples are abundant.

Thorough and prompt spraying with a poison, such as arsenate of lead, using two pounds (15 per cent. arsenic oxide) to fifty gallons of water, will check the trouble. Many descending caterpillars can be destroyed by inclosing the trunks of infested trees with a low barricade and applying an adhesive band, such as fresh tar or tree tanglefoot, at the upper inner edge and then pouring boiling water over the collected caterpillars. Small trees can be protected in large measure by jarring the pests from the branches and then preventing their ascent by the use of sticky bands or even bands of cotton. The latter should be six or eight inches wide, tied near the middle, and the upper portion turned down over the string. Watchfulness and prompt action will do much toward mitigating serious injury.

"A ROOSEVELT INCIDENT."

Admiral Mahan Criticises The Times's Comment on ex-President's Speech.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the issue of THE TIMES for June 1 the leading editorial article, entitled "A Roosevelt Incident," quotes the following words from Mr. Roosevelt's address to the veterans on Decoration Day:

> There are certain questions which we Americans would never think of arbitrating. One is the Monroe Doctrine, and another is the allowing of vast quantities of Asiatics to come here. We have got to stand out against agreeing to do these dangerous things, no matter what the short-sighted, false-peace advocates say.

Upon this the editorial comments:

> The famous speech of President Taft, which was the starting point of the extensive and important international movement toward general arbitration now proceeding hopefully among the great powers, made no mention of these exceptions and reservations. He is, obviously, the very chief of the "short-sighted, false-peace advocates" whom Mr. Roosevelt takes occasion to hold up to public contempt.

THE TIMES thus takes Mr. Roosevelt's speech and by a construction of its own makes of it a cap which it proceeds to fit to Mr. Taft's head.

Having a copy of Mr. Taft's speech of Dec. 17, 1910, before me, I submit that this construction is quite unwarranted by the facts—of that speech. Mr. Taft did not, it is true, specify the Monroe Doctrine and Asiatic immigration as exceptions to the broad general proposition. It is not by elaborating exceptions in an after-dinner speech that such a proposition is initiated; and the overt initiation, as a matter of fact, was by the British Foreign Minister's speech in Parliament of March 13, indorsing that of President Taft. It is in the working out of the proposition that possible exceptions must be met and obviated, if success is to be attained.

Mr. Taft's specific words were: "If we can negotiate and put through a positive agreement with some great nation to abide the adjudication of an international arbitral court in every issue which cannot be settled by negotiation, no matter what it involves, whether honor, territory, or money, we shall have made a long step forward"; but the greater part of his address, two-thirds at least, was devoted to the justification of military preparations, notably the Panama fortification. "The discussion of needed military preparations," he said, "does not sound very well at a peace meeting, but the trouble about a peace meeting is that it seems to me to be just one-half the picture, and I want to introduce the whole picture in order that," &c. And again: "The trouble is that nations are quite as likely as men to violate their obligations under great stress like that of war."

It is difficult to see how such utterances, accessible to any seeker, and doubtless known to Mr. Roosevelt, can permit the speaker to be classed under the head of "short-sighted, false-peace advocates." That such a class exists will scarcely be denied; but the application to Mr. Taft is not in his own words, or in those of Mr. Roosevelt, but in an ill-founded assumption of THE TIMES.

Besides the above, it is a matter of common knowledge that Mr. Taft's Administration favors a strong navy, maintained in force by the provision of two new battleships annually. This is not the mark of short-sighted false-peace advocacy.

Mr. Roosevelt's name seems to make THE TIMES see red. Six months ago, in a letter which THE TIMES did me the favor to publish, I pointed out that it was stating as a fact its own inference that Mr. Roosevelt, in overruling the machine of his own party, procuring the nomination of Mr. Stimson, and taking an active part in the campaign, was simply and selfishly seeking his own renomination in 1912. This perversion of inference into assertion undoubtedly helped to deprive the State of New York of the services of a Governor whom Mr. Taft has now invited into his Cabinet; a step which, in view of Mr. Stimson's past public career, seems to indicate a certain coincidence of judgment between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt. While the construction now placed upon Mr. Roosevelt's recent speech does not err in precisely the same way, it does err, and by most injurious intention, in not giving all the facts concerning Mr. Taft's speech. It is only by ignoring those facts that the offensive application of Mr. Roosevelt's words to Mr. Taft can be sustained.

Reduced Tariff and Universal Peace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While the public mind is directed largely toward considering the two questions of international conciliation and revising the tariff, it may be well to discover what relation these two problems bear to each other. A reduction of the tariff will result in an increase of our intercourse with other nations, commercially and otherwise. This intercourse will make us more dependent upon other nations for our material prosperity, and put them in such a condition that our prosperity is their prosperity, and our misfortunes their misfortunes. If we furnish a market for their goods, a decreased ability on our part to buy will bring disaster to them; if we supply them, a cessation or diminution of this supply will be as great a calamity. But what would produce these conditions in the highest degree? Surely the closing of our ports, the diversion of our resources to buy arms and ammunition, and the depression of our industries which would be occasioned by war.

A Disquisition on Hydrostatics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why does "W. F.," in Monday's TIMES, take me to task because I said that the water from Columbia University's fountains might run back into the main after it had been squirted for the delectation of the spectators? Why shouldn't it run back? Does "W. F." want to waste any more city water than is now wasted? What is wrong about it running back where it came from? If one takes a quart of water out of a can, can't it be put back again? Why not a water main, only a water main holds more than a quart! Is hydrostatics merely a matter of quantity? Is hydrodynamics to be dissipated into thin air? May a poet not be a hydrologist as well as a highbrowist? But why attempt to divert the public mind from the vital subject of aquatic economy? Do the Columbia fountains continue to squirt, or don't they? That is the question!

Favors Distributed Powers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To have the Government assume control of all corporations and take unto itself the direction and responsibility of corporate affairs, as suggested by Judge Gary, speaking for the United States Steel Corporation, would perhaps make it much easier for Judge Gary and others, but where is to be the end of such a policy? This means centralizing all power in the Government and taking unto itself what does not belong to it. Instead of centralizing power, it should be scattered as widely as possible. Where would we land if these centralizing theories prevail?

It may make life a little harder to have the power and authority disseminated, but that is one of the burdens of life we should bear, and not try to throw off on others or to concentrate somewhere else the burdens that should be borne by all equally. If the Government does its duty and sees that the laws are faithfully executed, all is done that should be required from it.

Names of Instructors Omitted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I attended yesterday the commencement exercises of the Institute of Musical Art and was struck very forcibly by certain peculiarities. One was the total absence of any recognition given to the teachers of the Institute for their hard work of converting crude material into a finished artistic product. The programme of the evening was adorned on the front page with the name of the Director printed in good sized type, but not the slightest mention of the names of the teachers whose students played or sang at the exercises was given. It is customary in the conservatories all over Europe to give the names of instructors, together with the names of [illegible] distinguished students.

GREAT DAY IN THE PARKS.

Record-Breaking Sunday Throngs Gather Under Trees and in the Zoo.

The Sunday in the Parks Club, whose membership is larger by far than that of any chartered social organization in the city, whose membership fee is nothing, and whose clubhouse is the open air, held a reunion yesterday. In Central, Van Cortlandt, and Bronx Parks and the hundred and one other breathing spaces in New York City the members of the club gathered early and remained late, thankful to the weather man for an ideal day.

In most of the parks the record-breaking throng of the year was on hand. All through the upper reaches of Central Park, wherever a "Keep Off the Grass" sign was lacking, groups of Sunday in the Parks Club members were gathered.

The Central Park Zoo and the Zoological Garden in Bronx Park broke all Sunday records of the year in the matter of crowds. The turnstile gates of the Bronx Park Zoo were turning merrily all day.

The keepers say the animals dread holidays in the Summer time, for the strain on them sometimes leads to serious results. Nervous trouble is not unknown in the Zoo.

The club members who visited the Zoo for the first time this year noticed several changes. For instance, they were not allowed to throw peanut hulls and waste paper around the park. Big signs warned them against this, and the guards were always on hand to prevent violations of the rule. The members also were prevented from feeding the animals. The Zoo management had no end of trouble in this respect last year. Mischievous boys grew tired of feeding peanuts to the monkeys and elephants and handed out matches instead. This led to the no-peanut rule.

LAWYERS IN OFFICE.

Bewails the Fact That Business Men Can't Supplant Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some one has said that good government is above the attainment of ordinary genius. The present and the immediately preceding municipal administration have witnessed the retirement or virtual dismissal of many appointees under adverse criticism of their superiors with which the people have generally been in accord. Of those holding elective office none die or resign, omissions which favor the adoption of the recall. Few are elected or appointed to office who have not sought preferment and the confidence that they would be as satisfactory to the public as to themselves. It seems to be of small concern to nominating or appointing powers whether the selected individuals have any experience, knowledge or adaptability to the duties of administration, nor are they sought for on the grounds of such qualification.

A man, popular with a party or whose incumbency in office may be made the instrument of patronage, or one who is fortunate in possession of the intimate friendship of an executive power, is appointed to the exclusion of others employed for years in a department, and whose services are indispensable in attempts to enlighten a long succession of those elected or appointed to administer an office of whose duties they are densely ignorant.

An office seeker may be generally considered a jack-at-all-trades, indifferent to the assigned task, with the conviction that he can fulfill any requirement. The inquiry and exactions of the press of today, if they do not shortly reduce his self-estimate, discount him seriously in the opinion of the public. Few of us are commendably versatile in these days of specialization, and a greedy feeding at the public crib is unapproved by the righteous. Several of those who have recently passed from sight, and others who still linger on the bristling edge of suspense, entered into public service with tremendous zeal and the common accompaniment of unregulated judgment.

A tea or coffee expert, a real estate agent, a hotel keeper, would be astonished individually were he invited to assume the respective duties of the superintendence of a woolen mill, the designing of an electric power plant, or an editorial chair, but most of the appointees of important positions are lawyers, omniscient in self-estimate, whose specialty is to enforce or evade the law at the dictation of the smiling dollar. As an oft-suffering juryman, the writer in court has often observed their superb ignorance in prosecution or defense of common commercial usage, which has wrecked the hopes of their clients, and until we have a city government based upon commercial insistence or attempts to secure a fair equivalent for time or money expended for service, the public is improperly treated.

Few business men seek office, as those in well-established enterprise cannot afford to relinquish legitimate enterprise for a tenure of four years or less, and this avoidance is to the injury of the public, because, if they were selected, it might receive the benefit of administration from those unaccustomed to fear or favor and experienced in clear-cut measures.

When the others fall, they "never rise again," and are heard of no more until referred to in the indulgent and forgiving type of the obituary.

Honoring Teacher with Destruction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much interested by Mr. Lampton's thoughtful and clever verses in THE TIMES "Concerning Gen. Diaz." In connection therewith may I recall to him and to your other readers thte lines of Walt Whitman:

"I am the teacher of athletes,
He that by me spreads a wider breast than my own proves the width of my own,
He most honors my style who learns under it to destroy the teacher."

It is hard—and yet must not every business man, inventor, teacher, preacher expect that in time he will be supplanted by those whom his own efforts have urged forward? And surely every true father rejoices if his children reflect honor on him by their ability to take care of themselves while still respecting him.

Brooklyn, June 1, 1911.

A WHOLESOME REMEDY.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Madeline Fayles,
A girl about seven or eight,
Had cherished the habit of biting her nails,
And practiced it early and late.

From such an absurd and ridiculous trick
It was not a long time before
Each delicate finger-tip down to the quick
Was painfully tender and sore.

Elizabeth's father declared 'twas a sin
Such beautiful fingers to spoil;
And big brother said, with a comical grin,
"Let's smear them with capsicum oil."

So capsicum, aloes, and pitch were applied,
And vile things too many to name;
But Mary Elizabeth silently cried
And nibbled her nails just the same.

Then Mrs. Fayles said, with delight in her voice,
"Ive thought of a cure, sure as fate!"
She tried it at once and had cause to rejoice;
The nail-biting ceased from that date.

What potent device did this fond mother use
In curing the trick of her pet?
'Twas simply an artifice, stratagem, ruse—
She bought her a manicure set.

SECOND AV. MAYOR GOING TO CORONATION

Steingut Says Farewell to His People and Has His Son Made Acting Mayor.

OVER DUKE LEVY'S PROTEST

He Speaks Up and His Friend Josel Madinski Speaks Up, but the Votes Are Against Him.

Solemnly, and with a perfectly straight face, it is announced that Simon Steingut, "Mayor of Second Avenue," will represent that district at the coronation of King George. His grateful people are arranging a parade for June 8 to escort him safely aboard the George Washington, which liner will probably be known to history as the one which took Mayor Steingut to England.

Yesterday Second Avenue was agog, for the question as to who should serve as Acting Mayor was in the air and remained there until decided by an election, which gave the place to Steingut's son Irving by a comfortable majority over the thwarted "Duke of Essex Street," whose defeat on this point will be one of the pleasant thoughts that will cheer Mayor Steingut on the broad Atlantic.

The election took place at Ike Hirschborn's hall down on First Street, where the Mayor, silk hat and all, went to bid a moving farewell to his people. The Second Avenue correspondent of THE TIMES took notes furiously, and out of them produced this:

"Mayor" Steingut bowed to the crowd and then all started to yell "Speech! speech!" Steingut got up on the table and got three loud cheers.

"My friends and constituents," he began, "I am going to the coronation of the King, and will also go to Marienbad for a rest. I will also represent you there."

"Hurrah! hurrah!" yelled the crowd.

"I will sail on the steamship George Washington on June 8."

"We will be there to see you off," yelled the crowd.

"Thank you, thank you," said the "Mayor." "I will remain away about two months, with your permission," said Steingut.

"I object," shouted Joe Levy, the "Duke of Essex Street."

"Sit down! Sit down! Let the 'Mayor' speak," shouted the crowd.

"I want to be heard," said the "Duke." The hall was in an uproar.

"Let us hear what the 'Duke' has to say," shouted some of the crowd, and the "Duke" at last got the floor on a point of information.

"What's the information?" asked a dozen voices at one time.

"My point is," said the "Duke," "that if the 'Mayor' remains away over thirty days he forfeits his office."

"The 'Duke' wants to be Mayor," shouted one of his followers.

"He is entitled to it," yelled Josel Madiniski, a good friend of the "Duke.'s"

The "Duke's" crowd was finally howled down, and the "Mayor" proceeded with his farewell speech, in which tears almost came to his eyes. The "Mayor" explained that he was entitled to two months' leave of absence after hard work among his constituents on Second Avenue.

"Who shall be the 'Acting Mayor?'" asked some in the crowd.

"Let the 'Duke of Essex Street,'" shouted the "Duke's" friend, Josel Madiniski, who nominated the "Duke" at once.

"No! no!" shouted the crowd. "Let the honor go to the 'Mayor's' son, Irving Steingut."

"My friends, give the honor to my boy," pleaded "Mayor" Steingut.

"Then we shall vote," yelled the "Duke's" crowd.

They got the ballot boxes and about 298 voted, and all eyes kept watch on the ballot boxes. Young Irving Steingut was elected "Acting Mayor" by a majority of forty-four votes over his rival, the "Duke," and became "Acting Mayor" of Second Avenue, while his father will see the coronation of King George.

PRIZE DOG ATTACKS MISTRESS, BITES MAN

Miss Elmira Parks's Bull Terrier Billy Goes Mad in Park in Chicago.

GIRL HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Her Dress Is Torn in Attack—Rescuer Is Bitten Twice, Then Kicks Animal Into Unconsciousness.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Billy, a Boston bull terrier, which has won prizes in New York and other bench shows and is valued at $2,000, went mad to-day and tried to bite its owner, Miss Elmira Parks, the seventeen-year-old daughter of W. L. Parks, Vice President of the Illinois Central Railroad. Her gown was torn and John A. Powers, Jr., who rushed to her assistance, was badly bitten.

Miss Parks had left her home to take Billy for a walk in Washington Park. The animal, which was running in front of her, held by a long leash, showed signs of nervousness. Thinking the dog was in a playful mood, Miss Parks pulled it back to her. It then began running in short circles and frothed at the mouth. Miss Parks drew again on the leash to control the dog. It bounded upon her and fastened its teeth in her skirt. The cloth tore and she was not harmed.

Mr. Powers, who is the son of the Western manager for the Peter F. Collier Company of New York, was near by. He ran to Miss Parks and tore the leash from her hand. Billy then made a vicious rush for Powers. The animal's teeth tore a ragged gash in the man's thigh, and in a second attack lacerated his right hand. Powers then gave the dog a terrific kick, and for a few seconds it was unconscious. An improvised muzzle was placed on it and it was carried to the Parks Garage.

Powers hurried to the office of a physician, where his wounds were cauterized.

"The doctor tells me the dog probably has hydrophobia, but the bites he gave me were thoroughly burned out, so I do not expect trouble from them," he said.

Billy is about a year old, and came from the kennels of William Pinkerton. At a New York bench show this Spring he got the blue ribbon as the best animal in the puppy class.

PAYS DUTY ON HER DOG.

Grace Carlisle, Actress, First to Feel Effect of New Customs Ruling.

One of the first to feel the effects of the new customs regulation requiring the payment of duty on American-born animals taken out of the country and returned was Grace Carlisle, an actress, who arrived yesterday on the steamship Celtic. Miss Carlisle brought with her Browny, a brown Pomeranian dog, which was presented to her by an American friend in London. The dog came from this country, and Miss Carlisle had papers to prove it. She had to pay $15 duty.

The customs men did not enjoy the task of collecting the duty, for no regulation from the Treasury Department has met with as much disfavor. The customs officials believe the regulation will be withdrawn under the protests which must come or that the lawmakers will repeal the section of the law making the collection possible.

GOLDSMITH LETTERS RARE.

One Refers to His Friends, Edmund Burke and Dr. Johnson.

One would imagine that, with such a facile and busy pen as Oliver Goldsmith wielded, his letters would be comparatively common, but, as a matter of fact, they are extremely rare. The one which will be sold at Sotheby's in London on June 12 is especially fine and interesting. It is dated Paris, July 29, no year, is addressed to Sir Joshua Reynolds, and, in a small but perfectly legible hand, covers two and a half quarto pages. In it he mentions, among others, his famous friends, Edmund Burke and Dr. Samuel Johnson. In part it reads:

"My Dear Friend: I began a long letter to you from Lisle, giving a description of all that we had done and seen, but, finding it very dull and knowing that you would shew it again, I threw it aside, and it was lost. You see, by the top of this letter, that we are at Paris, and, as I have often heard you say, we have brought our own amusement with us, for the Ladies do not seem to be very fond of what we have yet seen.

"With regard to myself, I find that traveling at 20 and at 40 are very different things. I set out with all my confirmed habits about me, and I can find nothing on the Continent so good as when I formerly left it. One of our chief amusements here is scolding at everything we meet with, and praising everything and every person we left at home. You may judge, therefore, whether your name is not frequently bandied at table among us. To tell you the truth, I never thought I could regret your absence so much as our various mortifications on the road have often taught me to do.

"I could tell you of disasters and adventures without number; of our lying in barns and of my being half poisoned with a dish of green peas; of our quarreling with postillions and being cheated by landladies; but I reserve all this for a happy hour which I expect to share with you upon my return. I have very little to tell you more, but that we are at present all well and expect returning when we have staid out our month, which I did not care though it were over this very day.

"I long to hear from you all; how you yourself do, how Johnson, Burke, Dyer, Chamier, Colman, and every one of the club do. I wish I could send you some announcement in this letter, but I protest I am stupified with the air of this country. I have been thinking of the plot of a comedy, which shall be entitled 'A Journey to Paris,' in which a family shall be introduced with a full intention of going to France to save money. You know there is not a place in the world more promising for that purpose. As for the meat of the country, I can scarce eat it, and, tho we pay two good shillings an head for an dinner, I find it all so tough that I have spent less time with my knife than with my picktooth."

The letter is signed "Your sincere and most affectionate friend, Oliver Goldsmith." In the same collection are four holograph letters of Dr. Samuel Johnson. In one, to David Garrick, May 25, no year, he asks that places be reserved for him at a performance by Garrick. In a letter to the Rev. Dr. Taylor of Ashburne, June 23, 1784, Johnson says: "Boswell has a great mind to draw me to Lichfield, and, as I love to travel with him, I have a mind to venture." In another letter, to the same, Dec. 22, 1774, Johnson gives a long account of a visit from his old schoolfellow, Charles Congreve, who, he is sorry to find, has sunk into a confirmed valetudinarian. Johnson's greatest comfort is to find him "firm and orthodox, yet he consorts with John Wesley." In a letter to Mr. Ryland, Sept. 21, 1776, Johnson says: "I have procured this play to be read by Mrs. Thrale, who declares that no play was ever more nicely pruned from the objection of indelicacy. If it can be got upon the stage it will, I think, succeeded."

Revival of Light Operas.

The Aborn grand opera companies are now closing their seasons and are being replaced by new organizations under the same management for the presentation of lighter musical pieces during the Summer. The companies will revive a number of recent musical comedies, including "Little Johnny Jones," "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," "The Governor's Son," "The Talk of New York," "Mlle. Modiste," "The Golden Butterfly," "A Chinese Honeymoon," "King Dodo," "Robin Hood," "San Toy," and "The Sultan of Sulu."

STAMPS FOR CORONATION

They Will Be the First Issue of King George's Reign.

The King George postage stamps will be issued for the first time on June 22, coronation day. It is not yet known what denominations will be on sale that day, but at any rate the lower values will be ready. The British Government has decided to print the stamps instead of entering into contracts with outsiders for the supply. For some time past the authorities at the Wyse Mint have been engaged sinking the dies. These are now complete, and the printing of the stamps is in progress.

It has been found impossible to put the name of the country on these new stamps, because not only is "The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland" too long, but it would shut out the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. One of the London dailies suggested as a solution of the problem just the three words, "The United Kingdom." This suggestion, however, has not been favorably received. Another suggestion was that the term used should be "British Empire," coupled with the hope that, in the course of time, the stamps issued in every part of King George's dominions would bear the imprint "British Empire." The new stamps, however, in all probability will remain anonymous until a better solution than any yet offered is presented.

The stamps will be "fugitive" as well as anonymous. "Fugitive" is the technical term adopted for the printing process, by which any attempt to efface the post mark or any writing when, for instance, a stamp has been used for revenue purposes, will be at once noticeable. The higher values, for use chiefly on documents, will be "doubly fugitive." Postmaster General Herbert Samuel announces a series of important postal reforms, most of which will begin with the issue of these King George stamps. Among them are the following:

The books of stamps, sold at 2s., to contain 2s. worth of stamps and not 23½d. worth.

Stamps to be sold in rolls as well as sheets, with better perforation. The half penny and penny stamps will be issued in long rolls of 1,000, for use in stamping machines. These strips of stamps will be nearly twenty-eight yards long. For some time past commercial firms have been asking for this concession. It has been pointed out that automatic stamping machines are commonly used in America, and have proved successful as a labor-saving device.

"Certificates of posting," to be obtainable at all Post Offices, at a cost of a half penny, is evidence that a letter has been posted.

Reduction by one-half of cable rates for uncorded messages, i. e., in plain language, provided those messages may be delayed for a period of not more than twenty-four hours. In making this announcement Mr. Samuel tells a story of an Archbishop who had a code of his own. He cabled from abroad: "John Epistle III." His friends turned to that part of the Bible and found the following words: "I had many things to write, but I will not with pen and ink write unto thee. But I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name."

Two new wireless stations are to be established, there will be improvements and reduction in the telephone system, and other reforms will take place. The King George stamps will have the value both in words and in figures.

BEWARE GREED, SAYS BRYAN.

It Endangers the American Home, He Tells the Rev. Mr. Reisner.

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, in West 104th Street, read from his pulpit last night the answers to questions concerning home and child life given him by William Jennings Bryan, Gen. George W. Wingate, President of the Public Schools Athletic League; Dr. Edward W. Stitt, Associate Superintendent of Schools, and other prominent men.

"We're too busy making money," is Mr. Bryan's answer to the question "What endangers the American home now?" Gen. Wingate thought the chief danger to the home was "the want or respect and obedience toward their parents by children," while Mr. Stitt put it as "extravagant ways of living." In response to another question Mr. Bryan gave this bit of autobiography to account for his happy boyhood:

"We lived in the country, or, rather, on the outskirts of a small town, and one of my chief pleasures of boyhood was rabbit hunting. When a rabbit track was discovered, I forgot everything else and started after it. I excelled in the broad jump, having a record of 12 feet 4 inches. I enjoyed baseball. There were six children, and we were all congenial and happy."

DID NOT SIGN FOR JUSTICE.

Dr. Lamb Merely Had a Joke on Insanity Patient's Paper.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., June 4.—Dr. Amos T. Baker, his assistant, speaking to-day for Dr. R. B. Lamb, Superintendent of the Matteawan State Hospital for the Insane, who was away from the asylum, said that the initials placed by Dr. Lamb on the notice sent him by Selwyn De Angelis, an inmate, were not those of Supreme Court Justice Andrews, as reported, but his own. The matter came up before Justice Tompkins at Newburg Saturday, when De Angelis was before him on a habeas corpus writ.

"The initials placed on the paper," said Dr. Baker, "were 'R. B. L.' It was not a petition for a writ, but a notice from De Angelis himself demanding a copy of the commitment in his case, and that he be permitted to verify the petition for a writ. Dr. Lamb denied the request and jokingly wrote across it, 'This notice hereby denied, R. B. L., J. S. C.' De Angelis understood perfectly what the indorsement meant, and there was no attempt to deceive him. These notices frequently come out from patients and are often denied."

DEBATE ON CITY GOVERNMENT

Question of Whether We Should Have It Done by Commission Is Argued.

The question whether this city should have a commission form of government such as obtains in some cities was debated last night by young men of the Brooklyn Civic League and members of the Middle Boys' Clubs of the Educational Alliance at 197 East Broadway.

The Brooklyn orators had the affirmative side of the question. They argued that many cities were being governed by commissions to-day with highly successful results; that this form of government did away with petty officials and made graft difficult. One of them read from a clipping from THE TIMES in which President Mitchel was quoted as saying that the Aldermen had come to be a well-nigh useless institution.

The young men of the Middle Boys' League argued that the commission form of government was foreign to the ideas of our Constitution. The judges had a difficult time in arriving at a decision, but finally awarded the verdict to the Brooklynites.

SCHOOL RULE STIRS VILLAGE.

Girl Pupil Suspended Because She Refused to Rake the Yard.

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, Mass., June 4.—A war over a rake begun several weeks ago in this little town has resulted in a half dozen meetings of the School Committee, a suit against one of the townspeople, communications with the State Board of Education, and complaints to the Postmaster General of the United States.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Maud Bickford, the teacher, suggested to the pupils that they bring rakes to school with them and clean up the school premises. Some of the children did, but Viola Peterson refused to do so. She was suspended. Her parents and friends took the matter up, and now the courts will be asked to decide whether or not yard cleaning is part of a school course.

GIRL AVIATOR AVERTS WRECK OF MACHINE

Loses Control After Descent at St. Louis When Steering Wheel Snaps in Her Hands.

SAVES HERSELF BY PLANES

Machine Had Shot Up Forty Feet When She Pressed the Elevator Rod and Safely Lands.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 4.—What might have been a fatal aeroplane accident was averted this afternoon through the courage and presence of mind of Miss Nana Hibbard, a Denver society girl, who is studying aviation here. While taking a flight the steering wheel broke to pieces in her hands, whereupon she instantly reached forward at arm's length and by manipulating the elevator rod brought the machine in safety to the ground.

It was Miss Hibbard's fourth flight, and in consideration of the large Sunday crowd she stated that she intended to make a good one. Three times during the afternoon she pleaded with Instructor Benoise to allow her to make a flight, but he demurred on account of the wind. Finally, about 6:30 o'clock, the wind went down, and her request was granted.

Clad in a shirt waist and a white duck skirt, she mounted to the seat and after receiving instructions from Benoise started off. When sufficient momentum had been attained she worked the elevator and took the air at an angle of forty-five degrees. She sailed around the field and descended, when the propeller struck one of the wires leading to the steering wheel, and the latter was snapped from the shaft leaving the rim in Miss Hibbard's hands. The machine, now without control, shot into the air again to a height of forty feet and continued on at a rate of thirty-five miles an hour. With the broken wheel still clasped in her left hand the girl reached forward with her right hand and grasping the bamboo shaft leading to the elevator she depressed it and made a perfect landing.

The large crowd which had signified their approval Miss Hibbard's flight grew suddenly quiet when they saw the machine go off without control. When they realized that the girl had escaped injuries they uttered a shout and crowded around the machine.

When Benoise, who had started the machine at the extreme end of the field, came hurrying up, she exclaimed:

"Oh, look what I did to your machine. I'm so sorry."

"I'm proud of you," said Benoise. "For presence of mind and gameness I have never seen your equal."

He presented her with the remains of the steering wheel as a souvenir of her first accident.

Robertson, the Curtiss aviator, who came to St. Louis this morning, was on the field. He congratulated the girl on not having lost her nerve in the emergency.

"It was fine," he said. "I never thought a woman could think and act so quickly. She might have been killed had she not resumed control when she did."

Aside from a slight scratch on her arm from the broken spoke of the steering wheel, Miss Hibbard was uninjured.

CATCHING THE MASCALONGE.

Chautauqua Lake and St. Lawrence River Being Fished for Big Pike.

Special to The New York Times.

THOUSAND ISLANDS, N. Y., June 4.—There are two places within the borders of New York State where the mascalonge may be taken—Chautauqua Lake and the St. Lawrence River. In the former the freebooter of the pike family may not be taken before June 16, but in these waters St. Lawrence fishermen have had three days of fishing—Thursday, Friday and to-day, but no fish of any considerable size have been taken, for the mascalonge is a solitary fish that lurks among weeds of shallow or the deep waters, frequently with a mate, and many a day is spent in hard fishing and the angler returning with "fisherman's luck."

Because the mascalonge is not a generally distributed fish like its cousins, the pickerel, pike and pike-perch, it makes up for that in size and game qualities, weighing up to seventy-five pounds. While it is a game fish, it is not a particularly nice fish to handle. One translation of names given to this fish by the Indians of Canada is "nasty," but not in the sense of being vile or bad—meaning a difficult fish to handle, even to catch. It has a large mouth, large teeth and frequently in the case of a large fish it is a good thing to put a bullet through or in its head before lifting it into the boat. Naturally no angler would do this before he had really subdued the fish and shooting pickerel is no longer regarded as sport, even among the Vermont farmers, where it used to be extensively practiced. Like the pickerel, the mascalonge has the habit of lying in wait, hardly moving a fin, lying hidden in the weeds waiting for its prey to appear. Then with a quick dart it is upon the smaller fish before there is opportunity for it to move a fin.

In the St. Lawrence River the mascalonge is usually fished for in the morning from about 8 or 9 o'clock until an hour before noon; between that hour and 2 o'clock the fish, as well as man, find it to advantage to rest. From 3 o'clock till sundown is another good time to fish, and even after night the fish is abroad and sometimes in a biting mood. Like all game fish, they have their moods and will not take the bait when offered, even when trolled across its mouth. And yet, if this is kept up, the angler knowing that a big fish, or even a small-sized fish is lurking in a certain spot, the fish, in anger and passion, will strike the annoying lure out of pure cussedness. There are instances where the trolling spoon has been bent as if the fish intended to show the fighting powers that lurked in the fish lying contentedly in the weeds.

Particularly on days when the sun warms the water mascalonge, like the pickerel, enjoy lying in shallow water, their heads pointed outward at a depth of about five or six feet or from ten to fifteen feet, depending upon weedy bottoms.

Some anglers prefer the trolling spoon entirely, others prefer to fish with live bait, such as yellow perch, the silvery chub or the boy's delight, the sucker. Early in the season the live bait fishermen seem to get best results, but there is no telling what a game fish, finiky to a degree, will do.

The mascalonge, living in the cold waters of big lakes and rivers, is a fish that likes the calm quietness that the solitary seemingly prefer. In this they are not unlike members of the human race. Noise disturbs and the boatman who knows his business rows quietly, for while the shadow of a boat probably would not disturb the fish, the scraping of feet in the boat or the working of a motor might. Motor boats in the St. Lawrence River have never helped mascalonge fishing. The fish may change their habits and get used to it, but at present the old-fashioned methods of taking the fish result in catches.

The mascalonge skulks and has bulk. It leaps, too, although it does not stand on its tail. The fish must be really tired out, completely exhausted, before it is brought close to the boat, for it has a nasty habit of not acting pleasantly when it gets close to the fisherman. Perhaps that's why those Indians of Canada called it maskinomge.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

William Hodge has completed his fourth season in "The Man from Home," and left yesterday for his Summer place at Cohasset, Mass. He has played the role of Daniel Voorhees Pike nearly 1,500 times, and will continue to play it next season.

Frank Losee has been engaged by the Authors' Producing Company for the role of James Darwin in the Western "The Gamblers" company. Charles Stevenson will continue in his original role in the Eastern organization. Jane Cowl, who will return from Europe this month for a short season in stock, will again assume the role of Catherine Darwin.

John Cort announces that he will produce "Jingaboo," a new farce with music, early next Fall. The book is by Leo Ditrichstein, the lyrics by Vincent Bryan, and the music by Arthur Pryor.

The machinery that manipulates the sliding roof of the Globe Theatre was tested yesterday after lying idle all Winter, and found to work perfectly. So when the Friars' Frolic is given at that theatre next Friday night the audience will find itself in a roofless theatre, if the weather is good.

NOT SUING COUNT FOR MONEY

Mme. Coriat's Lawyer Also Says Tolstoy Married Her in London Church.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 4.—Although Mme. Coriat's address continues to be kept secret, her lawyer here, C. Eade Percy, has issued a statement in The Matin in order to refute the insinuation that she is suing Count Tolstoy in the hope that she will obtain a sum of money. Mme. Coriat, he said, is the daughter of a wealthy Frenchman, and now a naturalized Englishman living in London as a wholesale dealer in delicacies.

"As for the Count's statement that his marriage to Mme. Coriat was only an after-lunch affair, I can only say that the ceremony was performed on June 9, 1893, by Mr. Abbot, curate of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, London. After that the couple lived happily at the Champs Elysée's Hotel until the end of 1894, when the Count, for reasons which I am not at liberty to divulge, suddenly left France, deserting his wife, whom he left destitute.

"Since then she has lived quietly in London. She decided to begin her present suit for bigamy only after reading in the papers the announcement of the Count's wedding to Miss Frothingham of New York in Paris on Jan. 28, 1910. It was, of course, through investigations for this suit that Mme. Coriat found out that the Count was also married to Miss Julia Jackson on Jan. 22, 1898, by the Registrar at Hull, England.

"To my mind both Mme. Coriat's and Miss Jackson's weddings are perfectly legal, as they were performed according to English law, and, both from the viewpoint of English and international law, they are absolutely unassailable. According to the Count, the Tsar granted him in April last a ukase annuling his first marriage; but neither the religious ceremony with Mme. Coriat nor his marriage to Miss Jackson have, however, been made void.

"French justice is now to be asked to decide, and in France whoever marries after having gone through a legal ceremony with another party abroad is considered a bigamist."

"And," concluded Mr. Percy, "both Mme. Coriat and Miss Jackson married the Count legally, exactly in the same way as all English and American girls marry."

Margin of Safety in Investments

The wise investment of money is not simply a question of safety; nor, on the other hand, is it merely a matter of income. It is in reality a combination of the two.

While it is impossible to present any fixed rule, it is generally laid down by experts as an axiom that when a bond issue represents from one-half to one-third the true value of a property mortgaged, then the margin of security is ample.

If, moreover, the income applicable to interest charges on a given bond issue is from two to three times the annual requirement, then the margin of earnings is ample.

If, in addition, the bonds yield approximately 5 per cent. and have a reasonably broad market, then they combine:

1. Safety as to principal.
2. Liberality of income.
3. Convertibility into cash.
4. Opportunity for profit.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

After a short-lived but sharp decline in prices following the handing down of the Supreme Court's decision in the American Tobacco case and the announcement of further cuts in prices of steel products, both of which developments occurred over the holiday on Tuesday last, the stock market turned upward and throughout the balance of the week showed general and substantial strength. Paralleling this forward movement on the Stock Exchange, the week's record presents a number of incidents of really great interest. It should be said that some difference of opinion exists in the financial community regarding the true bearing upon the situation of the decision in the American Tobacco case and of the reduction in the prices of steel products, but those who find serious flaws in either of those matters are undoubtedly outnumbered by those who see in both developments of most satisfactory import. Of the rapidity of the advance in Stock Exchange quotations there was perhaps an even broader division of opinion, but in this connection it is well to remember the emphasis so persistently laid in the financial district, during the days which preceded the Standard Oil and American Tobacco decisions, upon the restrictive influence which the uncertainty of those cases was exercising upon business and upon the securities market as well. That uncertainty, it is true, has not yet been entirely lifted, and will not be until the working out of the task which the Supreme Court, in deciding the American Tobacco case, has laid upon the lower court. This much, however, is true, that the American Tobacco decision has strengthened the previous strongly established conviction that the Supreme Court has, as the court itself puts it in the American Tobacco decision, "a proper regard for the vast interests of private property" and seeks to give "complete and efficacious effect to the prohibitions" of the Sherman law "with as little injury as possible to the interests of the general public."

Regarding the probable character of the plan for the rearrangement of the American Tobacco Company, which is to be worked out under the decree of the Supreme Court, there is unquestionably much difference of opinion, some finding in this a possibility of serious difficulties, while others, with perhaps too much lightheartedness, assume that in effect all that will be necessary will be a readjustment of the form of the American Tobacco Company's organization. In support of the latter view, there was quoted many times last week a passage in the Supreme Court's decree which lays upon the lower court the duty of "ascertaining and determining upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination and of recreating out of the elements now composing it a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law." This apparently was read by many as though the phrase "a new condition" were synonomous with "a new corporation" empowered to take over the properties of the American Tobacco Company and continue its business much as at present. This is an assumption which the text of the decision by no means seems to warrant, for in the very next paragraph but one the court adds that a failure within the time allowed to bring about a condition of "disintegration in harmony with the law" will make it necessary by injunction or receivership to end the restraint of trade of which the American Tobacco Company has been adjudged guilty. It may well be then that the rearrangement which the Supreme Court has ordered may present serious problems, the working out of which can hardly be gauged in advance. Looking beyond the American Tobacco Company itself, however, it is a reasonable expectation that the fulfillment of the Supreme Court's decree in this case will have the result of laying down a standard of what is to be considered legal in corporate organization under the Sherman law as that statute now stands interpreted. This is a feature of the decision which is giving much satisfaction in highest banking circles.

It is to be regarded as particularly fortunate that following closely upon the rendering of the American Tobacco decision, the second of those whose approach had long been restricting financial and commercial endeavor, there was published a report on the country's cotton crop which promises the largest yield of that staple in the history of the country. Bright as had been the expectations regarding the showing to be made, the report itself exceeded them. The estimated increase in acreage was somewhat smaller than had been anticipated, but the condition of the crop on May 25 was much better than any had foreseen. The acreage is placed by the department at 35,004,000 acres, the largest ever planted, exceeding by 4.7 per cent. the acreage planted last year. Only once in the last ten years has the condition at this date been as high as the 87.8 figure named this year by the Department of Agriculture. The ten-year average itself is only 80.9, so that the outlook for the crop this year, quite apart from the increase in acreage, is a brilliant one. It was from the planting of 1908 that the country's largest crop was raised, amounting, according to the census ginning figures, to 13,587,306 bales. This year the acreage is 4.8 per cent. larger than it was in 1908, and this element of improvement alone would indicate a crop in the neighborhood of 14,250,000 bales. This figure, however, does not take into account the much higher condition report this year, compared with the 79.7 condition shown in the June report in 1908. Impairment usually, but not invariably, occurs as the crop progresses, but this year there is ample margin for average deterioration without destroying the chance of a record crop. It has been a relatively dry May in the cotton States, but that is a condition which would tend to strengthen root growth, and with favorable conditions from now on this will prove a benefit and not a detriment to the cotton fields. Still another factor bearing upon the chance of a crop larger than any have hoped for up to this time is the fact that fertilizers have been used this year with greater freedom than ever in the past. There were those who accepted last week's cotton report as holding promise of a yield of 15,000,000 bales, and it cannot be said on the basis of the record as it now stands that this is an extravagant hope. It is unnecessary to dwell on the influence which such a yield of cotton would have upon our trade at home as well as on the country's foreign commerce. So far as the latter is concerned the importance of our cotton exports could not be more strikingly shown than by the record of this year's change in our foreign trade position, which has been largely due to the very great value of our exports of this staple.

Of the further cuts in steel prices made last week it is only necessary to point afresh to the considerations which were dwelt on when the first cuts were announced more than a week ago. These general price revisions have consistently in the past pointed the way to improvement in the steel trade, and in the present instance no other outcome can reasonably be foreshadowed. This improvement has never, however, occurred offhand, and there is no reason, therefore, for disappointment over the fact that so far the lower prices have not induced large new orders. A month, or even two or three, would not be an excessive period to allow for the gradual change which culminates in increased activity following such price revisions. The important fact in this connection is that underlying factors have been shaping themselves favorably and there is ample reason for the confidence in the outlook which so many now entertain. The testimony presented in the Congressional investigation of the United States Steel Corporation now under way has served to strengthen confidence in the honesty of the corporation's management, and in its purpose to deal frankly with its customers, its securities holders, and the public.

No small measure of interest attaches to the financing done last week by the Great Northern Railway, one of the most interesting features of which is that after long years of financing through stock issues this system has now resorted to a bond issue, the importance of which is sentimentally, at least, heightened by the fact that it is covered by a mortgage authorizing the largest issue that has ever been placed on any railroad system. Such is the present condition of the money market that these bonds and others placed last week were quickly absorbed. The subscriptions to the Union Pacific's $25,000,000 issue, which was allotted at the close of the week, covered that issue several times over. There can be no doubt of the market's appetite for issues of the grade of these Union Pacific and Great Northern bonds.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

STRONGER TONE IN LONDON.

Easier Money Market in America and Paris Has Its Effect.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 4.—Stock Exchange traders separated for the holidays in a most cheerful frame of mind, with prospects all around considered good and particularly in America, where monetary conditions improved and big sums were available for investment. An increased ease is expected in the discount market, more gold being likely to come from Paris. Reports have it that as much as from £4,000,000 to £5,000,000 will be available in Paris for London during the next few months.

SHARES UP IN BERLIN.

Foreign Issues Lead the Trading—Tobacco Decision Unnoticed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 4. Trading on the Boerse was unwontedly firm last week. Interest concentrated mainly in foreign issues, such as Warsaw-Vienna Railway, Canadian Pacific, and Southwest Africans, although German shipping shares were active on advancing prices.

Canadians experienced another season of their oldtime popularity with German investors, the net gain on price for the week being 4 points. Monthly settlements took place amid the liveliest kind of buying activity upon the part of the public. Prices of several of the home securities rose to almost unprecedented figures. The Tobacco decision passed practically unnoticed.

PARIS MARKET ACTIVE.

Dullness Disappears on News of Renewed Trading in Wall Street.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 4.—After an indifferent settlement day the dullness of the last few weeks disappeared on the Bourse as soon as news of renewed activity in Wall Street reached here. Since June 1 practically all the markets have experienced a rise, and it was under the most favorable conditions that the Atchison's shares made their first appearance. Rios and Philadelphia stocks were firm.

The Bourse generally closed in an excellent condition, which gives hope for good business next week.

STEEL MAKERS FIRM FOR HOLDING RATES

ATTITUDE OF PURCHASERS

Some Hesitate Making Contracts for Merchant Bars on the New Low Basis.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 4.—It has not been possible to test the influence of the cuts in steel prices in effect last Thursday. Salesmen found themselves in a measure out of touch with buyer, owing to the chaotic conditions that have ruled in the finished product market for the past fortnight.

The attitude of producers of finished steel as to prices in the future, however, has been made perfectly clear. The reductions were made without the remotest intention of making a second revision of the list later. However, certain products, particularly wrought pipe and wire, were not touched, and it is possible that some concessions may be made on them later.

Sounding of the finished steel market for prompt purchases and on forward contracts reveals the fact that producers in the Pittsburg district have no intention of yielding to the allurements of the "open market." The new official prices will be held firmly by the large independents, who are more thoroughly in accord with the Steel Corporation's policy than at any time in the last six months. There is no intimation of the possibility of shading existing prices, which already are low. Some of them are lower than during the low point reached by the open market following the 1907 panic. Steel men give this comparison, as showing present and past levels in finished material:

Product.	End. 1907.	Low. 1909.	High. 1910.	Present List.
Plates	1.70	1.10	1.55	1.35
Steel bars	1.60	1.05	1.45	1.25
Wire	1.90	1.40	1.65	1.60
Sheets	2.60	2.15	2.40	2.00

The high points reached in 1907 were [illegible] high at that time. Neither [illegible] high points reached last year considered as fulfilling the ultimate promise of the market at that time.

An unusual incident in connection with the bringing of merchant bars to the new low level of 1.25c., Pittsburg mill, came out in connection with the renewal of negotiations yesterday by one of the agricultural implement companies. Three days before the Republic Iron and Steel Company made its cut of $3 in merchant bars, (on May 24,) the Carnegie Steel Company and others of the independents had begun closing bar contracts with some of their agricultural implement customers, for the twelve months beginning July 1 next, on a basis of 1.40c., Pittsburg, with a clause protecting the buyer against any decline in the market. These contracts still hold with the reduction to 1.25c., the producers having readjusted them on that basis, following the Republic's announcement, the guarantee clause remaining. Other interests that desired to take a contract for the last half of the year in merchant bars yesterday, however, refused to accept the flate rate of 1.25c., insisting on the same guarantee against decline of the market below that figure.

Railroad equipment companies, both car building and locomotive, have reduced their working forces. The makers of plates and structural material are endeavoring to keep operation at their present rate for another week, feeling certain that the new prices will bring out business long held up. The rail mills of Pittsburg district reduced operating capacity during the week.

Operations are slightly heavier in tin plate than they were a fortnight ago, and the industry is running at a better percentage than any other branch of the steel trade. The operations of the Steel Corporation and the principal independent tin plate interests figure out fully 80 per cent. of maximum. The mills are booked till about September, and there will be little slowing down in the rate of output during the Summer months.

The effect of the lower prices of Virginia and Southern irons is wearing away in the Valley markets, and there seems to be little tendency toward a further lowering of price levels. Basic iron is an uncertain quantity, with quotations on prompt running down to $13 at Valley furnace in a few cases, which is 75 cents under the March price for that grade. Other lines show no change in price levels, although there is not inquiry for sufficient tonnage to test the market.

The official average price of Bessemer iron for the month of May was $15, on flat sales of 1,000 tons or over. This is the figure at which Bessemer has been kept without a break since the early part of last August. There have been no actual reports of sales of Bessemer for nearly three weeks, and some interests in the market consider this price only nominal. Several heavy consumers of Bessemer have about exhausted stocks and are expected to be in the market before the middle of the month, with inquiries for tonnages for July shipment. One Valley producer is known to have upward of 60,000 tons of Bessemer and basic piled in stock at furnaces, owing partly to reduced deliveries on running contracts; but Bessemer stocks are very strongly held, and it will take tremendous pressure to break the market.

Foundry iron remains at $13.65 to $13.75, Valley furnace, for third quarter deliveries, with demand very slack. Malleable has shown some irregularity, some lots of off-analysis iron selling down to $13.25, Valley furnace. The claim is made, however, that these prices will not permanently affect standard malleable.

The official average price of basic iron for the month of May, based on actual flat sales, was $13.45, Valleys.

$140,500,000 FOR ROADS.

Expenditures in the Country This Year to be Larger Than Ever.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The amount of money that will be expended on the roads of this country in the next six months will be greater than ever before in the same period. The total expenditure for the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges in the United States in 1904 amounted to about $80,000,000, but the amount in 1911 will aggregate about $140,500,000. This includes all moneys raised by local taxation, bond issues, State appropriation, and private subscriptions.

"Every State in the Union," said Logan Waller Page, Director of the United States Office of Public Roads, in telling of the results of the campaign for good roads, "seems at last to be thoroughly aroused to the benefits derived from investments in improved highways.

"It is expected that at least $5,000,000 will be expended on State-aid roads and on trunk-line systems in the State of New York, in addition to $7,000,000 already raised by local taxation. More money is being devoted to road improvement in New York than in any other State in the Union, and the percentage of improved roads in that State has increased from 7.9 per cent. in 1904 to 60 per cent. in 1909. In Pennsylvania the State-aid appropriation will probably amount to more than $1,000,000, and a $50,000,000 bond issue is being considered.

"The prospect for a complete system of public roads throughout the United States is better now than ever before in the history of the country, and a uniformity of recent good-road laws gives promise that this country will eventually take its place with France in having the most sensible system of road supervision and maintenance."

MAKING POSTAL BANKS FAST.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Postmaster General Hitchcock will have at least 1,000 postal savings banks established by July 1, the end of the first six months of the installation of the system in the United States. This is a world's record; not one of the forty-eight foreign countries where the system now flourishes has attempted to operate in so many offices in so short a time.

New designations will hereafter be made at the rate of at least 150 a week. Mr. Hitchcock announces that he will extend the system to the larger cities of the country on July 1. Up to the present time all the offices he has designated have been of the second class. With the fifty offices designated to-day the total number established is 450.

TEXAS ROADS SHOW DEFICIT.

Operating Expenses Increase by Larger Per Cent. Than Revenues.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 4.—Statistician H. G. Askew, representing thirty-two leading railroads of Texas, that embrace approximately 93 per cent. of the mileage and do approximately 95 per cent. of the business of Texas, has completed a compilation of reports for nine months of the present fiscal year ended March 31 last.

The compilation shows the total operating revenue of the thirty-two railroads for the period covered was $80,208,710.64, being an increase of 5.84 per cent., as compared with the same period of the preceding year. The total operating expenses for the same period aggregate $60,270,180.11, which is an increase of 7.86 per cent. as compared with the same period of the preceding year. Out of the gross corporate income of the thirty-two roads, the corporate income being the sum left after deducting operating expenses from total operating revenue and adding all other receipts, there was expended during the period covered $23,995,700.18, leaving a deficit of $2,293,899.12 as a result. This $23,995,700.18 was expended for taxes, rents accrued for lease of road, rent of joint facilities, interest accrued on funded and other debts, debit balances, outside operations, miscellaneous rents, additions, and betterments.

ADMITS ROBBING STUDENTS.

Ithaca Youth Stole Their Clothing in Cornell Fraternity Houses.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 4.—Confessing to robbing a number of fraternity and rooming houses at Cornell University, Edward Riker, 16 years old, has been held for the Grand Jury on the charge of grand larceny and burglary.

Riker stole thirty raincoats, a number of baseballs, bats, gloves, shoes, and other clothing from fraternity houses, usually gaining entrance through the windows just before dawn. He would leave his home about 4 o'clock, telling his mother he was employed on a milk wagon. Then he would go to the fraternity district and conduct his operations.

A wagon load of goods has been recovered by the police. Some of the stolen stuff had been sold.

SOUTH AMERICAN FRUIT HERE

Consignment Brought Here in Cold Storage as an Experiment.

The experiment of miproting fruit from South America is now being tried, and those in the trade are watching the outcome with much interest. The Lamport & Holt steamer Voltaire arrived yesterday with the first shipment. She brought 760 boxes of grapes from Argentina and 75 cases of navel oranges from Bahis, Brazil.

To accommodate the shipment the vessel was fitted with large cold storage boxes. The cargo will be unloaded to-day, and the fruit will be sold at auction.

Among the passengers on the Voltaire was Pedro Gaytia, the newly appointed Argentine Consul General to Mexico.

COTTONS AT FALL RIVER.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 3.—The curtailment among cotton cloth, hosiery, knit goods, and yarn mills is the greatest in over ten years, and from various reports collected from textile sections it is stated that between 20 and 50 per cent. of the machinery in the mills is stopped and in some instances mills will not resume operations till more satisfactory conditions develop. The reports consolidated show that the curtailment of yarn, knitting, and cloth mills amounts to 30 per cent., and not more than 50 per cent. of the available men's wear looms are busy, and in some quarters of the trade it is stated that at this period the curtailment in dress goods production amounts to nearly 60 per cent.

It is stated that the amount of stocks on hand in this city alone will reach about 1,000,000 pieces, while during the severe depression thirteen years ago the amount of cloth held by mills here was in the neighborhood of 4,000,000 pieces. Wool and silk have been comparatively low in price, although it has been a difficult matter to obtain the necessary prices to compensate mills for manufacturing the various fabrics.

Of the total sales for this week, about 40,000 pieces were spots. Contracts extend to August. The quotations are as follows:

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 3.—The news of the copper world this week, in addition to the reported decrease in the visible supply of the metal abroad, is the report from the North Lake mine of a diamond drill strike in the centre of the southeast corner of Section 29 of a well defined commercial lode at a depth of 1,240 feet. The vein is eleven feet in width, and well charged with copper. The discovery is important, also, for both Lake and Indiana, as well as for Bohemia.

Franklin's May output was 87 tons, five tons more than in May, 1910.

Wolverine produced 1,026,000 pounds of mineral in May; Quincy, 1,355 tons; Mohawk, 1,500,250 pounds.

The combined production of the Washoe and Great Falls smelters in May was 22,100,000 pounds, as compared with 24,816,593, in May, 1910, and 21,500,000 in April, 1911.

The Boston office of the Franklin is informed of good copper being encountered on the twenty-seventh level in the south drift.

Officials of North Butte are dumb concerning the vein cut at 2,200 feet, but reports reach Boston that its width has increased to 15 feet and that the ore is running about 12 per cent.

The Algomah drifts are said to be in good ore.

During May Copper Range Consolidated produced 2,655 tons of copper, against 2,804 in May of last year, and for the five months 12,709 tons, against 13,646.

Sharnon's production of blister copper in May was 1,220,000 pounds, as compared with 1,326,000 in May, 1910.

Giroux has struck high grade ore about thirty-five feet from the Alpha shaft.

Calumet and Hecla's smelter in May put out 3,854,000 pounds of blister copper, 4,000 pounds more than in April.

Mohawk's production in May was 589 tons of mineral, against 665 tons in April.

INORGANIC WORLD PARENT OF ORGANIC?

Scientists Get Results from the Diffusion of Liquids Tending to Prove It.

SECRET OF LIFE IS HIDDEN

Investigators Despair of Ever Solving the Mystery, but Keep On with Their Experiments.

Scientists have about given up hope of solving the problem of what life really is. On the other hand, they believe that by a continued study of the diffusion of liquids, or "osmotic pressure," as it is termed in the language of the laboratory, they can get nearer to an understanding of the machinery by means of which life produces its results.

Recent experiments with mineral solutions show that inorganic substances apparently "grow" and produce strange forms analogous to the lower forms of animal and plant creation.

"Among others," says American Medicine, "Prof. Leduc of Nantes has devoted much study to the matter, and his work on the 'Mechanism of Life' is likely, we understand, soon to appear in English dress. As Dr. J. Bell Pettigrew says in his recent work on 'Design in Nature,' 'the great rhythms of the physical universe are transferred in a multitude of ways to the vegetable and animal kingdoms, a circumstance of the deepest import, as showing that the inorganic kingdom is, in a sense, the parent of the organic kingdom, and that the two kingdoms are in complete accord and complement even in matters of detail.'

"It is thus possible that a more exhaustive study of the osmotic process may bring us a step nearer to the comprehension of the mysterious problem of life—not, indeed, to what life is, but to the machinery by means of which it produces its results. The most complete knowledge, both structural and functional, of all living bodies would no more explain what life is than a thorough acquaintance with the structure and functions of electrical apparatus would disclose to us what electricity is.

"How electricity affects its results, to what laws its activity is subject, are matters within the possible compass of successful investigation; why it should produce any effects at all, or why those effects should be subject to laws of any kind, is apparently as unfathomable as the what and why of life itself.

"At a recent meeting of the Roentgen Society, the President, Dr. W. Deane Butcher, gave an address and a demonstration of this phenomenon—the curious mineral growth that is formed by the pushing or thrusting of the molecules of a mineral solute. He displayed in glass vessels the weird-looking forms, some of which were startling similar in appearance to mushrooms, sea urchins, corals, and other living products, introducing them, not as mere curiosities, but rather as indicating in the rough a part of the mechanism of life.

"Half a century ago," he said, "Huxley wrote his famous treatise on a piece of chalk, an inert lump of matter which was in reality the graveyard of a host of diatones and other micro-oegonisms that had once enjoyed a veritable riot of life. Modern science went further and prophesied that the chalk might yet live again in the future, and that the awakening of its molecules could take place by means of a purely physical and chemical stimulous, without the intervention of any 'germ' or 'seed,' or even of the modern wonderworker, radioactivity.

"By taking a piece of calcium chloride (chloride of lime) fresh from the furnace, and therefore free from any trace of life or germ, or even of organic matter, and placing it in an inorganic solution that had been sterilized by boiling, the stone would grow, putting forth in a few moments plumule and otem, leaves and branches. Dr. Bretcher illustrated the process, in fact, by projecting on the screen the visible growth of a tree from a 'seed' of calcium chloride, dropped into a solution of sodium silicate. The water tore apart the exposed calcium cloride molecules, setting free their ions to roam at will through the liquid.

"These ions were speedily seized on by the silicate ions, forming an insoluble precipitate, which immediately enveloped the calcium chloride 'seed' in a semi-permeable membrane. Osmotic pressure or diffusion did the rest. The force was the same as that which drove the tiny plumule of wheat through the clods and lifted the sap to the topmost twig of the tree.

"But not only the forms, but even the varieties of color and the texture of life, as well as the microscopical structure of its envelope, can be closely imitated by the action of liquid diffusion.

"One beautiful experiment was the introduction into a thin layer of liquid on a flat glass plate of a few drops of various chemical solutions, such as are present in the juices of many plants and animals. Each drop spread by diffusion, forming colored bands where two solutions met, and thus producing a variety of exquisite colors and intricate patterns.

"It was difficult, Dr. Butcher said, to avoid the conclusion that herein was displayed the modus operandi that Nature herself employs in her workshop, and the germ merely plays the part of prince to the sleeping beauty, awakening the forces of vitality, already existent in the dust, though frozen into a dreamless trance. It is curious and interesting in this connection to note how widespread in all ages is the belief that man was created from dust, earth, or stones.

"The lecturer was careful to guard against the misconception that these osmotic outgrowths are actually living beings. His object was merely to demonstrate that osmotic pressure is part of the machinery used by Nature in the process of growth. The study is one of extraordinary interest, and its study offers us another thread wherewith to penetrate the labyrinthine maze of the nature of life."

"TOM JONES" DOCUMENTS

Redating to Fielding's Pay for the Work and the Agreement.

Two documents of an extraordinary literary interest will be sold at Sotheby's in London next week. One is the autograph receipt by Henry Fielding for six hundred pounds paid to him by Andrew Millar for the copyright of "Tom Jones." It is dated June 11, 1748. The other document is the original agreement for writing the same famous work, signed and sealed by Fielding, and dated March 25, 1749. The agreement reads as follows:

> Know all Men by these Presents that I, Henry Fielding of St. Paul's, Covent Garden, in the County of Middlesex, Esqr., for and in consideration of the Sum of Six Hundred Pounds of lawful money of Great Britain to me in hand paid by Andrew Millar of St. Mary le Strand in the county afores'd, Bookseller, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and of which I do acquit the s'd Andrew Millar, his Executors & Assigns, have bargained, sold, delivered, assigned & set over all that my Title, Right and Property in & to a certain Book, printed in Six Volumes, known and called by the name & title of The History of Tom Jones, a Foundling, written by me, the s'd Henry Fielding, with all Improvements, Additions or Alterations whatsoever, which are now, or hereafter shall at any time, be made by me, the s'd Henry Fielding, or any one else by my authority to the s'd Book, To Have and to Hold the s'd bargained Promises unto the s'd Andrew Millar, his Exors., Admors or Assigns for ever. And I do hereby covenant to & with the s'd Andrew Millar, his Exors. And I, the s'd Henry Fielding, for myself, my Exors., Admors and Assigns, shall warrant and defend the said bargained Promises for ever against all persons whatsoever, claiming under me, my Exors., Admors. or Assigns. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand & Seal this twenty fifth day of March, One thousand seven hundred & forty nine.

"Tom Jones" is said to have been written at Tiverton-on-Avon, near Bath, where there is still a house called Fielding's Lodge. In his dedication of "Tom Jones" Fielding describes it as "the labour of some years of my life." It appeared Feb. 28, 1749, and was popular from the first. Horace Walpole, in his published "Letters," states that Millar paid Fielding £600 for the book and added £100 upon its success. Millar is said to have paid £1,000 for the copyright of "Amelia," Fielding's next work, in 1751. He adopted some devices, in consequence of which a second edition was called for on the day of publication.

WHEAT IRREGULAR ON MANIPULATION

CORN WAVERS; OATS STRONG

Cotton Goes Up as Foreign Demand Offsets Bearish Government Report.

The May manipulation at Chicago with the extending of the operations of the bull party into July was the feature of the speculative wheat market last week. The feeling was very general that with the wind-up of the May deal prices would work on a commercial basis, but the immediate advance of July of about 4c per bushel showed that the manipulation was not over. The bull party at Chicago, generally believed to be headed by Lichstern, was compelled to take in a very large amount of wheat on May contracts the last day, about 3,000,000 bushels, making, it was asserted, from 11,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels, which it was compelled to take on delivery or care for and keep off the market. A great deal of this wheat was bought at a much lower price than the final wind-up. The deal has been a long-winded one. The bull manipulation, which was a factor last January and carried May wheat then to about $1.02⅝, was generally understood to have been by the same parties. The bulls were driven out of their position and May wheat declined to 84⅝c. From a premium on July, May dropped to a discount. At that discount there was a very large amount of buying of May and selling of July, and for a while the operations looked like a huge spreading deal. The purchases of the May were evidently very much larger than generally credited, as there was an enormous amount of speculative short covering in addition to the huge deliveries referred to.

The advance of the July of 4c a bushel following the close of the May deal was looked upon as an effort to demonstrate the bull position, affording a possible settling basis for defaulting contracts, and also force a general advance in prices in order to merchandise the cash wheat. From the low point of the season May advanced just about 20 points, while July advanced only about 8. On the advance Friday it was declared the bull brokers sold about 2,000,000 bushels. An effort to carry the bull manipulation into July will be a hazardous speculation, as favorable weather and an early harvest would bring an enormous movement of new wheat for delivery.

The new crop situation has developed favorable during the week. The weather conditions in the Spring wheat belt have continued good. There has been further ample moisture in nearly all the Spring wheat sections and the advancement of the crop is very satisfactory and is so admitted by nearly every interest although Armour's expert was quoted as saying that 500,000 acres in North Dakota was being plowed up on account of damage. As Armour has been recognized as one of the bull houses in the May-July manipulation, the report was not received with general credit, in view of other advices. The Winter wheat has been very materially helped during the week by general rains, which extended from parts of Oklahoma northward all through Kansas, the Missouri Valley, and eastward to the Atlantic. While it is believed that the hot, dry weather prior to the rain resulted in some deterioration said by Snow to be about 5 points in Winter wheat for the month and reported by the Modern Miller at 2 to 18 points in different States, still the situation is looked upon as an excellent one. Seasonable moisture for filling this month may readily offset the May damage. Taking the Winter and Spring wheat promise, the outlook is still for a very large crop in both the United States and Canada.

Abroad the markets have moved quietly, showing an absence of interest in American wheat. The tenor of the crop news from Europe and from the Argentine has been favorable. There have been rains in Southeastern Europe and the outlook has been improved by the rains. The official report of the Indian crop was given out during the week, showing an outturn of 372,000,000 bushels, making a record for that country exceeding the previous record by about 13,000,0 bushels. The crop last year was 357,000,000 bushels. Other countries are shipping heavily to importing Europe and the world's exports for the past week were estimated at about 6,000,000 bushels more than a year ago.

CORN.

Corn has been active and rather irregular. There was a good advance in values followed by sharp reaction the middle of the week, and then later improved. The deliveries on May contracts at the West were heavy, as a result of the congestion in that month. Receipts were large at the interior and the total movement for the week as a result of the congestion showed an important gain over the previous week. The advance was partly sympathetic and also influenced by reports regarding developments of the new crop. The weather this season has been rather unusual. The planting time was extremely favorable. There was sufficient moisture in the ground, so that the soil was prepared in excellent shape, planting was not interrupted in any section by prolonged rain, the weather turned hot, and germination was very good, resulting in comparatively few complaints of replanting. Some damage by cut worms has been reported. The dry weather lasted long enough to cause uneasiness, and advices prior to the rains of this week were that the crop was needing moisture badly. There was very general rain, although under the conditions two or three times as much would not have been a surplus. A general increase in acreage is reported, and with favorable weather the situation is not a bad one. Owing, however, to the general deficiency in moisture this season frequent rains are believed to be necessary. Foreign markets have been firm, but the demand for American corn has been slow. A semi-official estimate on the Argentine crop made it a complete failure, only about 26,000,000 bushels against 175,000,000 bushels last year. It is believed that some old corn carried over from last year will be exported on account of the high price.

OATS.

There has been a strong and active market in oats. The advance meeting rather heavy realizing from time to time. The advance has been very largely a crop question. The weather conditions, while more favorable during the week, have not been good this year for oats. The seeding time was not very satisfactory, a general decrease in acreage is admitted and on account of the deficient May rains and hot weather the development of the new crop in the entire region east of the Mississippi and in the Southwest has been decidedly unsatisfactory. In Iowa, Nebraska, and the Northwest the conditions on the other hand have been very favorable. This section last year raised 448,000,000 bushels out of the grand total of 1,126,000,000 bushels. A Western crop expert issued a report, claiming prospects for under 1,000,000,000 bushels. With the rains last week and the cooler weather the conditions have been more favorable. The advance in oats has been very materially influenced by the strong market in hay, which advanced to $1.60 in New York per hundred pounds, a record price in recent years. They were also affected by the complaints of very serious injury to the new hay crop on account of the dry, hot weather in May and also of serious shortage in the pasturage crops. Unless the weather becomes very favorable a material shortage in hay is feared.

PROVISIONS.

Hog products have trended steadily downward. This has been the result of continued heavy movement of hogs and of a further increase in the stocks of product at Western points of accumulation, particularly Chicago. The week's packing of hogs was 105,000 in excess of last year and since March 1, only three months, the interior packing of hogs has increased about 50 per cent., or 2,000,000 hogs over last year. While the distribution of product has been very liberal on account of the much lower prices, still there has been further gains in stocks of product of all kinds, particularly lard, and the world's stock of lard increased 54,000 tierces for the month, reaching the immense total of 268,000 tierces. The position of the market still seems to be directly dependent upon the movement of live hogs to market.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A comparison of values for the last several days will disclose the fact that fluctuations have been confined to within narrow limits. Operations have been devoid of significance, and the market again appears to be in a rut, from which it cannot be expected to emerge until consumers display some disposition to meet refiners' views, or else the latter concerns stimulate activity by granting concessions. Speculation is not expected to play an important part in the formation of values during the remainder of the season, although without a doubt there are miscellaneous commitments on both sides of the market for speculative account.

It is generally recognized that refiners control the bulk of supplies, and are therefore expected to maintain values on depressions of importance, but it has been demonstrated that attitude on the part of consumers has not changed materially. Their disposition continues to be one of purchasing limited supplies, covering a short period, and recently intimations have come to hand that their apathy at present is of longer duration than was generally expected. In the meantime, the underlying steadiness of spot oil indicates that pressure to sell is not great.

Conditions in the cotton belt have failed to awaken bullish enthusiasm, although that market, in reflection of dry weather conditions, has scored fair advances. Some apprehension is doubtless felt over the complaints, but to date these reports have not been accentuated by buying orders in the far months of cottonseed oil. Of course, in cotton there is the argument that a large crop will cause but little pressure this year, which makes that trade more susceptible to deterioration reports, but in cotonseed oil a large crop may prove rather burdensome if realized. The bearish Government report of last week indicates that the crop has had a good start, with a record acreage and highest condition in several years, although more or less deterioration is to be expected.

COTTON.

Interest is gradually swerving from old crop positions into the new crop deliveries, while the same indisposition to sell aggressively is still apparent. Sentiment is mixed, and although there are many interests who are emphatic in bearish assertions, it is evident that courage is lacking, as is leadership. Crop reports, which are the dominating market influence at present, recently have been varying in tenor, but it is significant that the trade has been found to be most susceptible to those of a bullish character. Trade accounts show no particular change and curtailment is at the height of the season. This reflects the indisposition on the part of manufacturers to operate at a loss and a reduction in working time is the only alternative. The near positions have been more or less neglected, but control is still thought to be complete. The scarcity of actual cotton, which is being emphasized more and more each week by the bullish statistics, discourages the idea of antagonizing those who have anticipated the probable scant supplies at the beginning of next season. Accounts from abroad relative to trade situation there are without special feature at present, the holidays restricting activity. This reflects in domestic spot circles, where business is practically at a minimum, and, naturally, the tendency continues to buy sparingly with the current discounts of the new crop months.

Values last week tended upward, with some buying, due principally to a belief that bearish conditions prevailing in the belt have received sufficient advertising, without appreciable market effect, while a change would probably be to the advantage of holders. At the commencement of the week there were good rains in Oklahoma, sections of northern and western Kansas, while the Carolinas also received partial relief from drought, but nevertheless the sentimental effect of these beneficial advices was only temporary. Following these conditions, was a period of clear and warm weather, with subsequent claims that the rainfall in the majority of localities has been insufficient and the entire belt requires additional precipitation. There is a wide diversity of opinion as to whether or not the need of these rains is urgent, but the temper of the trade is apparently to be irritated easily and, pending the realization of the moisture, further deterioration dispatches are to be anticipated.

The issuance of the Government report was probably the most conclusive evidence at hand for several months of the unwillingness of the trade to respect factors which ordinarily would exert a bearish influence on the list. Notwithstanding estimates by several authorities, which were all bearish, the official report gave a condition excelling the hopes of many radical bears, while the acreage increase was only fractionally smaller than conservative expectations. It was conceded that the high percentage condition at this time of the season is far from indicative of a large crop being realized, as drought, over-abundance of rain and frost are conditions yet to be encountered, while the boll weevil will undoubtedly be a factor of some importance. With these probabilities for the incentive of future bullish crop advices, interests in favor of higher prices in conjunction contended that the demand for a large cotton crop was world-wide and is imperative.

It is beyond denial, however, that fundamental conditions revealed are of such a character as to warrant the optimistic hopes in many quarters of this needed large crop materializing. With a condition of the plant on May 25 of 87.7 and an acreage increase of 4.7, the trade is confronted with the largest increase in history, while the condition is the best with but few exceptions. It is a matter of opinion whether or not the plant has maintained its promise as of to-day, depending largely upon the view entertained as to the seriousness of the drouth in many sections. Some conservative cotton authorities do not hesitate in asserting that rains in the near future would materially change the aspect of crop accounts coming to hand at present, claiming that although conditions may not be propitious, a copious rainfall may have a miraculous effect in regard to the appearance of the plant.

Deductions, therefore, as to the probable outcome of the crop based on the Government report are rather meaningless. The increase in acreage brings the total sown to 35,004,000 acres. With the improved methods of cultivation and larger use of fertilizers than general, it is natural to expect the yield per acre with normal conditions to be materially above that of last year, which was approximately 178 pounds per acre. If 195 pounds per acre can be produced, which is above the ten-year average by approximately 6 per cent, the yield would approximate to 13,700,000 bales. Conceding such an outturn, it is a matter of conjecture whether present prices discount a crop which will be over 1,500,000 bales larger than available supplies last season. Of course, it is also uncertain as to how considerable may be the improvement expected to take place in American trade conditions, and to how sustained will be the actvity abroad. Doubtless foreign conditions are healthy and spinners several weeks ago reported themselves well sold up for the early part of this season. In domestic quarters a readjustment in prices of manufactured goods and the raw material is inevitable, but steps toward the elimination of many unfavorable features heretofore existing have been taken.

Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company.

ATLANTA, KNOXVILLE AND CINCINNATI DIVISION
FOUR PER CENT. GOLD BONDS.

Dated May 1, 1905. Due May 1, 1955.

Interest Payable May 1 and November 1. Principal and Interest Payable in the City of New York.

Trustee: UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000 may be registered as to principal only. Registered bonds in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $50,000. Coupon and registered bonds interchangeable.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

From the letter of M. H. Smith, President of Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company (copies of which can be obtained at the offices of the undersigned), we summarize the following:

The bonds in question, besides being the direct obligation of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, are secured by a mortgage on its entire main line between Cincinnati and Atlanta. ON 204.67 MILES OF THIS DIVISION THEY ARE A DIRECT FIRST MORTGAGE AND ON 546.15 MILES THEY ARE A MORTGAGE SUBJECT TO PRIOR LIENS OUTSTANDING AT THE RATE OF ONLY ABOUT $15,000 PER MILE.

The mortgage also covers extensive terminal properties at Cincinnati, Ohio, Atlanta, Ga., and Knoxville, Tenn., having not only a large actual present value but also a steadily increasing one.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1910, the income of the Atlanta, Knoxville & Cincinnati Division applicable to the payment of interest charges was MORE THAN TWICE THE AMOUNT REQUIRED TO PAY INTEREST ON ALL LIENS PRIOR TO AND INCLUDING THE $23,827,000 BONDS OF THIS ISSUE.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, of which the Atlanta, Knoxville & Cincinnati Division, as indicated above, is an integral part, has been in continuous and successful operation since 1859, during which period it has at all times promptly met all its obligations. Since July, 1909, it has paid dividends at the rate of seven per cent. per annum.

Having sold a portion of the above described bonds, we offer, subject to prior sale and change in price, the balance of the $10,000,000 bonds at 93½ and accrued interest, at which price the bonds yield 4.30%.

The engraved bonds are now ready for delivery.

City Bank's Pension Plan.

Details of a plan for the pensioning, after long service, of its 450 employes are being worked out by the officials of the National City Bank. More than one tentative plan has been drawn up and choice has still to be made, it is understood, of which one is to be put into practice. Although no definite information was obtainable yesterday of the provisions of the proposed pension system it is believed that it will not depart radically from that in force since Jan. 3 in the First National Bank. That institutions's pension fund is partially made up of voluntary contributions from employes who wish to participate at the rate of 3 per cent. of their salaries. Contributions of an unstated amount are also made by the bank itself, but the share borne by the prospective beneficiaries in sustaining the fund is looked upon as a valuable feature of the plan as an inducement to saving, the total [illegible] of any employe being re[illegible] leave the bank's service before reaching the retirement age.

Railroad Is Earning Less.

"Under the best and most favorable anticipated conditions the earnings of the Boston & Maine Railroad for the year ending June 30, 1911, will be considerably less than the earnings for the year ended June 30, 1910. This result, which speaks for itself, is probably sufficient reason why the dividend has been lowered."

This finding of the Board of Railroad Commissioners is contained in a report sent to the Massachusetts Legislature concerning its investigations into the lowering of the rate of dividend declared recently by the Boston & Maine system.

400 Idle Lake Boats.

With twenty big freighters swinging idly behind the breakwater at Buffalo, owing to scarcity of cargoes and a heavy reduction in the number of boats in commission, shipping interests are taking a pessimistic view of the outlook for the season's business on the great lakes.

ODD TOBACCO DANCE OF THE CROW INDIANS

THESE REDSKINS HUMOROUS

Clowns Know How to Make Fun—Mother-in-law Joke Appreciated—Jokers Are Regulated.

Dr. Robert H. Lowie, Assistant Curator of the Department of Anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History, is one of the few white men who has witnessed the famous tobacco dance of the Crow Indians. This dance is the foremost and most elaborate religious observance of the Crow tribe, and is not a single dance, but in reality a cycle of beautiful and impressive performances beginning in the early Spring when the seeds of the tobacco are planted, and terminating with the gathering of the crop.

The plant thus cultivated is raised exclusively for what the Indians conceive to be its religious value, and is so highly valued among members of the tribe that they are willing to purchase a small bag of seeds at the price of a horse. Only duly adopted members of the several Tobacco societies are permitted to plant seeds in the Tobacco garden, where each society occupies a clearly defined plot and each couple initiated may drop seeds in two rows.

"I was fortunate enough," said Dr. Lowie, speaking of his experiences among the Crow Indians, "to witness an adoption ceremony held by one of these Tobacco societies.

"The members of the society, together with the candidate to be adopted, met in a tepee for the preparatory painting and singing. Here there were many songs and at each song the women rose and unwrapped their sacred bundles and danced. When, with much ceremony, the preparations were completed, all marched toward the adoption lodge, four stops being made on the way in accordance with the sacred number of these people.

"On entering the large canvas-covered lodge, the drummers sat at one side of an altar-like structure symbolizing the Tobacco garden. Continually during the formal impressive ceremony, small groups of women, or more rarely men, with their eagle-feather fans, sacred bird's-head decorations, and weasel or otto skins, rose and gently swayed their bodies and moved their arms rhythmically back and forth.

"Toward noon the friends of the candidate heaped up blankets and other property in his behalf, as payment to his 'adoptive parent,' as the person initiating him is called. By way of actual initiation of the candidate he was taken between two men standing at the foot of the altar and danced four dances with them, at the same time learning the songs. It was late in the afternoon when the closing song was chanted, after which all members seized little green sprigs and raised them aloft to symbolize and to promote the growth of the sacred Tabacco."

Dr. Lowie denies that Indians, as is commonly supposed, are entirely lacking in a sense of humor.

"While," says he, "the Tobacco ceremonies showed the serious side of the native character, the performance of the clowns refuted the popular fallacy that the Indians are devoid of humor. A group of men departed from camp and dressed up in the worst possible clothing, blackening their bodies with mud and donning crude masks made of canvas. Also they kidnapped the ugliest horse they could find and enhanced its unattractiveness by trappings of repulsive-looking gunnysack. They then returned to camp, and amused the spectators, stopping the play abruptly as soon as they were identified."

Dr. Lowie also says that the ancient mother-in-law joke is well-known to the Crow Indians as well as to many other American tribes. They call it the "mother-in-law taboo."

"No member of the Crow tribe," says Dr. Lowie, "is under any circumstances permitted even to hold conversation with his wife's mother. Another strange regulation relates to the playing of practical jokes. A man is permitted to jest with any one he pleases, but is limited to the individuals whose fathers belong to the same clan as his own father. Within this group, however, practically any liberty is allowable. If a man discovers that a 'jokable' relative has committed some foolish or disgraceful act, he can publicly twit him with it, and the person derided must not get angry, but bide his time for some favorable time to retaliate."

Dr. Lowie says the old Crow is very proud of the fact that his tribe has invariably sided with the Government in the history of Indian warfare, and is eager to have the tribe's deeds remembered. Gray Bull, one of the most noted warriors of the tribe, asked Dr. Lowie to put on record the fact that he had saved the soldiers under "Gen. Custer's brother," (possibly Gen. Crook) from an attack by the Sioux. Some of the Crow tribe are ardent readers of the newspapers, and one Crow was a subscriber to a magazine, and Dr. Lowie says nearly all of the older men make an effort to keep up with current National events.

QUAINT OLD BIBLE.

Martin Luther German Edition Bound with Oak Boards and Hogskin.

An interesting old family Bible will be sold at Merwin-Clayton's on Thursday. It is a Martin Luther German Bible, folio, original oak boards, covered with hogskin, with brass clasps and guards. It was printed at Tubingen in 1738.

This copy belonged to Michael Nestrell of Wittemberg and Anna Dorothea, his wife. The family records begin in 1741. Nestrell and his wife came to America in 1754, and settled in New York City at what was then called Spring Gardens, and which is now Park Row, City Hall. All the blank leaves at the beginning and end of the volume are filled with the birth, death, and marriage notices of the Nestrells. These show intermarriages with the Moore, Schultz, Scribner, Cutter, Lorillard, Remmy, McLaughlin, Cheeseborough, Delavan, Ronalds, Griswold, Ambler, Ferguson, Adee, and Schmidt families of New York. On the inside of the fire cover is the large and rare book plate of the Evangelical Lutheran Christ Church of this city. It is dated 1775.

In the same collection is the rare and interesting auction catalogue of the library of Dr. Francis Bernard, which will be sold by auction at the doctor's late dwelling house in Little Britain, the sale to begin on Tuesday, Oct. 4, 1698. This is one of the earliest catalogues of book auction sales.

Dr. Bernard, who was born in 1627 and died in 1698, was physician-in-ordinary to James II. His house in Little Britain, near St. Bartholomew's Hospital, contained a great library. Dr. Bernard knew the learned languages and also French, Spanish, and Italian. It was said that he had read through all the volumes of his vast collection.

Cataloguing of books in those days was far different from what it is at the present time. Rare works which now would be fully described, each by itself, were then sold in "bundles." Some of the "bundles" in the Bernard sale contained "A Brief Description of Carolina," 1666; "Articles of the Society of Traders in Pennsylvania;" "Jamaica Almanack," 1673; Cotton Mather's "Wonders of the Invisible World;" "The Princely Pelican;" "The Silkworms and the Flies;" George Wither's "Scholar's Purgatory;" "Present State of Jamaica," 1683; "Fasciculus Florum;" "A Book of Fishing with Hook and Line;" "An Abstract of the Laws of New England," and other rare American titles.

The said premises and property will be sold subject to the mortgage dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage, and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court has, since the entry of said decree herein, ordered or decreed, or which it may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the Receiver herein under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein; and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein; or out of the proceeds of the said sale as in said decree directed; and certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely: The San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, will be sold respectively subject to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens, specifically and respectively affecting the same.

The Master Commissioner will receive no bid from any person until such person shall have deposited with him the sum of $100,000. Such deposit will be returned in case the depositer's bid be not accepted; but if his bid be accepted, then such deposit will be held by the Master Commissioner on account of the purchase price.

The purchaser, when the property is struck down to him, shall at once pay the Master Commissioner on account of his purchase a sufficient sum to make up with his deposit ten per centum of his accepted bid. The deposit required before bidding shall be paid in United States currency or in such certified draft, certificate or cheque as may be satisfactory to the Master Commissioner, or in a certificate of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, duly made payable to the order of said Master Commissioner. Said further payment shall be made either as aforesaid, or in the bonds and coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, taken at a valuation equal to the amount said bonds and coupons would be entitled to receive in cash out of the amount bid for the said property. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, such certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons. Should such further payment not be made, the property will be forthwith resold, without further advertisement, the Court reserving the right to consider such resale made on account of said successful bidder or as an original sale; and in case of such resale, the deposit received from the said successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. Such further portions of the purchase price shall be paid in money, as the Court may from time to time direct, the Court reserving the right to resell the premises and property herein directed to be sold upon the failure of the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors or assigns, to comply with any order of the Court in that regard, and in case of any such resale or the failure of the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their assigns, to comply with the terms of the bid or the orders of the Court relative to such additional payments, the said money, bonds and coupons so paid in as aforesaid shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and shall be applied toward the expenses of any resale ordered, or toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property at such resale shall bring less than at the prior sale. The balance of the purchase price may be paid either in money or in bonds or overdue coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, each said bond and coupon being received for such sum as the holder thereof would be entitled to receive under the distribution herein ordered and according to the priority herein adjudged. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, said certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons.

Within thirty days from the confirmation of said sale or such further time as the Court may allow on application of the purchaser for good cause shown, the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, shall complete payment of the entire amount bid to the Master Commissioner; and on such payment the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, will be entitled to receive a deed of conveyance and bill of sale of the property purchased from the Master Commissioner, and from the other parties to this cause as in said decree herein provided, and to receive possession of the property so purchased from the parties holding possession of the same, subject, however, to the said mortgage, dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as Trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage; and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International and Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court, since the entry of the said decree herein has ordered or decreed, or may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the receiver herein, under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein, and subject also to such debts, claims, liens, and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein, or out of the proceeds of said sale, as in said decree directed, and subject also, as to certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely, the San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens specifically and respectively affecting the same. And the Court reserves jurisdiction over said property, notwithstanding such deed or deeds or delivery of possession, for the purpose of enforcing such payment.

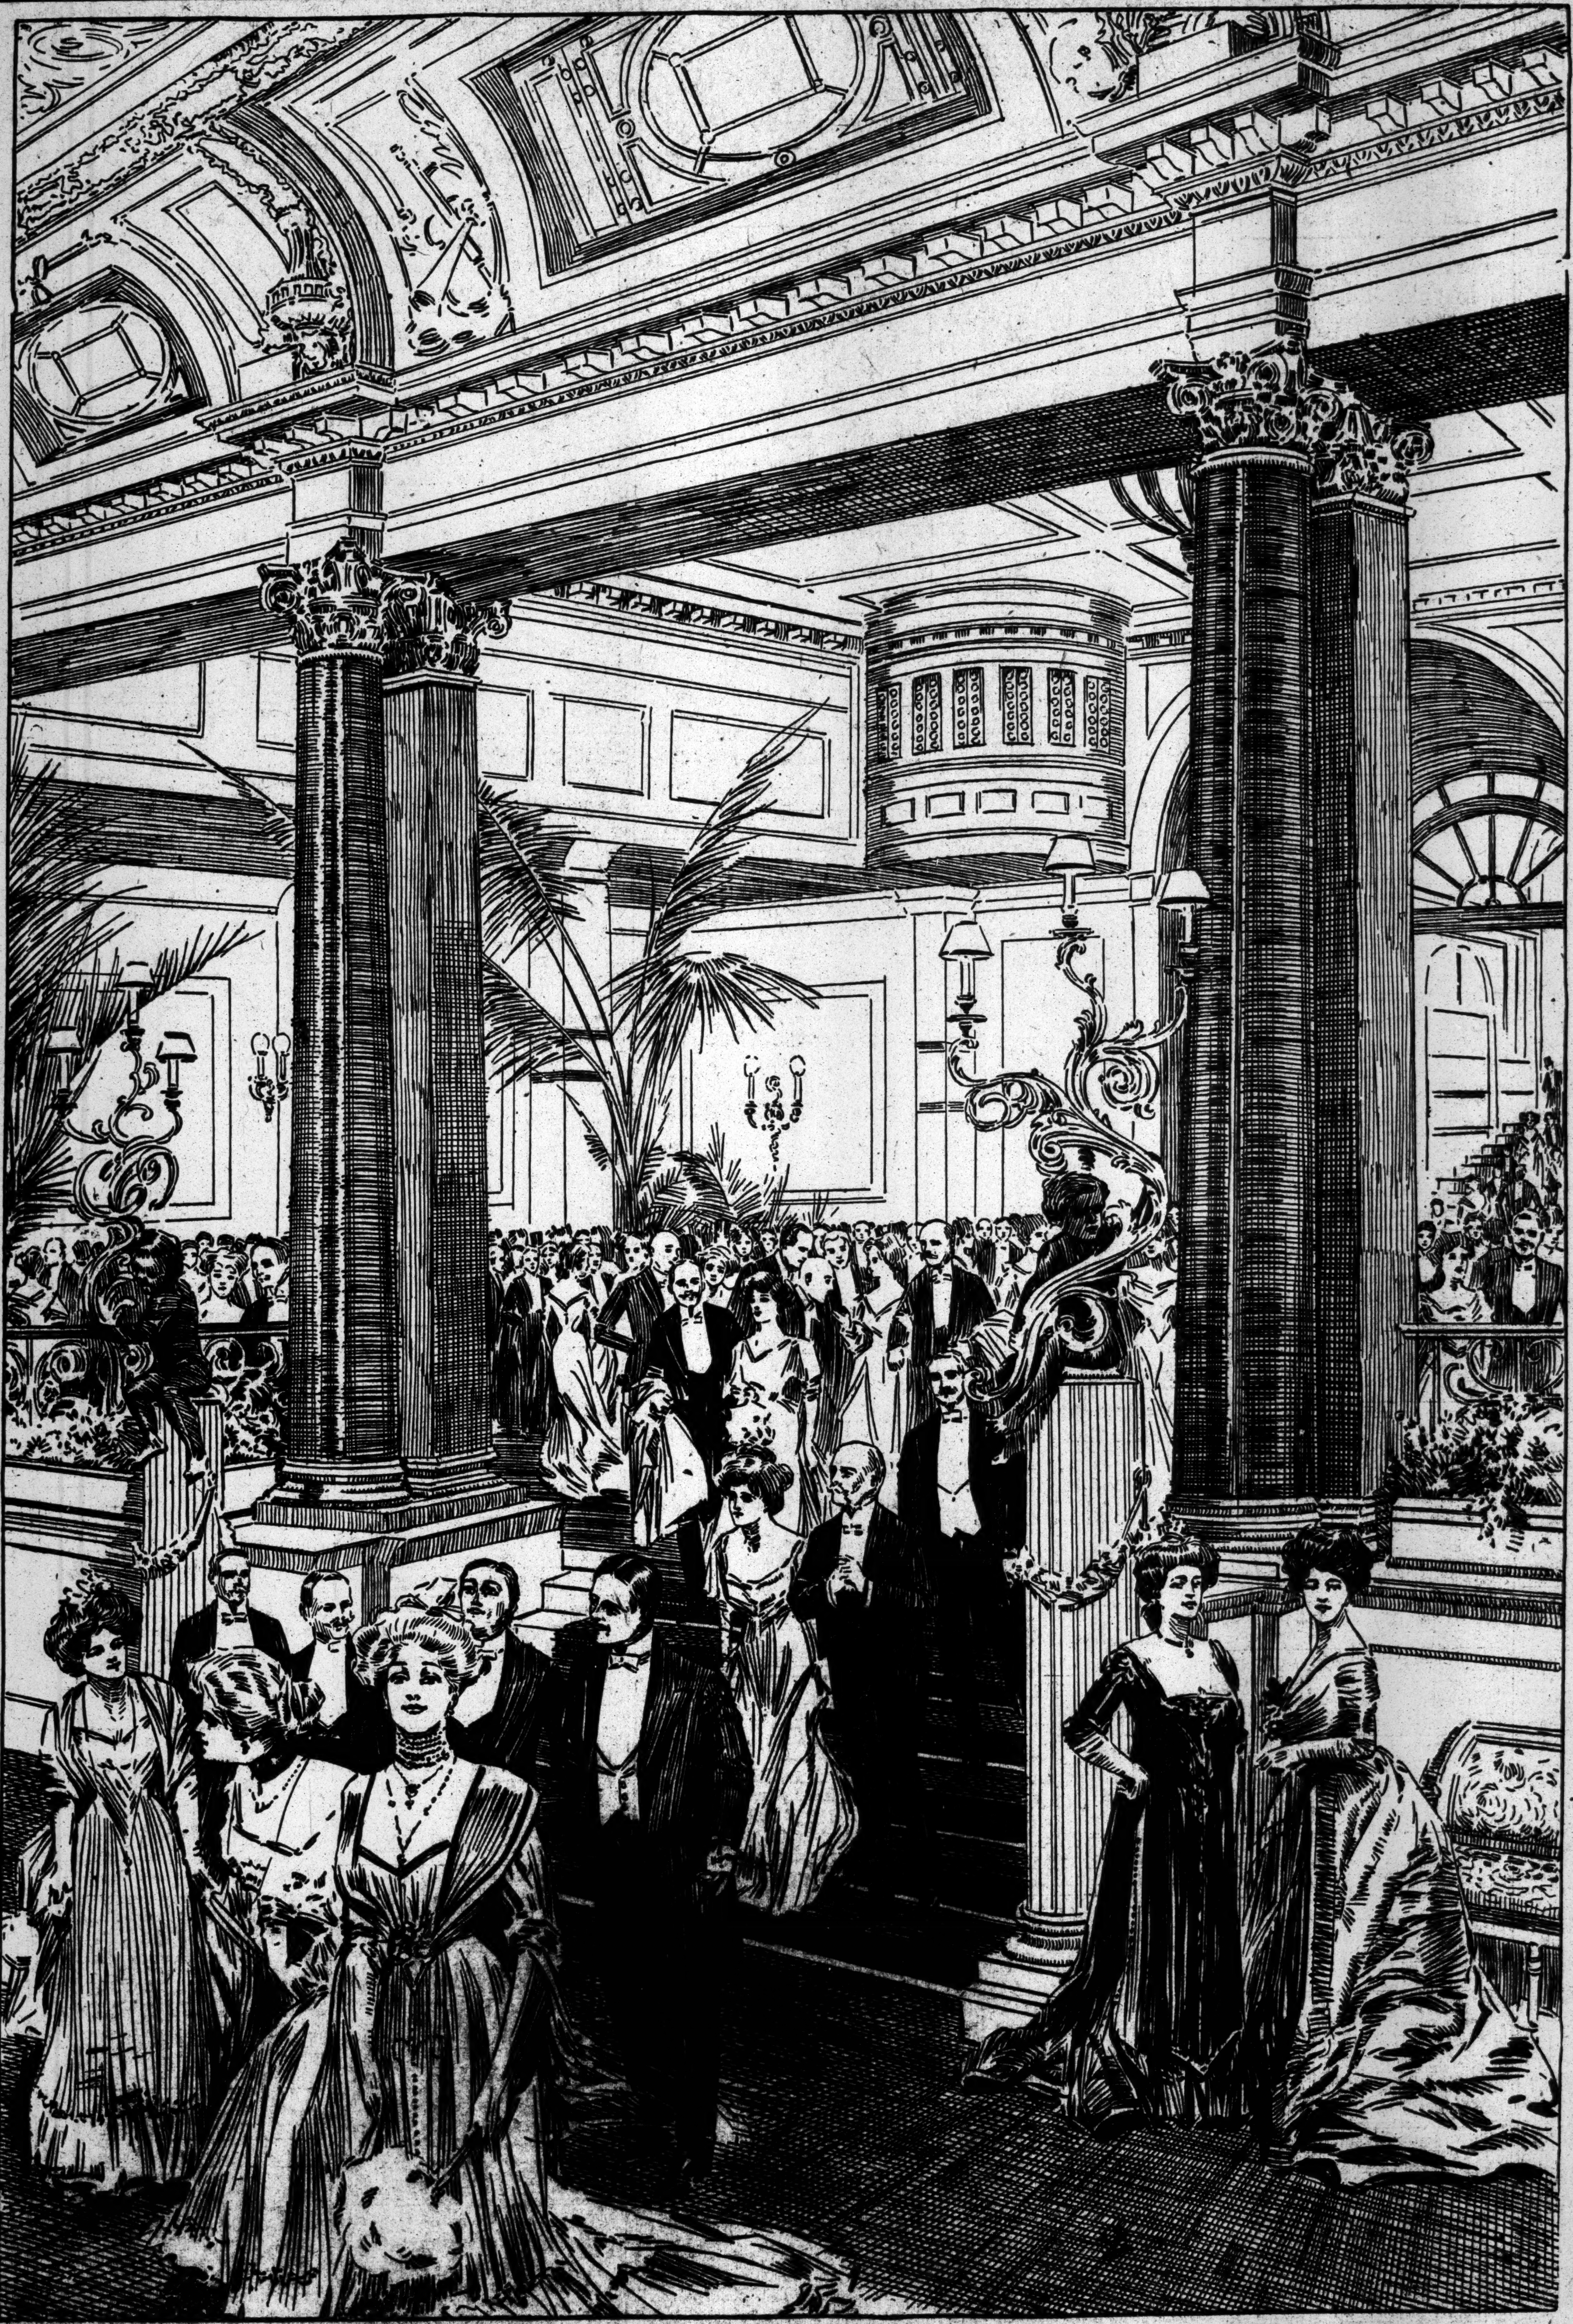
Going to the Country
Now is the time to plan the Summer's outing. Where to board is the most important part of the plan. The New York Times Country Board columns offer a select list of delightful places to spend your vacation.



THE HEIGHT OF THE LONDON SEASON—ARRIVING FOR SUPPER AT THE SAVOY RESTAURANT

The Savoy Restaurant still remains the most renowned in the world—its cuisine is unrivalled. There are few visitors to London who do not consider a visit to the Savoy Restaurant and its luxurious and delightful surroundings an indispensable feature in their arrangements.

The comforts and luxury of the Savoy Hotel, its cuisine and service, combined with the most moderate charges, place it absolutely in the front rank of all hotels in Europe. The beautiful suites—with bathrooms attached—overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens, away from the noise and bustle of street traffic, although in the centre of London, are greatly appreciated by all American travellers.

Effective Advertisements.

¶ If you are tired of careless, indifferent employes you may substitute for them reliable, trustworthy men or women by inserting an EFFECTIVE Help Wanted advertisement in The New York Times. This will allow you fifty words for one dollar, and you will be able to state exactly the kind of employe you need.

¶ This Want Page is daily scanned by hundreds of intelligent, above-the-average men and women seeking situations, and many of them no doubt are looking for just the position you offer.

MORALS ENDANGERED BY NEW PAGANISM

But the Church Will Withstand Atheistic Assaults, Says Bishop Burch at Columbia.

GRADUATES HEAR SERMONS

N. Y. University Students Hear a Sermon on the "Beliefs and Unbeliefs" of the Day.

Naming Maeterlinck, d'Annunzio, Hauptmann, Ibsen, and Bernard Shaw as the chief exponents of the New Paganism, the Right Rev. Dr. Burch, Suffragan Bishop of New York, in the Columbia University baccalaureate sermon yesterday afternoon characterized the new cult as "a confusion of moral standards which holds sinister meaning and menace to the social order." The Church, he declared, was not in a decadent state, for though the same sort of pagan and atheistic attacks have often been leveled at it, it has always retained its strength.

"Many startling analogies," he said, "have been drawn between moral conditions to-day and the decadent paganism of the Roman world under the Caesars. The new paganism, like all other tendencies toward social and moral confusion, must be reckoned with, but one may be pardoned an optimism which will not admit that conditions are quite as disturbing as some of our moralists would have us believe.

"For the young man starting on his career in real earnest will not be misled as he asks himself the questions, What contribution has the new paganism made to the cause of moral betterment? What has it accomplished for mankind by way of social service, social progress? Has its propaganda made one man or one woman stronger and better for the work they are set to do in the world?"

The Bishop then spoke of the pathetic hopelessness of the oration Robert G. Ingersoll delivered over the grave of his brother and the bitter disappointment shown by the last words of Voltaire. Byron, Poe, De Quincey, Goethe, Coleridge, and Shelley he also quoted as men who lived without God and without His hope.

"To-day," went on the preacher, "many, even within the bounds of that Church, claim, with some justice, that it is not effectively preaching, that it fails to reach the masses, and comes dangerously near being the church of the classes. But we must remember that this is not the first age or this the first people rejecting the Church's religion and charging that religion with failure. Confessedly failure to reach up to the full measure of its opportunity has marked each stage of its development, and is not this the history of all institutions in a world in which the idea of development controls, whether in the sphere of nature, of science, of philosophy, of religion?

"True religion will profit by criticism, scientific or unscientific, deserved or undeserved, tempered and moderate or churlish and exaggerated. The miracle of the centuries is the persistence of this religion in spite of the manifold grievous errors and failures of its adherents and in spite of the unremitting efforts of its enemies to read it out of being."

Bishop Burch, in concluding, urged the young men and women to go out into the world with aspiration for "social service" of the type "taught and lived by the Founder of the religion, a service reinterpreted and reclothed in the light of present-day conditions."

NEW RABBIS GRADUATED.

Louis Marshall Speaks at Jewish Theological Exercises.

Seven new rabbis were made yesterday afternoon at the commencement exercises of the Jewish Theological Seminary in West 123d Street. The exercises were attended by a crowd that filled the auditorium. The graduates were William Ackerman, Paul Chertoff, Max Drob, Moses Eckstein, Jacob B. Grossman, Max D. Klein, and Samuel Margoshes.

Rabbi Schechter, the famous Hebrew scholar, who is President of the seminary, conferred the degrees and made an address to the graduates. The invocation was delivered by Prof. Mordecai M. Kaplan. Louis Marshall, Chairman of the Board of Directors, made an introductory address. The valedictory was given by Max Drob.

The following awards of prizes were announced: Seminary Alumni Association Prize to Israel Lebendiger, Laemmlein Buttenwieser Bible Prize to Jacob Bosniak, honorable mention to Moses Eckstein, Laemmlein Buttenwieser Talmud Prize divided between Max Drob and Israel Elfenbein, Aaron Friedenwald Prize in Jewish Theology to Paul Chertoff, Alexander Kohut Memorial Prize to Jacob Katz, Dembitz Memorial Prize to Isaac Abravanel, honorable mention to David Shohet, and the Robinson Memorial Prize to Meyer Warzman.

In his speech Louis Marshall said that Judaism has passed out of its invertebrate condition, and that it "was being fed stronger meat." The result would be a Judaism "conscious of its power and mission, not apologetic but virile, willing to defend its cause and able."

Rabbi Schechter told the newly made rabbis to avoid the polemics that were increasing in the Church and which the people were tiring of, to leave off the controversial tone in the pulpit and the "isms" that seemed to lead those who dealt in them to the brink of a chasm. He told them also to avoid religiosity, which he described as "coquetting with things spiritual until spiritual impudence results."

TABLET TO BISHOP WILEY

PENNINGTON, June 4.—The seventy-fourth annual baccalaureate sermon to the senior class of Pennington Seminary was preached in Shaw Memorial Chapel this morning by the Rev. Dr. S. V. Leech of Washington, D. C., whose text was found in John, iii., 2: "Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God."

In the evening the anniversary sermon for the Young Men's Christian Association was preached in the Shaw Memorial Chapel, at which time the unveiling of the memorial tablet to the late Bishop Isaac W. Wiley was also made. The address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. William V. Kelley, editor of The Methodist Review of New York City.

Saturday afternoon the annual Calliologian dinner was held, preceded by a reunion and business meeting. Miriam Lee Earley was elected President, Mrs. Robert Oliphant Vice President, and Anna Rems Secretary and Treasurer.

In the evening the annual reunion and dinner of the alumni was held.

TELLS STUDENTS OF BELIEFS.

Dr. Coffin Also Talks of Unbeliefs at New York University.

Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of New York University yesterday afternoon, taking for his theme "Religious Belief and Unbelief." The service was held in the college chapel on University Heights and there were more than 1,500 persons present, besides the 70-odd graduates. A choir of 180 from All Souls' Church and the Church of the Advocate gave the musical part of the service, singing two anthems by Schubert and Martin, and "The Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel. Chief Justice Isaac F. Russell of the New York Supreme Court, a veteran professor of the New York University Law School, sat with the faculty.

The invocation was given by Dr. Percy B. Wightman of the University Heights Presbyterian Church, and the Scripture reading was by Dr. De Witt L. Pelton of the St. James Protestant Episcopal Church. Dr. Joseph M. Hodson of Fordham Manor Reformed Church led the prayer and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Henry M. Brown, pastor of Christ Congregational Church.

In his sermon Dr. Coffin said:

"Our world is the same for everybody, with the same day and night, work and play, sickness and health, joy and sorrow, life and death. The differences between the lots of individuals are insignificant compared to the sameness of that which is everybody's. But there are two very different interpretations of it. To one set of people the world is just the world. They take it as they find it, enjoy what is pleasant and grumble at what is otherwise; use according to their capacity the stock of wisdom they inherit from the experiences of their predecessors, and go through life and into death without any sense of the existence of the invisible companion.

"A correct conscience is not something that is born in us. A small boy is as likely to arrive in the world with a silk hat on his head as with a proper sense of obligation. Father and mother, teachers and pastor must set themselves to educate him in responsibility, and produce in him a conscience that shall function properly under all life's complex circumstances. Many people prefer the latest rag-time to Beethoven or Wagner, but we do not consider their musical standards final. They believe that education, contact with something better, suggesting inevitable contrasts, an ear gradually becoming more sensitive will enable them to hear in the masters of sound what no cheap and vulgar hack who tosses off songs by the ream can possibly furnish.

"To others the world is not just the world, but the world and its invisible but most real Lord, from whom they accept its arrangement, to whom they ascribe the inspiration of the wisest and best thoughts they find in their own and other men's minds, and in whose personal friendship they pass through life and into death with a vivid anticipation of something beyond."

Referring to the scene in "Silas Marner" where the village worthies discuss the credibility of ghosts, Dr. Coffin repeated the words of the farmer: "If ghosts want me to believe in 'em let 'em leave off skulking in the dark and in lone places—let 'em come out where there's company and candles."

"That," said Dr. Coffin, "is the attitude of many people toward God. Some people with a taste for Him stoutly declare His reality, while others insist that if God wants them to believe in Him he ought to disclose Himself plainly so that there could be no uncertainty. Facts are facts, they remind us. There is no difference of opinion about the warmth of sunlight or the wetness of rain. Why should not God, if He exists, make Himself equally indisputable?

"The varied experiences which the years may have in store for you may be divinely significant or boldly meaningless. They may be progressive disclosures of the face of God in Jesus Christ, opening up for you a more and more intimate fellowship with Him, or they may be just a series of happenings, pleasant or the reverse, but meaning nothing. It lies within our power to let Christ be a living factor in our careers, to give God the chance to be really God to us. The same light and the same sound can be differently understood."

Manhattan College Baccalaureate.

The baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of Manhattan College was preached last night in the Church of the Holy Name, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street, by the Rev. John T. Slattery, missionary rector of St. Patrick's Church, Watervliet, N. Y. Father Slattery is a graduate of the college, class of '86, which is celebrating its silver jubilee. The graduating class, numbering twenty, sat in the front of the church in cap and gown. Father John J. Kean, pastor of the church and member of the class of '66, officiated at the evening service.

GIRL FOUND SENSELESS.

Empty Drug Bottle by Her Side in a Jersey City Station.

Pauline Weldon of 683 South Eleventh Street, Newark, was found unconscious at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning in the West Side Avenue station of the Newark & New York branch of the Central Railroad in Jersey City. By her side was an empty bottle that had contained a drug, probably laudanum.

She was hurried to the City Hospital, a prisoner, where the physicians say she will recover. In a purse she carried were two notes, one addressed to her father and the other to her mother. She said to her father:

"I'm unhappy and am going to end it all." She asked the forgiveness of her mother for her act. The parents cannot explain her act, saying she had led a model life. They say, however, that she was subject to convulsions, and that might have accounted for what she did. At the hospital Miss Weldon said she had only taken medicine to ward off a seizure she felt coming on.

She was found in the railroad station by Henry Hohn of the same address in Newark. He is held by the police for examination on the technical charge of being a disorderly person. He said he had an appointment with Miss Weldon at the railroad station to take her to Coney Island for the day. He says he found her lying on the floor and placed her on a bench and then called for the police.

Twenty-third Street Merchants Meet.

The members of the Twenty-third Street Improvement Association will hold a meeting in the office of the President, Walter Stabler, 1 Madison Avenue, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Improvement Committee of the association has been urging an increase in the lighting of the street, and it is hoped that the city will take this in hand at the same time as the street is widened.

SCHEIB'S LAWYERS PLAN HIS DEFENSE

DISPUTE LEHANE'S THEORY

That Bathtub Victim Was Dead Four Months—Police Work on New Murder Theory.

The defense for Harry A. Scheib, whose wife Lillian was found dead in a bathtub in their three-room apartment in the model tenement house at 511 East Seventy-eighth Street, was outlined at an all-day conference yesterday of Scheib's lawyers and friends in the law offices of Alexander Karlin, his chief counsel, at 203 Broadway.

Those participating in the conference adjourned to the Tombs Prison twice and held lengthy consultations with Scheib. So far as they would announce their plan of defense it will consist of an attack upon the evidence of Coroner's Physician Lehane that he is positve the body of Mrs. Scheib lay in the bathtub where it was found for at least four months, and of an effort to prove an alibi for Scheib on last Sunday, when it is contended he was seen half a block away from the East Seventy-eighth Street apartment.

What is considered a critical period in the police efforts to get the Scheib case before the Grand Jury will come on Tuesday morning, when Magistrate Corrigan for the third time will reopen the preliminary hearing.

It is an open secret in the Criminal Court Building that this hearing has been twice adjourned because of the weakness of the prosecution's case in establishing the vital point that Mrs. Scheib was murdered. E. O. Towne of Scheib's counsel sketched at some length the defense it is planned to make.

"In the first place," he said, "we are absolutely prepared to prove that Scheib lived in the Seventy-eighth Street house for nearly two months after the date his wife was last seen. We hold it would have been physically impossible for him to have continued to live in a flat where his wife was lying dead, with a guilty knowledge of the way she came to her death to oppress him.

"It was not until March 25 that Scheib left the flat, and he had lived there continuously since Feb. 2, when his wife deserted him.

"We see nothing incongruous in the many stories he has told to account for her disappearance—that she was in the German Hospital; that she hd gone West; that she was with her folks in New England. The shame of admitting that he had quarreled with his wife and that she had left him would naturally be something he would wish to escape from, and what easier way to do this than to account for her absence in any plausible way that might come to mind?"

Medical testimony will probably be introduced to offset the views of Dr. Lehane as to the length of time Mrs. Scheib's body had been in the bathtub. Both Lawyer Karlin and Lawyer Towne were insistent that there was no standard of judgment by which time in such a case could be precisely and accurately determined.

The defense hopes to prove, by breaking down the prosecution's testimony on this point, and by throwing out the testimony of the six-year-old girl who is counted on to tell of a visit of Scheib to the flat last Sunday, that Scheib merely lost track of his wife, kept paying the rent in the hope that she would return, and finally was arrested for her murder while still engaged in this hoping and waiting programme.

When made aware of this programme Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty gave orders last night to his detectives to make every effort to learn of some address other than that on Amsterdam Avenue, where Scheib was living when arrested, at which he lived in February and March. It seems fairly well established, the police say, that Scheib rented the room on Amsterdam Avenue late in March, and they are certain that he did not live in the East Seventy-eighth Street house after Feb. 2.

After an investigation of the Scheib flat yesterday, in which every corner of the place was searched and even the wall paper examined minutely, detectives from Deputy Commissioner Dougherty's staff declared that they had found evidence tending to indicate that an effort had been made to dispose of the body through boiling it, and that this plan had been given up after being partially carried out.

The hardware dealer who sold Scheib a large wash boiler in February, told the police that the sale surprised him, as he had sold Mrs. Scheib a smaller boiler in November, and thought it ought to be still sufficient for the family needs. The police have learned that Scheib explained the new purchase on the ground that his wife was going to take in washing to help out the family income.

The belief of the police that they had found Lillian Scheib's wedding ring was somewhat dissipated yesterday when a pawn broker's clerk from a Columbus Avenue pawn shop failed to identify Harry Scheib as the man named Scheib who pawned a ring there on May 20.

The chemical analysis of the fluid in which Mrs. Scheib's body was found will be completed by Prof. Barkin of Columbia University, he said last night, in time for Tuesday's court session.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 4.—Connor C. O'Grady reiterated to-day that he is not satisfied that the body found in the Scheib apartment in New York is that of his daughter. O'Grady is highly wrought up over the publication of various alleged interviews with him, and has issued the following statement:

"Having made up my mind from the first to avoid newspaper discussion concerning the alleged death of my daughter, Mrs. Hugh A. Sherman, I hereby announce to all newspapers, reporters, correspondents, &c., that when I may have anything to communicate to the press I shall personally call at a newspaper office. Uninvited visits from news gatherers I shall regard as an intrusion and a trespass, and I shall act accordingly.

"To my friends I have to say that, of course, the question of my daughter's funeral has not as yet been considered by me, the fact of her death not having been yet proved. In all mention of her husband to me my daughter invariably showed great attachment and esteem."

O'Grady persistently refuses to refer to Scheib other than as Sherman.

BAYONNE LEADS OFF.

First New Jersey City to Vote on Commission Government.

Of about twenty New Jersey cities that are preparing to substitute a commission form of government for that which they now have, Bayonne is the first to get ready for the test. The act passed by the last Legislature requires that the question of the change may be submitted to popular vote, on the petition of 20 per cent. of the voters. Petitions for such a referendum are in circulation in Jersey City, Hoboken, Elizabeth, Passaic, New Brunswick, and several of the smaller municipalities. In all, the promoters of the scheme are finding it a difficult undertaking to get the necessary signers.

The quota has been obtained in Bayonne, however, and, in compliance with the terms of the law, City Clerk Hamilton has given notice that the special vote will be taken on Tuesday of next week.

The result will be watched with keen interest in all parts of the State. The existing officialism of the cities (opposed to the act) had a proviso inserted in the act requiring that at least 30 per cent. of the votes must vote one way or the other on the proposed change. They assume that, as seldom more than 15 per cent. of the popular vote responds to calls for special elections, the friends of the new system will find it impossible to get out a 30 per cent. vote, and that the election, whichever way it goes, will be invalid.

The act establishes a single commission in place of the existing government. The commission may pass ordinances, and administer all the affairs of the city. There will be no Mayor in any city except by courtesy, and the moment the act is accepted in a city all the officials are requested to step out. These commissions are to be elected by the people at the next general election. After their election they are to get together and assign to each member his particular work in the conduct of the City Government. Each will be the executive head of his department, but responsible to his fellow-commissioners, and by ordinance they can create such subordinate offices as the administration of the government requires. The only department they cannot run is the schools. These have long been a part of the State machine.

A vital feature of the new system is the initiative, referendum, and recall. Under the initiative, 15 per cent. of the voters can propose ordinances to the commission; if the commission refuses to adopt them, they must be submitted to a popular vote. Referendums of this kind can be had every six months. If the commission passes an ordinance, it must be held up for ten days to give time for popular protest and a demand for a popular vote. Both the Commissioners and their subordinates are subject to removal from their offices on a vote to recall, except that no official shall be subjected to respond to the voters more than once during the term for which he may have been elected.

It is expected that Hoboken, Elizabeth, and New Brunswick will have made themselves ready to vote on the acceptance of the bill within the next ten days, and that more than a score of important Jersey municipalities will follow suit. The city that accepts the new system can return to the old after the lapse of six years.

TWO BOYS NEARLY DROWN.

One Saves the Other and Is Then Rescued by a Motor Launch Owner.

Meyer Zieger, a 14-year-old boy who lives at 88 First Street, Brooklyn, took a rowboat yesterday afternoon and ventured out on Jamaica Bay in company with a companion whom he knew only by the nickname of "Nigger." Toward sundown the boys stopped at the breakwater and stripped for a swim.

"Nigger" had not gone far into the deep channel when he started to sink, and at his cry of alarm the Zieger boy started to his rescue. The two sank together, and as they came spluttering to the surface young Zieger managed to help the other boy to the top of the breakwater, which was submerged in a few inches of water. "Nigger" was exhausted, but he clung desperately, and set up a feeble shout as Zieger, losing his hold, slipped back into the water and sank.

The boy had sunk a second time when Joseph E. Mollere came by in his motor launch. He jumped in in time to catch the boy as he rose to the surface. Both boys were taken to the Canarsie shore, neither much the worse for his ducking. Mollere lives at 128 Fort Greene Place, Brooklyn.

Two Jump in River and Save a Child.

William Merrill of 89 Fourth Street and Patrick Twyford of 97 Fourth Street, Brooklyn, jumped yesterday into the Gowanus Canal at the foot of Bond Street, and rescued five-year-old Anton Carsi, who had fallen overboard from the barge Lewiston. Merrill and Twyford saw the child playing at the edge of the barge a few moments before, but paid no attention until they heard a splash. Ambulance Surgeon Lesser of the Long Island College Hospital did not find it necessary to remove the child to the hospital.

Boy Drowns at North Beach.

At North Beach yesterday afternoon Jacob Ehlers, 17 years old, of 345 Grand Street, Manhattan, with three companions, went in bathing in Flushing Bay. The water was very deep and Ehlers was taken with a cramp. His companions attempted to save him, but he sank. The body was recovered.

Quits His Plainfield Church.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., June 4.—The Rev. George A. Warner offered his resignation as rector of the Holy Cross Episcopal Church at the morning service to-day, because he is suffering from a serious nervous breakdown. His physicians advised this action, and Mr. Warner and his wife will go on a long trip. Mr. Warner was formerly an assistant rector of an Episcopal church in East Orange. Since coming here he has been elected a member of the Board of Education, and he also spent a great deal of time in promoting athletics among the boys of his parish.

AEROPLANIC SERPENT VISIBLE AFTER DAWN

IT HAD A WIGGLY MOTION

Mournful Eyes and a Calflike Expression—Vouched For by Actor Hilliard, Who Had Won the Pool.

The White Star liner Celtic, in yesterday from Liverpool, passed on Saturday the very latest in sea serpents. This fact, it should be stated, is not entered in the log. It was confided to the ultramarine reporters by a steward, who was perfectly willing to furnish a description. Robert Hilliard, the actor, was willing under duress to provide corroboration.

This sea serpent—witnesses differ as to its length—was sighted holding a bewhiskered, calflike head ten feet above water. Behind, where the ears ought to have been, were two wings extending outward about ten feet, thus giving the saurian monster the appearance of an aeroplane skimming over the sea. The steward, in fact, described it as a monoplane sea serpent.

Anyway, it was seen off the Celtic's starboard bow in the early morning, and the early-rising steward who spotted it, instead of carrying the news forward to the bridge, ran to the rooms under his care and begged those within to come on deck and see it. He says he caught Mr. Hilliard, who does not deny it, but begs that it be not printed, because he dislikes notoriety.

The serpent, according to both, was either pursuing a school of whales or keeping company with the school to avoid loneliness. This last theory is the steward's, who said, moreover, that it turned a pair of large, mournful green eyes upon those on the vessel's deck in a way to "touch your 'eart, Sir." Then it passed on its monoplanic way, dipping up and down, just like that, but otherwise holding its head erect. Behind it appeared at intervals a dark-green body, moving through the water with a wiggly motion.

The report of the steward, with its accompanying corroboration by Mr. Hilliard, moved the veteran, Samuel A. Wood, dean of the ultramarines, to some enthusiasm. Sea serpent stories, said Mr. Wood, are rare at this port nowadays, but in the old days the men on sailing vessels saw many of them.

"Forty years ago," began Mr. Wood, "I wrote many of those stories, but as steam has replaced sail and romance departed from the seas, the sea serpents have evidently moved away from the steamship tracks.

"It is now, I think, ten years ago since the Great Tabasco serpent was reported in the Bay of Campeche by the truthful mate of a schooner. This one was dark brown, and made a noise like a gatling gun. It is about the same length of time since the Captain of the steamship American, coming from Antwerp, reported one fifty feet long that swam like an eel. She had green whiskers.

"A strange looking monster ten fathoms long was reported by the skipper of the blue nose bark Howard D. Coop. The most authentic sea serpent sighting was made by the French liner Lorraine about three years ago. Her skipper gave the latitude and longitude where the monster was sighted, and the purser wrote a description of it for the French newspapers. This one was a drab color, and appeared to be accompanied by a water spout. As the vessel approached the spout was seen to be a mass of water thrown up by the serpent's fore fins."

Mr. Wood recalled that this last serpent was seen early in the morning. Searching his memory still further, he remarked that from his experience sea serpents had usually made their appearance early in the morning; in fact, usually the morning after, in which respect they had something in common with the pink elephant.

The other interesting event of the voyage of the Celtic was that Mr. Hilliard won the pool on the English Derby. He picked both first and second horse, and for a while was richer by about $300. This was some time before the sea serpent became visible.

Kick Causes Little Boy's Death.

Seven-year-old Peter McIntyre of 2,190 Gravesend Avenue, Brooklyn, died in the Coney Island Hospital yesterday of blood poisoning. On Wednesday last the boy got into a fight with a playmate about his age, and was kicked in the shin. The kick caused an inflammation, from which blood poisoning developed.
